New York man arrested in attempt to sell stolen corporate documents to Elk Grove Village firm

by STEVE BROWN

An industrial espionage scheme to sell stolen corporate documents valued at more than $100,000 to a Northwest suburban firm has been broken up by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

FBI agents said the attempted plan was ended when a New York man was arrested Monday night at O'Hare International Tower Hotel.

The scheme was thwarted when officials of Advance Systems Inc., 1601 Tonne Blvd., Elk Grove Village, tipped FBI agents that Louis Thomas Ricciardi was trying to sell secret product development plans stolen from a Schiller Park company.

Ricciardi, 31, was charged with interstate transportation of stolen property. He was still being held by federal authorities Tuesday night. His bond has been set at $15,000.

CORPORATE OFFICIALS from both Advance Systems and Deltak, 9950 W. Lawrence Ave., Schiller Park, were hesitant to comment on the case which began to develop early Monday when Ricciardi stepped off an airplane from New York.

A former salesman with Deltak, Ricciardi called Advance Systems, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of video-tape recording devices. He offered to sell the company lists of prospective clients and highly confidential reports on the development of new products.

Deltak also is involved in the production of video-tape equipment.

"He was apparently into it only for the money," one government investigator said.

A spokesman for Advance Systems said his company contacted Deltak immediately after Ricciardi made his first call to its offices.

THE FBI WAS CALLED into the case and began tracing Ricciardi's movements during the day.

Groundbreaking slated for late November

State gives OK to plans for area satellite hospital

by JOE FRANZ

Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital's plans for a satellite facility to serve the Wheeling-Elk Grove area have received final approval, state officials said Tuesday.

The Illinois Dept. of Public Health approved the engineering and architectural plans for the $11.3 million branch. Earlier in the year, preliminary plans for the project were approved by the agency.

Michael Goldasich, an architect for the state, said the plans were "approved with comments." Along with the approval, he said, the state made a number of suggestions for improving the facility.

Groundbreaking is expected by late November.

The comments made by the state are usually just recommendations, Goldasich said, and whether they are followed is up to the discretion of the builder. He said all the recommendations concerned "minor points."

APPROVAL OF THE branch comes just days before a new state law goes into effect requiring hospital backers to resubmit their plans and demonstrate a need for any new health-care facilities.

Norman Davis, a consultant to the hospital, recently told The Herald, he feared if plans were not approved by the time the new law takes effect, his clients might have difficulty receiving state approval.

Under the so-called certificate of need law, which takes effect Oct. 1, any agency or person interested in building a hospital would have to show that the facility is needed at the location where it is proposed.

Until now, need was not taken into consideration by the state in approving hospital facilities. According to Davis, Franklin Boulevard might have had problems satisfying the need requirement set down in the new law.

STATE OFFICIALS also have said it would be difficult to show a need for a hospital in the Wheeling-Elk Grove area because several nearby hospitals are not filled.

Davis said Tuesday groundbreaking for the 228-bed hospital could come in late November, providing hospital backers are able to get financing to pay for its construction. He said they should know in the near future whether financing is available.

The satellite branch is to be on the east side of Schoenbeck Road, just south of Wheeling's corporate limits. Property for the project consists of two tracts totaling 20 acres and costing an estimated $500,000.

Patrick DeMoore, executive director of Franklin Boulevard Hospital in Chicago, said the hospital would eventually be annexed to Wheeling. The facility will be called Wheeling-Elk Grove Community Hospital.

The facility will be designed to handle Buffalo Grove and Wheeling, parts of Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Northbrook and southern Lake County.

SULLIVAN CONCURRED with the bargain agreement because he said he wanted the two teen-agers to resume a relatively normal life despite the blemish on their record. "It's important to my way of thinking that Mr. Kopecy finish school and Mr. Serowka continue working," he said.

About the fine, Sullivan said, "I do think it should be more than a token amount, but something reasonable for them to pay." He said Serowka would be required to pay about $50 a month from his salary and reserved the amount of fine Kopecy should pay because he is still going to school.

Serowka's attorney, James Andros, said, "the court has done justice," when asked whether the decision was too strict or too lenient. He was asked about the reaction of the two families of the teen-agers. "As parents they are concerned," he said. He added, "The boys are not criminals."

'Firebombers' get 5 yrs. probation

by BARRY SIGALE

Two Wheeling teen-agers Tuesday were sentenced to five years probation and three years in a work-release program after pleading guilty to charges they firebombed Wheeling High School June 8.

Erwin J. Kopecy, 18, of 912 Wilshire Dr., and James Serowka, 18, of 287 E. Norman Ln., also were ordered to pay an undetermined sum of money to High School Dist. 214 for damages to the school's library. Estimates of damage range from $350,000 to $500,000. Circuit Court Judge Harold W. Sullivan presided over the case.

Under the terms of the plea-bargaining agreement between assistant state's attorneys and defense lawyers, Kopecy and Serowka will continue with their normal daily routines for the next two years, but will have to surrender themselves nightly at the House of Corrections in Chicago.

THE YOUTHS ARE free on $10,000 bond to take care of personal business before their sentence takes effect. They are scheduled to begin serving their sentences Oct. 3 when they will be taken from their next Skokie court appearance for their first night in jail.

Sullivan said he will work out the final details of the sentence which will allow Kopecy to continue to attend Wheeling High School, where he is a senior, and Serowka, a 1973 graduate of Wheeling High School, to work full-time.

The courtroom was quiet, and the defendants and their parents solemn, as the evidence against the two youths was presented. The youths were charged with throwing bricks and Molotov cocktails through the library windows, touching off the fire. Witnesses at a party across the street from the school identified Kopecy and Serowka as the persons responsible.

After the evidence was given, Sullivan turned to the two teen-agers and asked them individually, "Is that (the evidence) substantially correct?" Both teen-agers replied, "Yes."

Sullivan made sure the teen-agers understood the ramifications of pleading guilty to arson, a felony which carries a maximum one to 20 years sentence and $10,000 fine. "You did one rather irrational act here," Sullivan said. "If you do something similar in the future I would then revoke the probation."

45 minutes of hell for tot

A 3-year-old girl went into shock Tuesday while firemen worked for 45 minutes to free her foot from an open sewer pipe in the Arlington Heights Trailer Park adjacent to the race track. She later recovered.

Kristi Marie Cox, of Trailer 36, was walking on the grass behind her home at noon when her foot slipped into the four inch opening of a cast iron sewer pipe that was exposed at ground level.

The Arlington Heights Fire Dept. rescue squad first attempted to slide the girl's foot out of the pipe with car soap. The firemen were attempting to dig out the area around the pipe when they struck a water main, adjacent to the sewer pipe in the ground, and broke it open.

The cold water shooting out of the main put the girl into shock, said Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden. Firemen used an air chisel to cut two feet of the sewer pipe out of the ground, and then cut the pipe off the girl's foot after the water running through the water main was shut off.

The girl was taken by a fire department ambulance to Northwest Community Hospital where she was checked and released.

Funeral services today for Clarence B. Pontius

Funeral services will be today for Lake County Vernon Township Supervisor Clarence B. Pontius, who died Saturday of cancer.

A Mass will be said today at 10 a.m. at St. Joseph the Worker Catholic church, 181 W. Dundee Rd., in Wheeling. Burial will follow in Ascension Cemetery in Libertyville.

Pontius, 62, was a long-time Vernon Township official and served for a period on the Lake County Board. He was a Vernon Township auditor in 1965 when he was elected supervisor, a post he held until the time of his death.

Before his association with the township, Pontius was a Riverwoods village board member and was instrumental in obtaining township funds for the Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau project serving Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

Pontius also helped in the formation of the Lincolnshire - Half Day Chamber of Commerce, in addition heading the committee that engineered plans for the Vernon Township Library that operates out of Stevenson High School in Prairie View.

By profession, Pontius worked in graphic arts and was a former employee of the Chicago Daily News advertising department.

At a meeting Monday night, Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong eulogized Pontius, saying, "He was one of the few, unique politicians who devoted himself 100 per cent to the citizens he represented with no thought of pushing his own name or reputation."

Pontius, a Deerfield resident, is survived by his wife, Mary, and a daughter, Patricia Ann.

First Lady stumps for GOP women

by WANDALYN RICE

First Lady Betty Ford survived a mob scene of reporters and large contributors to the Republican Party in Chicago Tuesday to give her support to 14 women running on the Republican slate in Illinois.

Mrs. Ford, wearing a fur-trimmed beige sweater and a smile that only occasionally looked strained, greeted and was jostled by those attending the patrons' reception prior to a luncheon given by the organization "Republican Woman Power, Illinois Style."

While moving around the room surrounded by those who donated $100 to the "Woman Power" group and hordes of photographers, Mrs. Ford fielded questions on how she managed to lose weight and whether a woman should be elected President.

She replied, "I just kept at it," when expelling her success in dieting and said, "Why not?" when faced with the question of a woman President.

SHE THEN WAS HUSTLED by her security guards to a picture taking session with the 14 women candidates and George Burditt, Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate against Adlai Stevenson III.

Cook County Republicans getting a boost from Mrs. Ford included State Rep. Virginia MacDonald, R-Arlington Heights; Lola Flamm, candidate for county clerk; Alice Ihlig, candidate for county assessor; and Mary McDonald, candidate for county board.

Following the picture-taking session and another round of handshaking with the party faithful, Mrs. Ford spoke briefly to about 700 persons at a fund raising luncheon for the "Woman Power" organization.

Referring to the theme of the luncheon "You've Come a Long Way, Baby," Mrs. Ford said, "In 10 months to go from wife of Jerry Ford, House minority leader, to the wife of Mr. President — wow, that is a long way."

She added, "It's important to elect qualified women to represent us in public office. Even my husband agrees with that."

MRS. FORD'S REMARKS, lasting no more than five minutes, came as some disappointment to the assembled crowd, which had just finished an enthusiastic greeting of a slide show on the "Long Way" theme that featured baby pictures of the 14 women candidates.

"I wish she'd said more," one woman remarked, following the brief speech. "I guess that's just the way it is," another said.

Funds raised by the event will be distributed to the 14 women running on the Republican slate.

MRS. GERALD FORD gave her support to the 14 women who are running for office on the Republican ticket in Illinois this year at a reception and luncheon in Chicago.

Franklin hospital gains state OK

Franklin Boulevard Hospital's plans for a branch hospital in the Wheeling Buffalo Grove area have received state approval, Illinois Dept. of Public Health officials said. Ground-breaking for the $11.3 million facility is expected in late November.

Firebombers get probation

Two Wheeling teen-agers were sentenced to five years of probation and three years in a work-release program Tuesday after pleading guilty to charges that they firebombed the Wheeling High School library June 8. The youths, Erwin J. Kopecky, 18, and James Serowka, 18, were also ordered by Circuit Court Judge Harold W. Sullivan to pay an undetermined amount of money to High School Dist. 214 to help compensate for the estimated $350,000 to $500,000 damage done in the firebombing.

Project gets cool reception

Village, school and park district officials have voiced displeasure with the proposed 5,000-unit housing complex at Arlington Park Race Track. Plans for the development were outlined Monday night before a special Arlington Heights village review committee and the immediate response from members was opposition to the project's unusually high density. Concern was also expressed about providing schools for the estimated 3,000 children that would live in the development. Deputy Supt. Joseph Kiszka of Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 said Tuesday a proposed five-acre school-site donation is inadequate.

Panel OKs Salt Creek watershed

A U.S. House of Representatives subcommittee Tuesday approved the $2.5 million Salt Creek Watershed program for flood control and recreation. The Senate-passed measure will now go to the House public works committee.

Watchdogs wanted by LWV

The observers attend local government meetings, report back on actions taken and watch for violations of the Illinois Open Meeting Act.

Hearing today on tougher unincorporated zoning

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals will conduct a public hearing today on a proposal to toughen standards for zoning changes in unincorporated areas.

The hearing on the comprehensive amendment to the county zoning ordinance is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. in Room 569 of the County Building, 118 N. Clark St., Chicago.

County Comr. Carl R. Hansen of Mount Prospect is expected to be among the objectors to the proposed amendment at today's hearing.

Hansen, GOP candidate for county board president, indicated Tuesday night he would file "some significant objections pertaining both to the procedures and substance of the ordinance itself," but declined to elaborate.

The amendment is designed to "place environmental protection foremost," according to Zoning Board of Appeals Chairman Alex R. Selth.

Another key portion of the amendment establishes an incentive for developers to donate land for school and park use.

Today's hearing will be the final opportunity for county residents to testify on the amendment. After the hearings are completed, the zoning board will compile a recommendation for the county board.

Stevenson against pardon for Kerner

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., told reporters in Springfield yesterday he is against granting former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner a presidential pardon in the aftermath of the controversial pardon of former President Richard Nixon. "I don't think one abuse of our system of justice deserves another," he said. Kerner, 65, is now serving a three-year prison sentence on charges stemming from a racetrack stock scandal during his term as governor.

Harris cites election donation fears

Illinois Senate President William C. Harris, R-Pontiac, said elections might have to be financed entirely with public funds if private contributions dry up in response to the state's new campaign disclosure law. The campaign law, effective Oct. 1, says candidates and political committees must keep track of all contributions and expenditures over $20 and report those over $150 whenever total donations or expenses for a campaign exceed $1,000.

Senate OKs health manpower bill

The Senate yesterday overwhelmingly approved a health manpower bill requiring medical and dental schools to designate 25 per cent of their students for future service in medically underserved areas. In voting the bill, the senate repudiated attempts by Sen. Edward Kennedy to work towards a doctor draft and federal licensing standards for doctors and dentists. The bill would provide federal aid to medical schools agreeing to allocate 25 per cent of their classroom spaces for students volunteering to serve in big city slums.

$82.5 billion defense bill to White House

The Senate, assured that cuts made in the Pentagon budget would not imperil the nation's security, approved and sent to the White House Tuesday an $82.5 billion defense appropriations bill. The compromise bill, worked out by Senate and House conferees, was approved by voice vote. The House approved the legislation Monday.

Kidnaped girl found safe, nab suspect

The kidnaped 4-year-old daughter of Taft Broadcasting Co. chairman Charles S. Mechem Jr. was found alone and crying, but in good health, in a motel room Tuesday and three hours later police arrested a 29-year-old man they said would be charged with kidnaping her. The suspect is Frank J. Wiechman of Cincinnati, who police said is on parole from three armed robbery charges in Florida.

Promise equal treatment for draft evaders

With only eight draft evaders applying for amnesty this far, the Justice Department disclosed Tuesday it is making extensive preparations to be sure all get equal treatment. Guidelines, standard agreement forms and other instructions are being sent to the 94 U.S. attorneys across the country who are to handle the individual evaders' cases, an official said.

Simon's direction of FEO hit

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., contended yesterday that under Treasury Secretary William Simon's direction the Federal Energy Office had a "pronounced pro-industry bias" that "ripped off" consumers for $38 billion. Dingell opened a three-day hearing on price rules of the FEO and its successor, the Federal Energy Administration, and into allegations of conflicts of interest by FEA employees.

Consumer protection bill backers give up

After four futile attempts to crack a filibuster, supporters of legislation to create a consumer protection agency gave up Tuesday. The primary sponsors of the bill notified Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield they were unable to round up the votes needed to end the filibuster. Mansfield promptly shelved the legislation for the remainder of the session.

Sirica orders tape transcripts hearing

In Washington yesterday U.S. District Judge John Sirica, apparently bowing to defense demands, ordered a hearing on the accuracy of transcripts made from White House tapes by the prosecution for use at the Watergate coverup trial. At a hearing on Monday, Sirica will decide whether the transcripts can be used at the trial at all. The coverup trial is due to begin Oct. 1.

Ration water in Hong Kong

The severest drought in eight years forced Hong Kong authorities yesterday to begin rationing water for its 4 million population. The British Crown Colony's government ordered all nonindustrial fresh water cut off between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. daily in the first phase of rationing. Since 1842, when the colony was founded by the British, fresh water has been a problem.

'Market basket' up $25 in August

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sharp increases in the prices of poultry, eggs and some fruits and vegetables helped raise the cost of a typical market basket of U.S. farm products by $25 in August to a record annual rate of $1,751, an Agriculture Department report showed Tuesday.

The previous record annual price for the market basket was $1,747 set in March of this year, but retail costs had declined in three of the past four months. The August increase was the highest monthly jump in the market basket costs since February, when a $52 increase was reported.

Economists attributed the August figure to sharply widening farm-retail spread price for poultry, eggs and processed fruits and vegetables.

The market basket, which consists of 65 farm-produced goods, represents a collection of items needed to feed a theoretical household of 3.2 persons for the year, but it is not entirely typical of the food an average family would buy.

The farmer's share of the market basket increased 3.1 per cent to $729 in August, compared with $707 in July, but it was down 5.8 per cent from $774 last January. The August farm value of the food items also was 15 per cent lower than the farmer's share one year ago, although the middleman's share has increased 28.3 per cent since August 1973.

The difference between what a farmer receives for his products and the price which the consumer pays widened by .3 per cent in August, increasing to $1,022 compared with $1,019 in July. The farm-retail spread for the market basket food was $906 last January and $790 in August 1973.

Adding to the gloomy prospects, a premature, crop-killing freeze, striking in the aftermath of a stunting summer drought, damaged corn, soybean and vegetable crops across a broad belt of the Midwest this week and threatened to boost prices of food at the grocery counter even more.

Agriculture leaders, agronomists and farmers said the result would be a further slash in farm income and a likely hike in meat prices.

In Detroit, Sarkis Soultanian, executive vice president of the National Utilities Service, said Tuesday that rates of the nation's 50 largest utilities rose an average 55.4 per cent during the first half of 1974. He labeled the soaring costs "alarming" and called for an even break for consumers.

Tie low oil price to cut in food cost

From United Press International

The Emir of Abu Dhabi, ruler of a major oil-exporting country, said Tuesday Arab producers would be willing to cut oil prices if western nations reduce the prices of foodstuffs and manufactured products.

The statement, the most concrete reaction so far to President Ford's effort to talk oil prices down, was made by Sheikh Zayed ben Sultan, elected ruler of the United Arab Emirates and the hereditary emir of oil-rich Abu Dhabi.

Arab radio stations quoted Zayed as telling a meeting of foreign ambassadors in Abu Dhabi, "We would be prepared to reduce oil prices if industrialized countries did likewise and cut the prices of the foodstuffs, and goods they export to us."

"It would be unjust to discuss ways of reducing oil prices while the cost of other commodities remained as they were," he said. He said oil prices were the only prices that had remained stable for the past 20 years.

"Now industrial countries attempt to exploit the situation simply because oil-producing nations have asked for their rights," he said.

Zayed said a new phase in relations between producers and consumers should begin, and "this phase should be based on justice and equality."

Other oil-producing countries reacted with surprise, concern and indignation to President Ford's speech in Detroit on Monday.

A spokesman for the 20-nation Arab League said, "If the United States wants cooperation with the Arabs, one would expect different words from Ford and Kissinger."

The spokesman said Arab foreign ministers attending the U. N. General Assembly session in New York will meet this week to discuss the implications. The meeting was expected Wednesday.

Arab leaders also were expected to discuss the issue at their summit conference Oct. 6 in the Moroccan capital of Rabat.

Rocky answers more questions on nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice presidential nominee Nelson Rockefeller, undergoing a second day of questioning on his nomination before the Senate Rules committee, said former President Richard Nixon's acceptance of a pardon was the same as admission of guilt in the Watergate scandal.

Rockefeller also said his vast wealth and big business connections could potentially influence his actions in the nation's second highest office, but that would "violate the law."

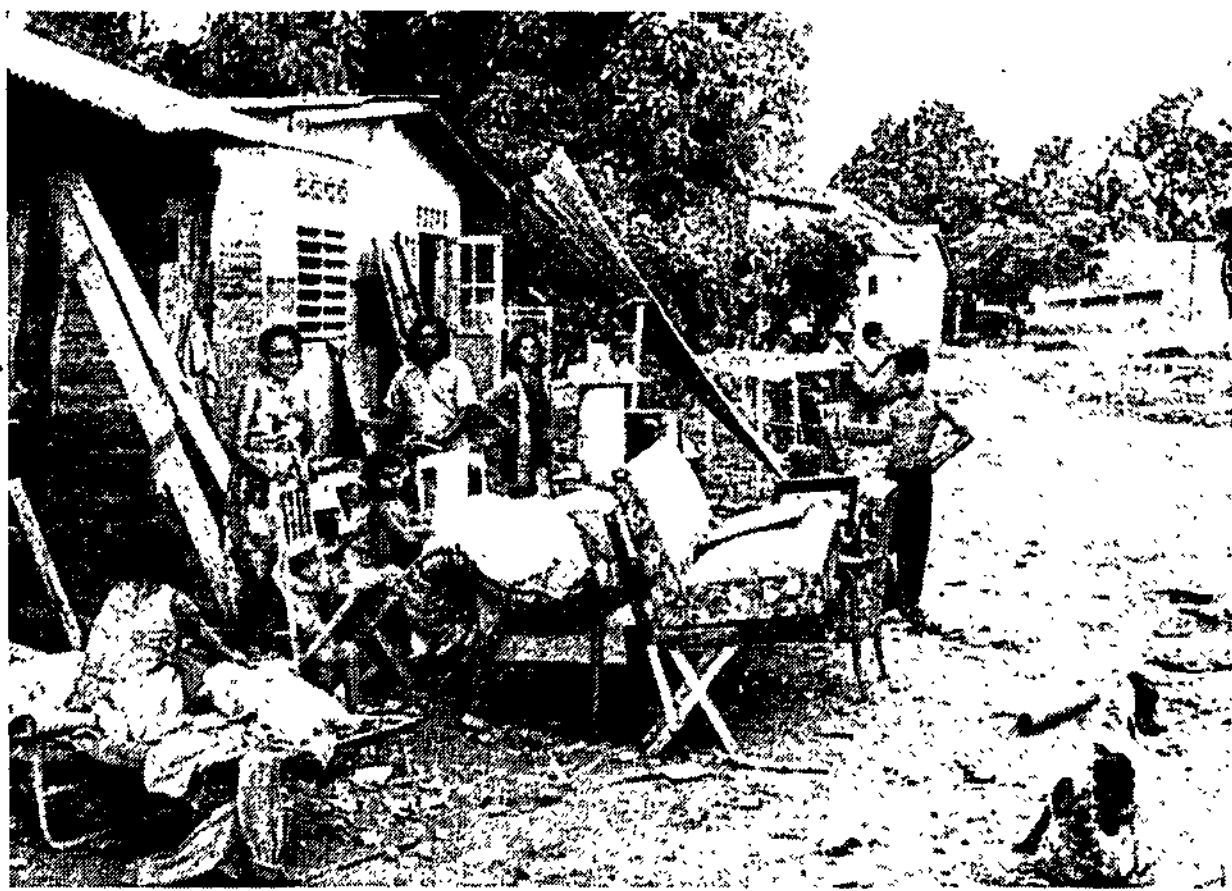

On other subjects Rockefeller rejected the idea that the nation's oil companies had acted to withhold oil supplies to drive up prices. He said the nation would have been faced with a "disaster" during the energy crisis if it had not been for the efforts of U.S. oil firms.

Nixon's treatment begins; early reports are positive

• So far, so good for Richard Nixon in his stay at Long Beach Memorial Hospital. Doctors said Tuesday he began anti-coagulation treatments for his phlebitis almost immediately after his admittance Monday, and has responded well. There's still no word on just how long he'll be hospitalized, but a series of special tests also have been begun to track down the cause of the painful blood clot and vein inflammation condition. Nixon has received about 50 bouquets of flowers, and is "very pleased."

• There was some good news and some bad news Tuesday for Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, banged up over the weekend when he fell off his bicycle after a brush with a car. Doctors at Bethesda Naval Hospital concluded he did not have a dislocated hip, as at first feared. But—besides some rib cage damage and a cut over his left eye—he has a dislocated left shoulder and a broken finger on his right hand, which means a sling for the left arm and a cast for the other hand, and no more written opinions for at least eight weeks.

• President Ford routinely announced Tuesday that George Beall would be appointed to another four-year term as U.

A FAMILY SITS outside home with their possessions after flood waters in Choloma, Honduras subsided. Meanwhile, tons of supplies poured into the hurricane-ravaged area. Rescue workers said, however, there was not enough food to prevent mass starvation, and saw no way to stop widespread epidemics. Looting was widespread, and private property landed in stricken areas were immediately besieged by crowds asking for food.

Promises bigger program to come

Ford wants cooperation against crime

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, declaring crime one of the nation's most pressing problems, announced Tuesday creation of a federal-state program to keep track of professional criminals and speed their prosecution.

"We take the criminal out of circulation," the President said to enthusiastic applause in a speech to the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

"We must make crime hazardous and very costly. We must ensure that swift and prolonged imprisonment will inevitably follow each and every offense. Only then will we deter others from pursuing careers of crime."

Ford acknowledged that "the federal role is essentially supportive and the solution depends upon state and local efforts." But he announced:

"... I have directed the Department of Justice to undertake, in cooperation with the state and local governments, a Career Criminal Impact Program. It will target and keep track of professional criminals."

Ford said the program would "assign priority to cases of habitual criminals and expedite the process by which they are brought to justice."

There also is need for greater citizens' cooperation, "particularly as ready and willing witnesses," Ford said.

"The point in dispute," the President said, "is precisely how crime can be reduced. I have some proposals which I will spell out later both to the nation and to the Congress."

"All this cannot be done by police in isolation," Ford said. "Effective anti-crime management requires the close cooperation of police, prosecutors, courts and corrections..."

"But to reduce the crime rate we need the cooperation of one other party—namely the public. Crime statistics, shocking as they are, often show us only the top of the iceberg. Too much crime goes unreported. A lot of witnesses never show up, especially after the fourth or fifth continuance."

The approximately 1,800 police chiefs and their representatives, and others in an audience estimated at around 4,000 at the Washington Hilton Hotel, gave Ford a standing ovation before and after his speech and interrupted him seven times with applause.

House votes overwhelmingly to end Turkey military aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Tuesday voted overwhelmingly to cut off military aid to Turkey while it keeps heavy military forces in Cyprus, but refused to approve a similar ban on arms for Greece.

The ban was included as an amendment to an otherwise routine bill — approved 374 to 26 — to continue funding of government agencies which have not yet received their 1975 appropriations.

In another roll call vote, the House refused 291 to 108 to bar the Central Intelligence Agency from using its funds to foment overthrow of foreign governments.

The move to cut Turkey off the military aid rolls was approved 307 to 90 despite warnings from Democratic as well as Republican leaders that it would endanger Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's efforts to get a settlement between Greece and Turkey.

The provision reads that military aid to Turkey would end until "the President certifies to Congress that substantial progress toward settlement has been made regarding military forces in Cyprus."

Meanwhile, Kissinger Tuesday personally plunged into the diplomatic effort to reach a peaceful solution to the Cyprus dilemma, meeting separately and at length with the foreign ministers of Greece, Turkey and Great Britain.

"The object of this general effort is to see if we can find common ground among the parties for a solution," said Kissinger spokesman Robert O. Anderson.

Kissinger told reporters in New York he was ready to become directly involved if necessary, and scheduled a second meeting Sunday night with Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros and a second meeting with Turkish Foreign Minister Turgut Gunes early Monday morning.

Questioned at the end of his meeting with Mavros, Kissinger said he doubted he would stop off in Cyprus when he visits the Middle East next month, but he added: "The U.S. is prepared to do what is useful, including, if necessary, my direct involvement."

Rumsfeld named Ford's top aide in White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Tuesday named NATO Ambassador Donald Rumsfeld as his top White House aide replacing Gen. Alexander Haig — the last of the holdovers from Richard M. Nixon's administration.

Rumsfeld, 42, will take over the Cabinet-rank job as chief of staff after Ford selects a successor for the Brussels post. This is expected "very soon," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters.

Haig will take command of U.S. forces in Europe Nov. 1 and become supreme commander of NATO forces Dec. 15.

"It's a Ford White House now," said Nessen, "and it's not a Nixon White House."

Rumsfeld who served four terms as congressman from Illinois' 13th District, has been U.S. ambassador to NATO since February, 1973.

"The Wonderful Land of Oz" ice show will be held today through Saturday (Sept. 29) at the Woodfield Ice Arena. Showtimes are 1, 4 and 7:30 p.m. weekdays and 11 a.m., 1 and 4 p.m. Saturday. The show is free.

FBI AGENTS WERE continuing the investigation to determine if Ricciardi, who used the alias "Mr. Carroll," had been involved in previous industrial spying.

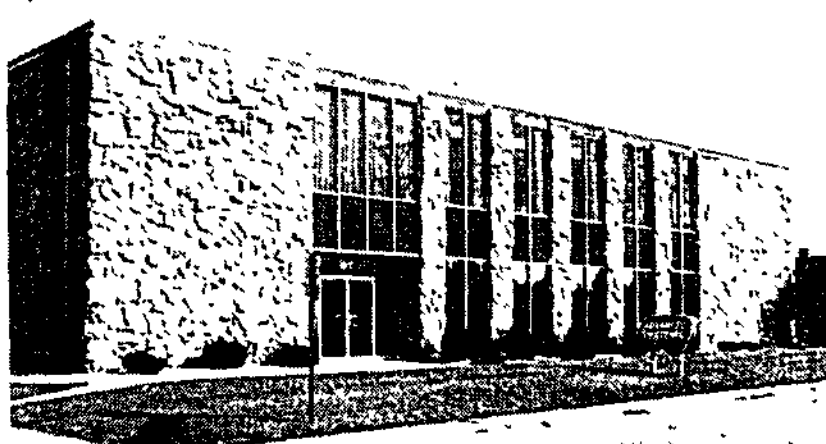

Ricciardi apparently worked out of his briefcase during his effort to sell the stolen documents. He made several calls to Advance Systems to arrange the meeting. Hotel officials said neither Ricciardi or Mr. Carroll were registered Monday.

One Advance Systems official agreed that Ricciardi was probably "not too smart" in just making a call to their offices.

"I guess he probably was just taking his best shot," and trying to unload his merchandise," he added.

THE OFFICIALS SAID Ricciardi sounded "very nervous" over the phone when he contacted the company.

"This guy appeared to be money-motivated all the way," he said. Government investigators said Ricciardi had not offered any explanation for his attempt to market the stolen data.

The FBI said he is scheduled to appear today before a federal magistrate in an effort to have his bond reduced.

Wheeling to stay in blood program until Jan. 1

The Beverly Blood Bank Tuesday said it will sponsor Wheeling's blood plan until Jan. 1 and added it is not dropping the village because of its failure to meet its donation quota.

Beverly officials said the Wheeling Community Blood Plan will be transferred to the North Suburban Blood Center next year because of a boundary change. They said NSBC will be able to better serve Wheeling because of its nearby location in Northbrook.

The blood plan received only 460 pints of blood this year, far below its quota in the cooperative blood replacement program.

James Bronson, outgoing chairman of the blood plan, said 64 residents donated blood at last weekend's drive, but that was not enough to bring the village up to its annual quota of 700 pints.

LAST YEAR, THE village fell about 270 pints short of its quota, but the program was continued because enough blood was collected to cover the needs of the community.

The annual donation requirements of the NSBC officials need not be reached for comment Tuesday on whether their program will continue to carry the village in the event it does not meet its quota.

Should the village fall short of its quota, those who have donated and members of their immediate families are guaranteed free blood replacement for as long as they need it.

Donors must be 18 to 65 years old and weigh least 110 pounds. A person can donate blood every eight weeks, to a maximum of five times a year.

Sidewalks will be topic for school parley

Sidewalks along two Prospect Heights streets will be discussed at tonight's continuation of a Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education meeting. The proposal would have a sidewalk along the west side of Schoenbeck Road from Hintz Road to Camp McDonald Road and along the north side of Camp McDonald Road from Elm Street to Elmhurst Road.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the administration center. Schoenbeck and Frontage roads.

According to one proponent of the sidewalk plan, the sidewalks, which would probably be paved rather than cement, would be located in the street easement. "A service pathway is proposed," said Maureen Sandstrom, 101 W. Ridge Ave., Prospect Heights. She said the pathway would be of aid to both school children and senior citizens particularly.

Mrs. Sandstrom said the school board apparently has the legal authority to build sidewalks within a half-mile distance from a school. Several schools are located within the proposed stretch of sidewalk area. She spoke before the Prospect Heights Board of Park Commissioners, while soliciting its backing for the proposal.

Park Board President Max Lyle said, "They (sidewalks) absolutely are needed for safety over there (in the proposed area)."

Bike-safety program set at 8 schools

Students in eight elementary schools will have a chance to test their bike riding and safety Friday at school.

The Buffalo Grove Police Dept. will conduct bike safety tests and award ribbons to students who pass the tests. Students also will receive a notice showing areas where they need improvement.

The testing stations will be manned with volunteers from the Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club, and the school PTA or PTO.

Schools participating in the testing are: Twin Groves, 1072 Ivy Hall Ln., Buffalo Grove; Willow Grove, 777 Checker Dr., Buffalo Grove; Alcott School, 530 Bernard Dr., Buffalo Grove; Irving School, 1250 Radcliffe, Buffalo Grove; Kilmer School, 655 Golfview Terr., Buffalo Grove; Longfellow School, 501 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Buffalo Grove; Tarkington School, 310 S. Scott St., Wheeling, and St. Mary's School, 75 N. Buffalo Grove Rd., Buffalo Grove.

June by arsonists, has quickly taken shape and is expected to be reopened by mid-October.

During the summer months and continuing into the school year, volunteers from the community worked with school librarians to refurbish what they could and order and catalog thousands of books that had to be replaced.

STACKS OF BOOKS have been coming in daily since August; about 6,000 have been processed and are ready for circulation. More than 22,000 books were destroyed by the fire and many cannot be replaced because they are no longer in print, said Margery Petty, librarian.

Replacements for books that cannot be duplicated are being sought at this time. But the shelves are being stocked and will be ready as soon as the library is completed.

The refurbished library will have an improved lighting system and new color scheme of off-white walls, blue tweed carpeting and gold fixtures.

The remodeled facilities will have the same type of wooden furniture as the old library. "We tried to stay with wooden stacks and tables," said Mrs. Petty. "It makes a pleasant, warm room."

Although the style of furniture in the old library no longer is made, the district put in a special order for the same style from the furniture manufacturer.

A LARGE PORTION of the work behind the scenes to get the books ready was done by community volunteers. "A lot of people cared and pitched in," said Mrs. Petty. "It's grimy work. The ladies gave a lot of their time without expecting any repayment. It made up for a lot of the shock we had."

Volunteers worked to help clean about 100,000 smoke-damaged cards in the card catalog.

They also tried to save the periodicals that were damaged when the exhaust system pulled the smoke into the room where they were stored and left them blackened with soot.

Wallpaper cleaner salvaged many of the periodicals, but the school still is looking for complete editions of magazines from the community.

The audiovisual equipment also was damaged by the fire, but volunteers cleaned it during the summer. "It's clean and working but smoke increases the oxidation rate and things that could rust, may rust," said Wallace Carlsdelt, audio-visual director. He said the extent of the damage to the media equipment won't be known for sometime.

WHEELING HAS BEEN operating with a make-shift library this fall. The English resource center was converted into a library room and is housing many of the books that have been received and cataloged.

The Wheeling Public Library also has cooperated by allowing students to use the facility during the day and by loaning sets of books that are needed for specific class assignments, said Mrs. Petty.

The other high schools in Dist. 214 have also helped fill in the void left by the library fire by sharing their facilities and books with students at Wheeling.

But soon the ravaged room will be a nightmare of the past as students use the new facility and are the first to open the books that line the shelves.

$10,000 bond set in bank robbery

A U.S. magistrate Tuesday set bond at $10,000 for accused bank robber Robert F. Mason, 50, of 1286 Wheeling Rd., Mount Prospect.

Mason, who did not make bond, is being held by the U.S. Marshal's Office. He is charged with armed robbery in the Monday stickup of the Richmond (Ill.) State Bank.

Mason allegedly went up to a cashier at the bank and, pointing a gun, demanded money. He was given $8,215, which has since been recovered, McHenry County Sheriff's Police said. Sheriff's police captured Mason shortly after the robbery at a roadblock on Ill. Rte. 31 near McHenry.

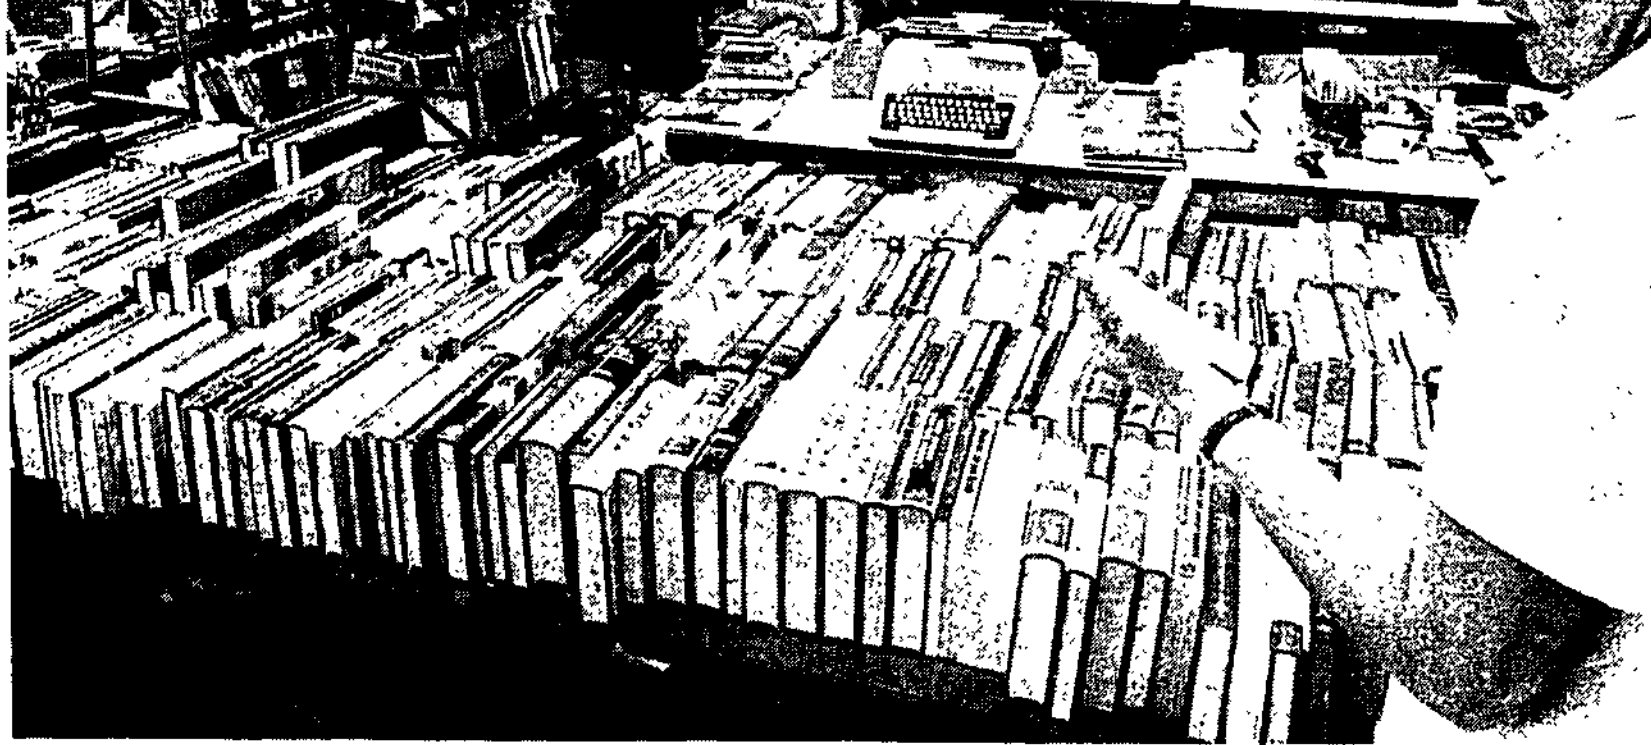

No date for a preliminary hearing has been set for Mason. Mason has been charged by the FBI.

House unit OKs funds for watershed plan

Application for $2.5 million in federal funds for the Salt Creek Watershed combined flood-control and recreation project was approved Tuesday by a U.S. House of Representatives subcommittee.

The measure, which already has passed the Senate, now will be brought before the House Public Works Committee and, if approved, will then go before the full House. House passage will then bring the application to the Office of Management and Budget for authorization.

The estimated $33 million dam and improvement project is proposed for the Busse Woods retention basin area of the

Group needs women volunteers

LWV to 'watchdog' area meetings

Area women are needed to serve as governmental watchdogs in the observer program operated in six villages by the League of Women Voters of the Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect Area.

The observer's job is to report to the local league chapter what happens at the various board meetings and to make sure that the open meeting law is not violated. The observer program is part of a national league effort to cover governmental activities on all levels.

Although the observer program is not new, the league has found it difficult to provide continuous coverage in all six of its towns. In Mount Prospect, for example, a league observer has just been assigned to the village board, which has been without an observer for the past three or four years.

Janet Yauch, 515 N. Forest Ave., Mount Prospect, said she took the village board assignment so she could get "more in tune with Mount Prospect." Last year she observed the library board meetings in her town, but moved to the village board so that someone with less time could fill the less demanding library board observer post.

THE PROBLEM with filling the observer posts, according to Mrs. Yauch, is that it is difficult to "get women out of the house at night." She said most members of the league either work or have small children making it difficult for them to get away in the evening.

Currently, the league has observers for village board meetings in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village and Buffalo Grove. In addition, observers are attending library board meetings in Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village.

Beverly Tyrcba, head of the local observer program, said she still has not found observers for any of the governmental meetings in Wheeling or Prospect Heights. "Of course, we have to ask people to cover things in their own town," she said. Persons interested in the observer program are asked to call 394-5210.

Ideally, Mrs. Yauch said the league should have observers at all park district, school district and township meetings, as well as the board meetings of Harper College.

THE OBSERVERS are given guidelines set out by the National League of Women Voters to help them in their watchdog capacity. If any irregularities are found at the meetings, the observers must report back to the league's board to see what action should be taken.

"The league's motto is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government," Mrs. Yauch said. "News-papers are fine, but nothing beats being there."

In some cases, the observer often attends meetings that are not even covered by the newspapers. Mrs. Yauch said that during her year of observing the Mount Prospect Library Board she was usually the only non-board member at the meetings.

New warning sirens in use by spring?

by JOHN MAES

A new Civil Defense outdoor warning siren system may be operational in Buffalo Grove by next spring, village officials say.

The system combines the use of three sirens, placed strategically in various village locations and would be designed primarily to alert residents to tornado warnings in the Buffalo Grove area.

The matter is currently in the hands of the village board and bid-letting procedures may be initiated next month, said Village Pres. Gary Armstrong.

Ultimately, the project will cost $20,000, half of which is expected to come from matching federal funds.

DUE TO THE village's current financial problems however, Armstrong said the sirens will have to be bought and installed one at a time. Previously appropriated funds for the project were removed from this year's budget so other necessary expenses could be met.

One siren will be obtained early next year, said Armstrong and the other two will be ordered in periods about six months apart when allotments in next year's budget can be made.

A study submitted to the board by Civil Defense Director Paul Soucy shows the proposed system can make emergency signals audible to between 95 and 98 per cent of Buffalo Grove residents.

DATA COMPILED by the Federal Sign and Signal Corp., Blue Island, shows that sirens should be placed on the northern, southern and eastern edges of the village but specific sites for the installations have not been discussed.

Fire Chief Wayne Winter said, however, that normally all village residents would be able to hear the signal.

One siren is currently located atop the old firehouse that now houses the park district administration center, 150 Raupp Blvd. Winter said that siren is small and covers only about a six-block radius of the village. "We've outgrown that," he said Tuesday.

The old siren was once used to summon volunteer firefighters when a fire broke out, but Winter said his men now carry radio units that alert them to calls and said the siren is no longer needed for that purpose.

At a workshop session after Monday night's village board meeting, some trustees expressed concern that the system might become a noise nuisance to residents if the sirens were not used "sparingly."

Armstrong wondered where the sirens would be located and whether they could be placed at a height above the 35-foot minimum required by the federal government.

"TRUSTEE THOMAS MAHONEY indicated residents might become angry if the sirens were activated too often such as every time severe rains are reported."

Winter pointed out Tuesday, however, the sirens would be activated from the police department during severe weather only when a tornado warning message is received by teletype from the state police.

Tornado warnings are issued when tornadoes have actually been sighted and are different from tornado watches, or signals meaning residents should be on the alert for a possible tornado.

Confusion was caused in several northwest suburban communities earlier this year when sirens were sounded during severe weather conditions even though no tornado had been sighted in some towns.

Winter said however, when the Buffalo Grove sirens are installed, they will be activated, "only when a tornado has been sighted and is in the area."

If you blow them too many times," he said, "people get blasé about it."

Day care for elderly a good idea

It's a tragic part of American life that, when you're old enough to retire, American society would just as soon forget that you ever lived.

Too many older persons, rather than enjoying a leisurely retirement existence of companionship and worth, find instead that they are shunted into social isolation.

We owe far too much to our parents to let that kind of isolation happen — and that's why the idea of day-care for the elderly is an idea which our suburban institutions should consider.

As documented by Staff Writer Eleanor Rives, day care for the elderly is a growing fact of life in urban centers across the nation. The elderly are offered all-day activities, for which they are offered transportation and for which there's only a minimal charge.

A program in Chicago could serve as a model for development of a local program. The Angel Guardian program, funded with state and federal money, is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Arts and crafts, group intellectual activities, social and entertainment events and just casual conversation mark the program. The cost depends on what you can afford to pay, and there are health services available.

Officials stress that these are not baby-sitting programs, but a chance for the elderly to participate in programs designed to bring out their capabilities, as well as keeping them in society, rather than permitting them to lapse into the pallid world of too many hours alone blankly watching daytime TV.

To date development of such programs has been primarily urban. The Northwest suburbs, although providing many senior citizen activities, do not provide any full-scale programs. Such adult day-care centers were urged by the 1971 White House Conference on Aging, which emphasized alternatives to institutional care for older persons.

Two Northwest suburban private nursing homes have offered programs to aid a small number of persons. However, private and public agencies in our area should consider the possible development of a wider scale program to serve the large number of elderly in the suburbs who are not yet ready for full-time institutional care but who

Clark Mollenhoff's 'Watch on Washington'

Drop 'privilege' rule, Ford asked

by CLARK R. MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON — The "openness and candor" pledged by President Ford will undergo an early test with a congressional investigation of alleged perjury and security violations by an aide to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The challenge is being pushed by one of President Ford's long-time friends, U.S. Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, in connection with a House Internal Security Committee investigation involving State Department Counsel Helmut Sonnenfeldt.

President Ford will be asked to set aside one of President Nixon's last invocations of "executive privilege," a rebuke to the House Committee's demands for testimony and documents from an FBI investigation of Sonnenfeldt.

The Nixon letter was written on July 31, at the request of Secretary of State Kissinger, to bar congressional investigators from State Department records and testimony that may prove that Sonnenfeldt is a liar.

The House Internal Security Committee, chaired by U.S. Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., has already heard several witnesses in closed sessions, including Stephen Koczak, director of research for the American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE), and Otto F. Otepka, a former chief security evaluator at the State Department.

The Nixon administration avoided production of records on Sonnenfeldt when the Watergate scandals were the center of the nation's attention.

The basic principles of executive branch accountability to the Congress are as much a part of the Sonnenfeldt controversy as they were in the Watergate affair, according to Rep. Ashbrook.

Ashbrook believes that if Sonnenfeldt is telling the truth about the resolution of a security investigation in the early 1960's in his favor, that "Secretary of State Kissinger should be eager to get all of the records out on the table to prove it."

Ashbrook said it is not the contention of any witnesses that Sonnenfeldt has been involved in any recent security violation in his most recent role as Kissinger's Soviet-American specialist on the National Security Council (NSC), where he has had a leading role in the SALT talks and the Soviet grain sales.

But a number of the witnesses say Sonnenfeldt lied to the FBI and the Senate Finance Committee when he was up for confirmation as President Nixon's under-secretary of the Treasury for East-West trade programs.

The nomination was stalled through 1973, and was finally withdrawn by Nixon after Kissinger was named Secretary of State, replacing William P. Rogers.

Sonnenfeldt's nomination was then submitted to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to be counselor at the State Department. Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., on Kissinger's urging, pushed the hearings quickly through his committee without bothering to hear the witnesses who had appeared against Sonnenfeldt before the Senate Finance Committee.

Chairman Fulbright didn't even put Sonnenfeldt under oath when questioning him about his background, in preparation for confirming him in one of the most important foreign relations roles at State. The Committee didn't even bother to seek the records that the House Internal Security Committee is now demanding which they had been informed would show that Sonnenfeldt had perjured himself.

Since last December, the State Depart-

Mail backs Betty Ford

Abortion stand defended

by HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

First Lady Betty Ford is getting some protest calls about her stand in favor of abortion under certain limited circumstances. But, mostly her mail has been what one aide calls "supportive." Since she moved into the White House, Mrs. Ford has freely expressed her views — when asked — and they tend to be on the progressive side.

She has a staff that admires her and is happy that she gets what often is called a "good press" — reportage that is largely favorable. Her remarks are spontaneous and she is quick witted.

President Ford once wryly commented that he could not control the opinions of his four children, and so he wouldn't try. He can probably say that in spades for his wife, who is somewhat more liberal than he on most issues.

"I like to sleep in my own bed," says the President, trying to explain his rationale for the frequent one-day out of town trips. And there will be many more next month. But that has been the story of his life during his 25 years in Congress and his wife says the fact that he has about 15 appointments a day, starting at 8 in the morning and ending at 7 — or much later — is the rule rather than the exception.

He appears to genuinely like people — and especially the press.

After the Nixon years when the press seemed to be viewed as an "enemy" by the White House, correspondents are happy to hear that Ford does not take umbrage from their tough questions.

Speaking of reporters, Ford said recently, "I love their company, I love the competition" and as for news conference sparring, he said "I really look forward to it. I hope I give as much as I take. I don't feel any animosity for anyone for asking a question."

A White House swimming pool definitely appears to be in the presidential picture.

An announcement is expected in the next several days on construction of a pool to be located on the site of the air conditioned kennels outside the Oval Office.

A campaign permitting the public to participate in the funding is expected to be announced. No federal funds will be used for the project, which could run as high as $300,000.

Ford still sorely misses the swimming pool he left behind at his Alexandria, Va., home. The White House did have an indoor pool of its own but President Nixon had it covered over to make space for a new press center above it.

The First Family is definitely planning to spend its traditional winter skiing vacation at Vail, Colo., over the Christmas Holiday but will probably borrow another home for the season.

The condominium apartment which the Fords own at Vail is not considered suitable for Presidential security since it is located on the third floor.

A White House aide said the Fords may swap homes with friends.

So far there has been no move on the part of the Fords to establish a second White House for their vacations.

The President is well aware that the American taxpayer is in no mood to subsidize presidential homes after the heavy spending on former President Nixon's homes at San Clemente, Calif. and Key Biscayne, Fla.

Pat Nixon loved to dance but had few chances to twirl on the White House dance floor except on her daughter Tricia Cox's wedding day. She never looked happier nor gayer than when her husband asked her for the first dance.

After a state dinner, Mrs. Nixon would always appear to be looking back in longing as her protocol minded husband would escort her to the family elevator to end their social evening while their guests stayed on and enjoyed themselves downstairs.

Nixon would retreat to work usually in the Lincoln Sitting Room. Mrs. Nixon would hear the music floating to the family quarters but without an impulse to go back down again.

At San Clemente, mail from well wishers continues to pour in and Mrs. Nixon is trying to keep up with it as she always has. She is rarely seen in public.

Congressman attacked

As a firm believer in the traditional, open form of American campaign, which fosters a real exchange of viewpoint on relevant issues, I am disappointed that the candidates for the Tenth District Congressional seat were unable to agree upon settings and conditions for their proposed debates.

While I can appreciate Mr. Young's contention that his duties do not allow time for such debates, I was perplexed to see a recent half page advertisement in a local paper. The ad, sponsored by the "Young for Congress — 1974 committee," invited the public to attend the "all star tennis tournament" on Sunday, September 22, from 3 to 5. Featured were Sam Young, Charles Percy, George Burditt, and Brad Glass. I think it odd that while Mr. Young can take time from his congressional duties to play tennis, he has no time to debate his opponent in person.

Our democratic system can work only with an informed and intelligent electorate. They can be informed at an open forum, such as a debate, or by drawing conclusions about the candidates' priorities. So keep running the "Swing with Sam" ads, Mr. Young, and see how intelligent the voters in the tenth congressional district are.

Kinsolving supported

I regret that reader S. B. Miller was offended by the Religion Today column by Reverend Kinsolving. I subscribe to The Herald primarily to read his column. I have observed that, in most cases, whatever critical views he expresses are justified.

A case in point was his column, "Was power of prayer exaggerated." The abuse this article discussed was recently illustrated in the case of a Northbrook father who refused to permit his injured son to receive medical care because of religious objections, conceding only under threat of a court order and after a seven-hour delay. By exposing cases similar to this in his article, Reverend Kinsolving did much to arouse the public against this sort of thing and cause them to seek a remedy. The chances of a bill in Springfield dealing with this problem were certainly helped by this exposure.

I commend The Herald for publishing the views of this outspoken man, and will continue to look forward to reading his column.

Assessor applauded

I recently had occasion to inquire of Marshall Theroux, Wheeling Township assessor, about some tax bills. Within 10 minutes he had looked up the records and had an answer for me.

I want to thank Mr. Theroux for this quick service. To me it was an example of how township government can serve the people on a local and convenient basis.

That ol' Bicentennial fever's catching on

by KAREN BLECHIA

The 198 candles on America's birthday cake have barely cooled and Bicentennial commissions throughout the Northwest suburbs already are getting ready for America's 200th.

An old-fashioned picnic with old-fashioned prices, spelling bees, ice cream socials and even a mock Revolutionary War battle may be in store for residents when it comes time to celebrate in 1975 and 1976. And while skeptics say the average citizen just doesn't care about the anniversary, chairman of the local commissions are certain the excitement of the celebration will catch on.

"I think this is going to be the best damn holiday we ever had," said Kurt Telchert, chairman of the Mount Prospect Bicentennial Commission. "I really believe it. Even with Watergate and everything else going on, once people start getting involved in the Bicentennial they'll start feeling the old patriotism and there will be a lot of flag-waving."

THE NORTHWEST suburbs are among villages, cities and counties throughout Illinois that are making plans for the U.S. Bicentennial, said Patrick Murray, regional coordinator of the Illinois Bicentennial Commission. He said that more than 230,000 residents have volunteered their time to work on the festivities.

"People are responding extremely well," he said, adding that aside from red-white-and-blue license plates in 1976 the state is leaving the celebration up to local communities.

In Illinois, the official celebration will run from July 5, 1975 through Dec. 3, 1976. In the Northwest suburbs, some committees will commemorate the anniversary only during 1976; others will start celebrating in 1975. Most of the suburbs will depend heavily on locally raised or government appropriated funds for the celebration, although some state money will be available. Murray said $400,000 would be doled out in a matching grant program.

DWIGHT WALTON, chairman of the Bicentennial Commission in Arlington Heights, said that how the local communities respond to the Bicentennial depends on how stimulating the commissions make the programs.

"It depends on if we do our job right and I think we are," he said. "It's a little too early for everyone to be excited, but I think as time draws closer they will be enthusiastic and attend the events."

In Des Plaines, as in the other suburbs, the celebration is a grassroots effort planned by people from every sector of the community.

"These people represent different general interests and different walks of life," said Des Plaines Fire Dept. Capt. David Wolf, in charge of the Des Plaines celebration. "They all are dedicated to the principle that Des Plaines is a fine community and we want to develop a really meaningful Bicentennial program. Our mandate is to make our citizens aware of the fact that America is one heck of a place to live."

DES PLAINE, Arlington Heights and Schaumburg have been recognized as official Bicentennial communities by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration in Washington, D.C. This means each town has developed projects in three areas: heritage, festival and horizons. Heritage and festival programs commemorate the past; horizon projects are those that will benefit the future.

In Schaumburg, plans call for a special Bicentennial Septemberfest in 1976, restoration of a one-room school house at Roselle and Schaumburg roads and development of the Spring Valley Nature Restoration area, several hundred acres on the east side of the village.

The Arlington Heights commission will develop a park around proposed Lake Arlington and help the Arlington Heights Park District with its proposed Prairie Farm, a replica of a typical 1890s farm. Other possible projects, Walton said, include essay contests, spelling bee, craft shows, ice cream socials and working with both the Arlington Heights library and historical society on special projects.

A major Bicentennial project in Des Plaines is preservation of a 30-acre tract of land believed to be one of the few virgin prairies left in the state. However, the Chicago and North Western Transportation Co., which owns the land, is not willing to sell it and the project is in limbo, Wolf said.

ALSO UNDER consideration as projects for Des Plaines are turning the current municipal building into a "heritage hall" and acquiring and restoring the old Socrates Rand Mill or the Earl home complex at Minder Street and River Road.

A big July 4 parade and old-fashioned picnic with hamburgers and corn back at the old day prices, maybe a nickel, are being planned for 1976 in Mount Prospect. In Palatine, the Bicentennial commission is considering staging a mock Revolutionary War battle, complete with muskets and uniforms.

Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates and Elk Grove Village are just getting started working on the Bicentennial. Rolling Meadows is the only suburb in the area not yet making any plans.

"We've got nothing set up yet for 1976. We're working on the 1975 celebration of Rolling Meadows' 20th birthday," said Thomas Waldron, chairman of the Rolling Meadows Public Information and Education Commission. "We haven't even thought about the Bicentennial yet."

CHARGES HAVE been made that the Bicentennial will only be a celebration for big business, that commercialization will take over the festivities and merchants will try to market everything from red, white and blue pens, pins and pennants to red, white and blue ice cream. Spokesman for both Woodfield and Randhurst shopping centers said merchants in the two centers have decided they will do nothing to commercialize the anniversary.

"We will have promotions in the mall to promote our country and to show we are proud of America," said Margaret Irwin, public relations director at Randhurst. "But our merchants have decided not to commercialize on such a meaningful event. We will definitely not degrade it."

Study aims to find out

Sewage plants a health hazard?

Does living near a sewage-treatment plant mean your family will get more colds — or does it threaten you with even more serious disease?

That's a question scientists will be studying in a project underway in the area of the Salt Creek Water Reclamation Plant in Schaumburg Township this week.

The study, funded by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and conducted by Southwest Research Institute, a private, non-profit organization, begins with door-to-door surveys of 1,000 homes within two miles of the plant site.

THE STUDY IS aimed at finding out whether the biologic organisms and trace metals that are given off by the aeration process at the plant have any effect on health.

There have in the past been only limited studies of the possibility of airborne disease from sewage-treatment works, and this study is aimed at expanding scientific knowledge on the subject, said Dirk Dahlman, research planner for Southwest Research Institute of San Antonio, Tex.

Dahlman said the EPA funds numerous sewage-treatment plant construction projects across the country each year and wants more specific scientific studies about the actual effects of the plants.

Dahlman cautioned that there is no reason to believe that health problems will increase once the Salt Creek Plant begins operations in April.

The study begins now so that the health of the people who live near the plant can be compared to their health at intervals of six months and a year after the plant opens.

Scientists also will take air, water and soil samples within the area to check for organisms and trace metals, Dahlman said.

THE SALT CREEK Plant, which will provide treatment of water to 99 per cent purity was chosen for the study both because of its plans to begin operations soon and because it is in a populous area, Dahlman said.

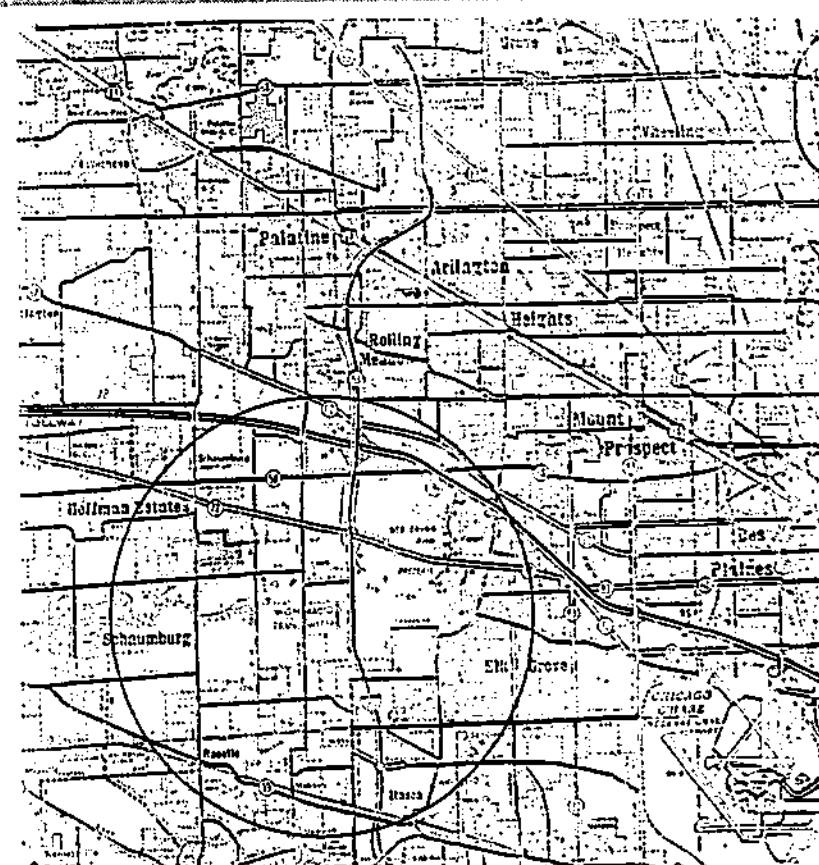

In addition to the current survey of residents, a similar study of 1,000 households also is planned, Dahlman said.

Interviewers will seek information about the ages of residents who live in the households and ask questions about frequency of colds, headaches, rashes, sore throats or other respiratory diseases during the last two months.

In addition, he said, certain families who fit the statistical requirements of age and home location will be asked to participate in a paid part of the survey.

THE 250 PAID participants will be asked to bring urine, feces, blood and hair samples to a meeting location in the area and to have a throat culture taken, Dahlman said. They will be paid $12.50 for the samples and will receive a $25 bonus for participating in all four samplings throughout the 18-month period. Dahlman said a family of four could earn up to $300 by participating in the paid survey.

Dahlman said that while the over-all results of the survey will have to be released by the federal EPA, the research institute has agreed to report any serious diseases it finds in participants as a result of the sampling program to a volunteer's doctor, if the volunteer requests it.

PARTS OF UNINCORPORATED areas and of Schaumburg, Roselle, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village and Itasca are included in the circled area on this map, which shows households to be surveyed this week on health effects of the Salt Creek sewage plant.

ENGROSSED IN THEIR music are two members of The Extensioners, a kitchen band made up of senior citizens from Hoffman Estates. The group performed Sunday at the village's 15th anniversary celebration.

Credit cards

Consumer still has problems when he (she) disputes charges

BY MONICA WILCH PERIN

Mary F. of Arlington Heights was vacationing in Spain with her trusty "you don't need anything else" credit card — American Express. She found out that as the saying goes, with a friend like that in her pocket, she didn't need any enemies.

It all started when she rented a car in Madrid from an agency of Kemwell International of New York. She charged the car rental to her American Express account.

From the outset, Miss F. said, the car displayed numerous deficiencies, such as doors that wouldn't open and an engine that stalled on upgrades and at stop signs.

Twelve days later, as Miss F. was driving the car in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the brakes failed. She recalled her spine-tingling experience:

"THE CAR WENT around and down curves between 40-60 KM (kilometers) for at least 3 to 4 KM. After a most agonizing period, the car was finally brought to a stop in Beznar. I was fortunate to be alive..."

According to Mary F.'s account of her ordeal, she experienced little cooperation or concern from the several local offices of the car rental agency, was obliged to lose 20 hours of time getting the car repaired — and ended up paying $39.00 out of her pocket for the repairs, telephone calls and a night's lodging.

When she turned the car in three days later at Torresmollines, Spain, the rental agent there, ignoring her tale of woe, insisted that she was required to return the car with a full tank of gas. She said she was unaware of any such requirement, and he then told her to sign what he said was a statement to that effect.

"BUT UNWITTINGLY," Miss F. later discovered, "my signature appeared in the space where the lessee accepts and agrees to the charges. My signature was not affixed with that intention... as I did not then, or now, accept or agree to the charges."

"Since this car was rented out in such a poor mechanical condition (which) could have resulted in a serious accident or loss of my life, I feel no obligation toward the remaining rental charges. In fact, I am looking for a reimbursement from the agency."

Upon rereading the contract, she also discovered it contained no requirement regarding the gas tank, and she theorizes the agent "used that line so that I would sign the (rental) form."

WHEN SHE returned to the United States, Miss F. immediately informed American Express of her experience, urging that they take up the matter with their client before paying any charges — and also requesting reimbursement for her out-of-pocket expenses.

She also pointed out that she had not authorized any charges against her American Express credit card, since the Madrid office had not made out any charge form for her signature at the time of rental.

But American Express sent her a bill anyway, along with a rental charge form processed in Torresmollines — not Madrid — and not bearing her signature.

She also received a letter from her American Express customer representative assuring her that "we understand how you feel; however, American Express acts as a billing agent only. Disputes such as yours between card members and establishments must be handled directly."

IN ENSUING MONTHS, more bills, final notices and delinquency credit reports were issued, while correspondence between Mary F. and various American Express officials flew back and forth.

But the upshot was, and still is, that Miss F. must pay up, and if she has any dispute with the rental agency, she must settle it with them. In the meantime, of course, American Express had already paid off its client, the rental agency, leaving the latter with little incentive to make any adjustments with Miss F.

Ironically, the rental agency's contract states that the agency "has taken all necessary precautions to prevent mechanical failure," and "in case of mechanical breakdown... repair costs will be refunded against receipted bills, should repairs be made by workshops other than" the agency's. Mary F. has been unable to obtain even this legally sanctioned reimbursement either from the agency or through American Express.

IT IS PERHAPS also ironic that the only reimbursement Miss F. has received — $10.83 for telephone calls, lodging and gas occasioned by the brake failure — was secured from Kemwell in New York by a single letter from Miss F.'s Rolling Meadows travel agency. Miss F. concludes that American Express has not even tried to help her — although they insist they have sent some cables on her behalf. She points out that American Express would surely carry at least as much weight as a small, suburban travel agency.

American Express did not respond to a written inquiry from The Herald on this case.

The problem of the non-responsibility of third parties in credit transactions is certainly not limited to American Express, but this incident is a typical illustration of consumers' plight.

THE FEDERAL TRADE Commission has proposed a remedy to this situation, but the agency has dawdled nearly four years over the issue and still failed to take any action on it.

The proposal — on which hearings were held in Chicago last year — would prohibit credit card issuers from waiving the rights and remedies of card holders. It is officially entitled "Preservation of Consumers' Claims and Defenses."

As American Express reminded Mary F., the present terms, to which any credit card holder automatically agrees when he signs the card, release the card issuer from any responsibility in disputes over goods and services purchased with the card. The terms forbid the card holder from pressing any claims against the card issuer, as Miss F. has tried to do.

CREDIT CARD issuers and others in the financial community have fought the FTC proposal vigorously because it will make their bill collection a much messier and more uncertain affair.

Credit card issuers warn that making them accountable for the goods and services of their clients will result in higher costs and tighter credit for consumers.

The Federal Trade Commission reportedly is reviewing a staff report on the issue this month, and then must make a decision either approving a final rule or forgetting the whole thing. Even if they approve the rule, it would not become effective for six months — or next March, at the earliest.

In the meantime, consumers have absolutely no recourse — except, as one FTC official hedged, "the card issuers sometimes do try to settle a complaint, but it's a PR effort on their part."

College student asks questions

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

Dear Attorney Martoccio:

I enjoy reading your column very much. However, since I must return to school soon, I have some questions concerning legal matters which I hope you could answer.

Is it legal for a landlord to refuse to rent apartments to unmarried persons (young women, specifically)?

Also, what are the advantages and disadvantages of owning property in "joint tenancy" and "tenancy in common"?

Are there ceiling laws on transportation facilities in the state? In a particular instance I am recalling, a taxi company charged myself and four other persons $3.25 apiece for a 10-mile trip in a cab. The strange thing was that we were all told the price would have been the same had we traveled together or in two or three separate cabs!

And, two more questions: Is a holographic will legal in the State of Illinois? When is a business required to pay its employees time and one-half for work performed on Sundays? Thank you very much for any help you can give me.

Colleen C.

P.S. Keep up the good work!

Dear Colleen:

I'm sorry space limitation does not permit me to repeat your letter in its entirety. But I can't let an opportunity pass to tell you how pleased I am that you would take the time and interest to write. Your comments about each topic question were intelligent and to the point, and certainly back up my faith in this generation's "promise for the future."

No, it is not legal for a landlord to refuse to rent apartments to unmarried women if they are of legal age and fulfill all the obligations that a lease requires. The law does not, however, apply where the owner occupies the dwelling and it has four units or less, or where single family houses are owned by private individuals.

You might be interested to know that an Evanston woman recently filed a sex discrimination suit against an Evanston mortgage company charging them with refusing to rent her a home because she is a woman. She further charges that the refusal is in violation of the new Illinois Constitution, which guarantees damages and an injunction against sex discrimination. What and how much she wins will be determined by the court and should set a precedent.

Joint tenancy is a popular way of holding property where two or more persons wish to acquire an interest at the same time from the same person. If one of the parties dies, the survivor takes title and becomes sole owner, under the law of right of survivorship. The property is not subject to probate; title passes immediately and is not tied up during settlement of the estate.

However, there are disadvantages. The property cannot be willed while both parties are living and since the entire property is owned simultaneously by both, either one has control over it at any time. For instance, a joint bank account with right of survivorship usually permits either person to withdraw the entire contents without the consent of the other. (There are other disadvantages, but these, I think, are the main ones.)

Tenancy in common is a form of owning property where two or more persons acquire property but not necessarily at the same time nor from the same persons. The ownership does not have to be equal. For instance, the husband may have an individual one-third interest and the wife two-thirds. Each person may sell his or her interest in the property without regard for the other's interest. Each has a right to bring a suit to divide the property. Some disadvantages: there is no right of survivorship and each may will his or her share to whomever they choose. (You see, nothing's perfect. Still, an experienced estate planner can weigh advantages and disadvantages that best suit an individual's property needs.)

I inquired at a local cab company and was told that "$3.25 is more than a reasonable fare for 10 miles." Cab companies are franchised by cities and maximum rates established. With regard to the three cabs, the person in charge said that's "a matter of choice," but it will still be more expensive because once a cab is hired, additional riders are not charged as much as the person who hired it (you must have split the costs five ways. Right?).

No, a holographic will is not legal in Illinois. In other states (and you'd be surprised at the seemingly endless varieties of laws on that one subject), a holographic (written in a person's own hand) is legal. In some states a holographic will may take the form of a letter, notation or a note. The entire will, however, must be written by hand, including not only the contents and signature but even the date as well. Some states that recognize holographic wills require witnesses while others do not. A form bought at the stationery store or one that is typed and then provisions inserted is not a legal holographic will. Interestingly enough, wills have been written in ink, pencil, crayon and even paint!

In order to answer your question on overtime correctly, I would need more specific information. Both federal and Illinois minimum wage and hour laws exempt certain kinds of businesses from the law, which, among other things, spells out the amount of money the business must transact during the year and how many employees the business must employ.

In business where the law does apply, the employer and employee through union bargaining or by contract may set up their own agreed salaries, hours, etc., providing the employee receives no less and possibly more than would be provided by the minimum wage and hour law.

Generally speaking, anyone working where the law applies is entitled to time and a half if she or he works more than 40 hours a week, and according to a new law which took effect July 1, 1974, the employer must post notice in advance if the employee is expected to work on a particular Sunday and also specify which day of the week that employee has off.

Thank you for the compliment. I'm happy to keep up the good work, if all you kind readers out there keep sending me questions to answer. Hope you make all "A's" this semester!

Credit for women

Barriers coming down

by GAY PAULEY

There are brave new signs that one set of old barriers against women is coming down.

Women, once considered a poor credit risk, increasingly are regarded as credit-worthy by the business and financial world. Discrimination because of sex or marital status is becoming a no-no.

One indication comes from the National Association of Realtors on single women and home buying. The association said a random study of Realtor boards showed that single women in many parts of the nation are purchasing homes, condominiums and investment property in increasing numbers. And this is an area where loan credit usually is a must.

Statistics from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) support the survey results and also show that single women last year purchased more existing homes with Federal Housing Administration (FHA) insurance than single men.

HUD REPORTED that in 1970, five and one-half per cent of existing home mortgages went to single males, four and one-half per cent to single females. Last year, single males had seven and three-tenths per cent of the market, the women seven and seven-tenths per cent.

From the Realtor survey, there were these findings. In Chicago, 20 per cent of the units in one of the city's condominium developments are owned by single women. In Newark, sales to single women ranged from tract houses to modular homes.

Atlanta Realtors reported sales to teachers, nurses and an editor of a local newspaper. One woman, a recording artist, purchased a $90,000 home.

Breakthroughs also were reported in smaller communities where it previously was a rarity for single women to purchase a home. In Riverside, Calif., a city of 150,000, one Realtor reported sale of a home in the $25,000 price to a woman in her 20s.

RECENTLY EUGENE H. Adams, chairman of the governing council, the American Bankers Association (ABA), discussed the ramifications of credit for women.

Adams, speaking before the Indiana Bankers Association, cited women's increased role in the labor force. Several states already have passed laws prohibiting credit discrimination, he said.

Adams said that some past decisions on credit worthiness were based on outdated ideas and "we bankers are working to assure that future decisions actually reflect today's realities."

He then listed some of the common complaints concerning the extension or denial of credit to women. They included:

- Some women say that different standards are used to measure their credit worthiness than those used for men. The women would like to be judged on their ability to pay back a loan on the five C's — character, capacity, collateral, capital and conditions.

- Discounting a wife's income when issuing credit out of fear that a woman, especially one who becomes pregnant, might leave the job market. Adams said the statistics do not back up this reasoning.

- A woman who marries and perhaps changes her accounts to her husband's name, only to find her credit gone if the husband dies or the pair are divorced. "A woman who marries should not become a non-person as far as credit rating is concerned," Adams said.

Adams concluded, "We must not be so cautious that we fail to meet the needs of today because we are so engrossed in the assumptions of yesterday."

'Bodies' seminar still open

A seminar based on the book "Our Bodies, Ourselves," written by a group of Boston women, will be sponsored by Harper College beginning next Monday (Sept. 30). The course was postponed to accommodate late registrations.

According to Rena Trevor, director of Harper's women's programs, too few women have signed up so far. She said the course will be offered only on Monday evenings. It was originally scheduled for Thursday mornings as well.

An Arlington Heights registered nurse, Dianne Benton, will conduct the course, with the assistance of Claudia Vigil of Barrington, who has done extensive research on the subject. Registration fee is $16 for the eight-week series.

"Our Bodies, Ourselves," which provided some of the information in a recent Herald article on childbirth, is a collection of frank first-hand accounts of how women feel about themselves, their sexuality and society's response to them.

THE AUTHORS of the book also present medical research to explode some of the social myths about women and their bodies, and to support the changes they urge in the medical treatment of women.

Paralleling the book, the Harper seminar will focus on women's "changing sense of self," anatomy and physiology, birth control, childbirth, and other related topics.

Any interested woman may register for the course by sending name, address, telephone number, social security number, and birth date, with a check for the tuition fee, to the Admissions Office, Harper College, Algonquin and Roseville Roads, Palatine, Ill. 60067.

Groom's grandpa performs rites

When David N. Haney of Mount Prospect was married Aug. 24 to Nancy Lee Burritt of Glastonbury, Conn., his grandfather, Dr. John Alken of Socorro, N.M., performed the double ring service along with the associated pastor of the church.

David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Haney, and Nancy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Burritt, wrote their own vows for the service which was held in the Congregational Church of Glastonbury. Organist was Martha Hopkins of Mount Prospect.

Nancy graduated last May from Boston University and is employed as a physical therapist in a Boston hospital. David is a '71 graduate of Hersey High School and is now completing pre-med at Boston University.

SUSAN BURRITT was her sister's maid of honor and bridesmaids were her sister-in-law, Mrs. Stephen Burritt of New Hampshire, and the groom's sisters Beth Haney, Mount Prospect, and Cynthia Denley, Berkeley, Calif. David chose David Evans, Falmouth, Me., as his best man, and George Billinson, Brookline, Mass., and the bride's brothers, Arthur and Stephen as ushers.

A reception for 75 guests was held in the church after which the newlyweds honeymooned 10 days in Nova Scotia. They are now at home in Brighton, Mass.

Area pair married Sept. 1

Four attendants all gowned alike in green knit halter dresses trimmed with white lace and with matching bolero jackets preceded Alice Nagorny down the aisle of St. James Catholic Church, Arlington Heights, for her Sept. 1 wedding.

Alice became the bride of Greg Witt, son of the George Witts of Mount Prospect. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Nagorny of Arlington Heights.

All four of the bridal attendants made their own ensembles and complemented them with natural-stem bouquets of yellow carnations, butterscotch pompons and baby's breath.

Debbie Horan, Arlington Heights, was maid of honor. Chris Candler, Peoria; Jan Erlinger, Arlington Heights; and Cathy Hartwig, Des Plaines, were bridesmaids.

ALSO IN the bridal procession was the bride's nephew and godchild, Michael Johnson of Elgin, as ring bearer. Michael is six.

As the bride was given in marriage, she wore a white sheer organza over tulle gown, the Empire bodice styled with sequined Chantilly lace at the high neck and cuffing the long sleeves. A double panel of lace accented the front of the skirt and the train. Alice completed her ensemble with a Camelot headpiece of sequined Chantilly lace and a short veil.

Her bouquet was a cascade of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Mr. and Mrs. Greg Witt

The groom's attendants included William Thompson, Tinley Park, as best man and groomsmen Steve Witt and Larry Nagorny, the couple's brothers, along with Jeff Hartwig, Des Plaines.

AFTER THE four o'clock ceremony there was a reception for 180 guests at the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines.

The couple honeymooned for a week in Wisconsin and are making their home in Arlington Heights.

Both attended Harper College and are graduates of local high schools, Alice from Hersey High and Greg from Prospect High. She earned a degree from Western Illinois University and works for Motorola in Franklin Park. He is assistant manager for the Kinney Shoe Store in Norridge.

Fingernail care

When a nail breaks off close to the finger, file the others close in length to the broken one to avoid an uneven appearance. The broken nail may also be a sign that it was too long and should have been reshaped.

Sad-looking nails should be filed square and short with sides straight for support until they grow long enough to shape.

Tobacco stains can be removed from nails by rubbing the stained areas with cotton soaked in medicinal hydrogen peroxide.

Showcase house open in Oak Park

A Showhouse at 526 Augusta St., Oak Park, open through Oct. 8 for house want buyers. Insured by Oak Park River Forest Infant Welfare Society, the four features 14 rooms decorated by various interior designers, each using a specific theme.

Tickets at the door are $3. Hours Monday through Friday are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.; Friday evenings, 7 to 9; Saturday and Sunday, 12:30 to 4:30. Children under 8 are not allowed.

Following her graduation last January from Colorado State University with a degree in fashion design, Pamela J. Konstant accepted an assistant buyer's position with Dayton's in Minneapolis where she and her bridegroom, Craig R. Luedke, are making their home.

Craig, a 1973 graduate of Colorado State, has been with the family business, Walter P. Luedke and Associates Advertising in Rockford.

Pam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony N. Konstant, 902 W. Gregory, Mount Prospect, and Craig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Luedke of Rockford, were married Aug. 31 in Kenilworth Union Church, Kenilworth, Ill.

For the 3:30 service, Pam wore a white Giana gown fashioned with ruffled V-neckline, long sleeves and ruffles edging the hemline and the train. A white picture hat and a bouquet of white gardenias and stephanotis with trailing ivy completed her ensemble.

IN PEACH GOWNS of similar design were her attendants. Her sister, Joan, was maid of honor, and the groom's sister, Jan, and Karen Layer, Mount Prospect, and Lin Shurts, Denver, Colo., were bridesmaids. Meg Layer, 6, Mount Prospect, was flower girl wearing a plaid gown in peach and light blue dotted swiss. Meg carried her peach roses in a basket; the others carried theirs in arm bouquets.

Best man was the groom's brother, Jeff, and ushers were the bride's brother, Paul, and James MacLaurin of Aurora, Colo., and Chris Welsh, Rockford. The bride's brother, Peter, was junior usher.

A reception for 200 guests was held in the church.

Pam and Craig honeymooned a week in Florida before settling in Minneapolis. Pam is also a graduate of Prospect High School and at college she became affiliated with Chi Omega Sorority.

Couple married in garden

It was not the Ponderosa but a garden at 41 E. Comfort Ln., Palatine, where 150 guests gathered for the 4 p.m. Aug. 24 wedding of David Paul Cartwright and Janice Elizabeth Kiser.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James T. Cartwright and Mr. and Mrs. Harold K. Kiser, 951 N. Saratoga Dr., Palatine.

Vows were exchanged against the background of a flowering rock garden flanked by evergreens and spreading trees.

The bride wore an Empire style gown of silk organza and English net, with touches of Venise lace and an illusion neckline. English net, edged with lace, bordered the skirt. Janice chose a short, lace-edged veil attached to a simple headpiece and carried a nosegay of white daisies, yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

THE ATTENDANTS wore yellow halter gowns and carried baskets of white daisies and yellow ribbon. Patricia Kiser, the bride's sister, appeared as maid of honor. Mary Mueller, Palatine, was bridesmaid.

Best man for the double ring ceremony was Jim Cartwright Jr., the groom's brother. Steve Hexel, Palatine, was groomsmen.

The wedding ended with two blessings, one from an American Indian ceremony. The Rev. Kim Leech of the Palatine Presbyterian Church officiated.

Neighbors participated in the garden reception, sharing their adjoining yards aglow with late flowers. Guests were served a sit-down buffet dinner followed by dancing to the music of Pete Pesco and his group. The newlyweds were entertained at a champagne breakfast the following morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Warkus, Palatine.

Color video tapes of the wedding will enable the bride's grandparents in North Carolina to share in the wedding which they could not attend.

The couple graduated from Palatine High School. Janice also graduated from Northwest Community Hospital's School of X-ray Technology, Arlington Heights and was employed by the North Shore Orthopedic Group, Des Plaines. The new Mr. and Mrs. Cartwright will make their home in Waukegan, Wis., where David is employed at station WSAU-TV.

Romance began on Eastern Illinois campus

Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Platt

It was a college romance at Eastern Illinois University for Diane Marguerite Bloss and Robert Newcomb Platt. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Bloss, 1109 W. Milner, Arlington Heights, Diane is a graduate of Arlington High School, and Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Platt, 1270 Aspen Ln., Elk Grove Village, is a graduate of Forest View High School.

Robert is a '72 graduate of Eastern Illinois and the pair are residing in Charleston while Diane completes her senior year.

Their marriage took place Aug. 17 in First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights. It was a 3 p.m. double ring service followed by a dinner reception at the Maitre d' in Elk Grove.

DIANE CHOSE Pamela Johnson of Mount Prospect as her maid of honor and Robert chose the bride's brother, Alan, as his best man. Bridesmaids were the bride's cousin, Connie Mueller, and Lynne Corney of Mount Prospect, and Caryn Cortez, Arlington Heights. Ushers, all of Elk Grove, were Robert Alfeld, Michael Szczepanki and Jim Schaefer.

Life expectancy

A child born in 1900 could expect to live an average of 48 years. A child born in 1969 could expect to live 22 years longer — an average of 70 years.

The major part of the increase in the life span occurred because of reduced death rates for children and young adults.

About 1.2 million older persons die a year, a rate about 61 per 1,000. That's 73 per 1,000 for men and 52 for women.

For men, the suicide rate rises continuously with age — getting to 47.3 per 100,000 at ages 85 plus. For women the rate declines with age, getting to 4.4 per 100,000 in that same age bracket.

Sewing classes start

Sewing classes in beginning lingerie, knit tops and pattern alterations start next month at Linda Z's Bernina Sewing Center in the Mount Prospect Plaza. Courses starting in November include bras and women's and men's knit slacks.

Those wishing further information may call 394-4300.

A February square dance leads to August wedding

"Thanks, I'll marry you tomorrow!" said the young man when Kathryn Ann Pointer brought him a cup of coffee. That first meeting for Kathryn and David I. Sharits was at a square dance last February and "tomorrow" was Aug. 31 when they repeated marriage vows in Springfield, Mo.

Kathryn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Pointer, 601 Oriole Ln., Mount Prospect, and David, son of Mrs. Jesse Cowan of Stanton, Tex., were married in Mrs. Pointer's home church, Central Christian. The 2 p.m. service was both double ring and candlelight with a reception for 40 guests following in the Springfield home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dodson. A second reception for 50 guests was held last Saturday at the Pointer home.

FOR HER MARRIAGE Kathy chose a white embroidered pique gown with Alencon lace trim. David wore a white tunic with collar and cuffs of the same fabric as the bride's gown. A headpiece of Alencon daisies held Kathy's fingertip veil, and she carried a nosegay of pink, white, yellow and orchid chrysanthemums with baby's breath.

Only attendant to Kathy was her cousin, Mrs. Terry Patterson of Springfield, who wore an orchid gown with cape sleeves and hemline ruffle. Her flowers were the same as the bride's.

Best man was Harry E. Sharits, Chicago, brother of the groom, who was in a striped tunic, and ushers were the bride's cousin, Larry Jackson, and Terry Patterson, Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. David I. Sharits

Until her marriage, Kathy, a '69 graduate of Prospect High School, was employed by G. C. Murphy, Mount Prospect. David, a graduate of a Texas high school, spent three years in the Army. He is with Vapor Corp., Niles, and the couple resides in Des Plaines.

Instructions for preparing lobster tails

Dear Dorothy: How do you fix lobster tails? — Mrs. Mary Herring

Boil them with water to cover (or a little more than that) and add a few pickling spices, caraway seeds and salt to taste. Depending on the size of the tails, boil them for five to seven minutes.

Clip the skin from both sides with kitchen shears, slip fingers underneath and pull the meat away, cutting off the skin if it sticks to the meat. At this stage, arrange the tails on a form made from aluminum foil to keep them upright. A chunk of margarine goes on each tail and then a brief broiling, basting once or twice. If the seasoning in the water is just right, the tails ought to be delicious.

Dear Dorothy: I work in the field of art objects and was about to fly to the Far East on a business trip. I bought a set of inexpensive suitcases, one of them fitting into the other. I lined the inner one with the plastic that looks like bubbles just in case I found something breakable.

Coming back was a breeze with the things I had bought and I had not a moment's worry about the plastic-lined suitcase in which I packed a fragile urn. — Joan Walker

Dear Dorothy: People who have had exploded baked potatoes might want to try what I use. I use aluminum potato nails which carry heat into the center of the potato and this not only makes the potato get done faster but seems to eliminate explosions. — Myra B. Watson

The homeline

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Don't know when the young fry does it, but every once in a while I find crayon scrawls on the linoleum floor. Have you heard of any good ways to handle this? — Eva Hillenmayer.

Try either silver polish or baking soda on a damp sponge.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006)

Barbara Walters a Mideast 'courier'

NEW YORK — NBC's Barbara Walters has become a Middle East courier. Miss Walters, co-host of the "Today" show, currently is on a temporary assignment in the Middle East, where she has completed a series of interviews with Egyptian President Sadat and Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin. The chats will be aired on "Today" beginning Tuesday.

Although the talks were informative, Miss Walters had the feeling she had become a diplomatic "messenger." "I felt I was bringing information from one country to another," said Miss Walters in a telephone interview from Tel Aviv. "In no other area does this situation exist. You feel for the first time as a journalist, and only by accident, that you are courier."

MISS WALTERS' feeling is not surprising. Neither Israel nor her Arab neighbors communicate with each other directly, especially since last year's Mideast war. They hold their discussions through intermediaries, notably Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger.

During Miss Walters' interview with Sadat, she learned the Egyptian would use every diplomatic effort to find a solution to the Middle East crisis. Sadat also said he would renew the UN mandate that quieted Arab and Israel guns. But the Egyptian said he was adamant about Israel returning all the Arab lands captured in the 1967 Mideast war.

"Rabin never heard many of these things before," said Miss Walters. "It's too bad there isn't another kind of communication between the two."

FOLLOWING that interview, Miss Walters toured the Jewish section of Cairo

Television in review
by Frank S. Swerlow

and visited one of the city's three synagogues.

"The Jews are free to leave," she said. "There is no religious persecution in Egypt. There is only social isolation. There is no one there for the children to marry."

Miss Walters flew to Tel Aviv Sunday,

Abortion to be topic of Harper radio show

"The Right to Choose" will be discussed this week on the Harper College radio program "Focus: Northwest" Sunday at 8 a.m. on WWSM, 92.7 FM.

Doe Hentschel, director of community services at Harper College, poses questions to the Rev. Gerry Krick, minister of the Unitarian-Universalist Church, Oak Park, and Ruth Osgood, volunteer worker from the speaker's bureau of the Chicago office of Planned Parenthood, on the topic of abortion.

Harriet Kandelman produces and directs "Focus: Northwest." Ron Osgood is the engineer for the syndicated half-hour program, sponsored by the Harper College Office of College Relations.

where she spoke with Rabin about Sadat.

"If you take both positions and compare them," she said, "They are far apart. But both sides are agreeable to continue discussions, and that's hopeful. I just wish it was possible for them to talk together."

CHER, formerly of Sonny and Cher, has signed with CBS for a variety show next fall and special next spring. Cher is the ex-wife of Sonny Bono, now on ABC with the "Sonny Comedy Revue." When they were married, the couple performed for CBS' "Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour."

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Good play can save argument

"Why didn't you double five diamonds?" roared North. "What's wrong with picking up 800 points above the line?"

"When you made that silly jump to four hearts it never occurred to me that you held an ace, king, jack and a useless queen. I thought you had some concept of correct bidding," replied South.

The argument still may be going on for all we know. We see merit on both sides. Certainly North should have bid three, not four, hearts and certainly South should have doubled five diamonds, but neither partner noticed that South should have made his doubled contract.

He started out by putting dummy's ace of spades on West's king. Then he finessed the queen of clubs successfully; cashed his ace of clubs; ruffed a third club and played the king of hearts. We won't go into the merit of South playing the king of hearts earlier. That didn't matter. What did matter is that when East showed out on the first heart, South conceded down one.

He didn't have to. He should have played all the high trumps and led clubs. If West didn't ruff South could throw him in with the last trump.

Whenever West gained the lead he would have to play spades. He could cash his queen then he would have to lead to dummy's jack of spades which would have become good. If he trumped

Brain-tumor research fund drive

In its first statewide fund-raising drive, the Chicago-based Assn. for Brain Tumor Research is asking for contributions of trading stamps and premium coupons from grocery items and cigaret packs.

The drive to "Help Stamp Out Brain Tumors" will run through Oct. 31. The 89 Burger King restaurants throughout Illinois have volunteered to serve as collection centers.

All stamps and coupons will be redeemed for cash that will be used to buy supplies and equipment for medical research. In children under 15, brain tumors are the second greatest cause of death, according to spokesmen for the association. In the 15-to-34 age group, brain tumors are among the five biggest killers.

"Brain tumor research is not significantly financed by any other group or organization," said Malcolm P. Brown, president of the association. For more information write to the association at Suite 100, 6232 N. Pulaski Rd., Chicago, 60610.

Inflation an 'addiction,' prof says

by LEA TONKIN

We're headed for another year of stiff price increases. Worse yet, there is a 50 per cent chance of a severe recession waiting in the wings.

Walter Fackler, professor of business and economics and director of management programs at the University of Chicago, compared the inflation problem to drug addiction at a Tuesday briefing. The withdrawal symptoms are going to be severe, indeed," he said.

Increased unemployment, a downturn in output and other problems will pop up as soon as the Administration tries to cutback on federal spending, he commented.

An 8 per cent rate of inflation and zero-to-3 per cent real economic growth can be expected in the coming year, the professor continued. He dismissed President Ford's economic summit conference as just talk. "President Ford can do anything, because his advisers have covered all possibilities," he said.

THE MOST CRITICAL immediate problem for the economy is Federal Reserve Board policy in the next few months, Fackler said. A severe recession will result in 1975 from continued tight-money policies, he added.

Fackler said a recession in 1975 could bring another round of boosts in government expenditures, which in turn would lead to accelerated rate of inflation. He said that it "might be better to take it now than a much bigger one (recession) sometime on the future." The alternative to curtailment of inflation is "fears for the future of capitalism as we have known it," the professor said.

Fackler described himself as an "inveterate optimist, and not of the doomsday school." He added, "On the other hand, I can't see the economy taking off like a big bird next year."

He advised business executives to keep ahead of inflation in their pricing policies. "My best guess is that over the next decade we're going to have to live with an endemic inflation," Fackler said.

Fackler addressed nearly 500 at the session, sponsored by the Bank of Elk Grove.

Identifying the cause of a bad back

I know back problems are the subject of great controversy and hate to admit to having one, but it's there and I don't know how to handle it.

It dates back to three years ago when I was changing a tire. Something snapped, and I couldn't stand up. I panicked, and the pain was something that defies description. Someone helped me back home where I whimpered and shuddered, trying to figure out what happened. After a few days it got better, and I more or less ignored it. There have been several episodes since, triggered by dumb things like bending over to tie my shoe laces.

It seems like every time I have another "attack" the getting better process takes longer. I'm never without pain, and every day is a "let's see-how-it's-going-to-be-today" situation. My normal routine has been greatly curtailed.

I went to an orthopedic surgeon (highly recommended). He reached around and hit the sore spot. When I yelled he chuckled and said it's a degenerative disk with low back sprain (he had already looked at the X-ray). He gave me a cortisone injection and sent me to his physical therapist who went through exercises. I've done them, more or less, regularly, and the condition is definitely worse. An hour on my feet is about all I can take. Two and a half sends me home to booze, which is the only thing that relieves the pain. If this was your back what would you do with the darn thing?

You have lots of company among my readers, I'm sure. The first and most important thing to do about a bad back is to find out the cause. Some are muscular spasms and can be relieved with good exercise programs. Some of these are caused by underlying problems putting an unusual strain on the muscles along the spine. One example is the short leg problem. If you have a short leg, it tilts the pelvis, this causes the spine to shift like a crooked stack of dominoes.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Even the shoulders change position and finally the head sits to one side or the other. Although the immediate muscular spasm can be relieved by injections and various techniques, it will return unless the underlying problem is corrected.

You can have the same problem with sitting if one side of your pelvis is smaller than the other. Bad beds and bad chairs, usually the too-soft variety, can also put a strain on weak back muscles.

WHEN A DISC is the problem you can sometimes get results with conservative management, and your doctor has taken this approach. Since you state it has not worked you need to see the orthopedic surgeon again. He needs to know this. It might be important in deciding if you need an operation. If it were my back I would go back to the orthopedic surgeon and let him know that I still needed help.

There is a lesson in this for all people. If your doctor starts you on a program and you don't get results, don't go doctor shopping immediately. He may have needed this information to decide what is the best treatment for you. Go back and give him a chance to use this information to help you.

West German survey

Would you rather smoke—or take a world tour?

BONN (UPI) — Beware of lighting that first cigarette, young man, for a West German survey shows there is a 70 per cent chance that thereupon you will keep puffing away for another 40 years.

And in that time, according to a German Insurance Institute, you will have spent enough on cigarettes to have financed two round-the-world trips for yourself and your wife.

But if you do not start smoking by the time you are 20 years old, chances are you never will take up the habit.

So says Prof. Rainer Toelle of the Psychiatric and Nerve Clinic of Muenster University, in a new book, "Cigarette Smoking."

TOELLE interviewed 1,000 smokers, drawn from the ranks of craftsmen, industrial workers, civil servants and other office workers, university students and alcoholics.

Most important among factors that cause a young man or woman to start smoking, Toelle said, were parents who already smoke, friends who smoke, and wishing to appear adult.

Seventy per cent of those who do start smoking, at any age, will puff away for about 40 years. They steadily increase consumption until they are about 45 years old, when use declines slightly, Toelle reported.

ACCORDING to a survey by the advertising trade magazine, "Werben und Verkaufen," the average male West German smoker consumes 21 cigarettes daily, the average woman smoker 14 cigarettes. Half of the men and one-quarter of the women in Germany between the ages of 16 and 65 smoke, the magazine said.

The Hesse State Insurance Institute, launching an anti-smoking campaign, decided almost no one is deterred by further warnings that smoking is unhealthy.

So the Insurance Institute tried another tack.

"If you smoke 20 cigarettes a day," the Institute reckoned, "you will have lost one television set in five years, a small car in 10 years, and in 20 years, one round-the-world trip for two persons, and, of course, your health."

Only the Americans, Canadians and British smoke more than the West Germans, the advertising magazine said.

AND WHY do smokers continue to smoke?

Toelle said the smokers he interviewed usually gave several reasons. Most common were that it was a habit, that it provided pleasure, or that it helped overcome nervousness or boredom.

The German professor's studies confirmed those made in other countries, including the United States, that show a higher percentage of smokers among the lower than among the higher social classes. Alcoholics smoke more than teetotalers.

Crop-killing frost blasts Midwest as autumn arrives

by United Press International

A crop-killing frost whitened the Midwest countryside on the first day of autumn, prematurely ending the growing season and breaking cold weather records.

The sudden cold caught many persons by surprise. Returned military deserters shivered in unheated buildings at a processing center in Indiana.

Freezing temperatures nipped a broad belt of the midlands from Iowa and Minnesota to Ohio as fall arrived at 4:59 a.m. CDT Monday.

Record low temperatures for the date were recorded from southeastern Minnesota to Pennsylvania, and south to Georgia.

IT WAS A BLOW to farmers who suffered through heavy rains in early summer and a midsummer drought that put their crops behind schedule.

The extent of the damage remained to be assessed in much of the nation's rich foodbasket, where growers had hoped for a late growing season to give crops time to mature.

But a state agricultural statistician in Wisconsin said "our crops have been struck a severe blow," with field and sweet corn and soybeans especially hard hit.

In central Illinois, the National Weather

Service said the 1974 growing season lasted only 151 days, compared with an average of 189. Frost extended deep into Southern Illinois but an agricultural experiment station at Dixon Springs said corn and soybeans there were expected to escape serious harm.

In Indiana, a heavy coating of frost ended the tomato growing season and caused undetermined damage to late-planted corn and soybeans. Crop experts said there was considerable damage because temperatures dipped as low as 27 degrees — 5 degrees below the freezing mark — and remained below freezing for as long as three hours.

Knights, Pirates, Bison win twice; stay in golf race

Prospect, Buffalo Grove and Palatine all remained strong in contention for the Mid-Suburban League's dual meet golf crown by posting double wins Tuesday.

The Knights polished off Fremd and Rolling Meadows while Buffalo Grove was just sneaking past Arlington and Hoffman Estates. Palatine, meanwhile, breezed past Wheeling and Elk Grove.

Steve Spielman and Craig Ridley were standouts during an otherwise off day at Buffalo Grove Golf Club, pacing Prospect to a 163 total while the Vikings came in at 172 and the hosting Mustangs at 177. Spielman carded a 37 and Ridley a 38 and there were few other scores even close to 40.

For the Knights, now 6-2 in loop action,

Pete Lund and Paul Moats rounded out scoring at 44 apiece. For Fremd it was Mark Evans in at 42, Will Garcia taking a 43 and Mark Oakley and Dave McKinney posting 44s. Meadows was headed up by Dave Munson at 41 with Scott Burkhardt and Tom Schramm collecting 43s and Mike Mills hitting 50.

Arlington was practically snuffed out of the MSL race when they deadlocked at 169 with hosting Hoffman Estates at Hilldale Country Club while the Bison were sneaking past at 167. One Cardinal entry had withdrawn, allowing the Hawks to earn their first league triumph on John Curtin's fifth man score of 49.

Other Hoffman scorers were Tom Adams at 39, Greg Turner at 40, John Mann at 43 and Kevin Hannon at 47. For Arlington it was Brian Palmer at 40, Doug Sandell at 42, Bill Weber at 43 and Ed Colleton although Palmer's tally is pending a clarification on an out of bounds marker ruling that could drop him down a stroke and give the team verdict back to the Redbirds.

In any event Buffalo Grove remains a two-time winner behind a 39 from Mike Marshall, a 42 from Dan Krolack, and 43s from Rick Groessl and Mike Salzman. They are now 5-2 on the league log.

At Palatine Hills the host Pirates coasted to a 166-176 triumph over Wheeling while Elk Grove trailed at 184. The Pirates now boast a 6-1 conference record after Scott Grant and Mike Sievers netted 41s and Dick Zambale and Bob Capoun charted 42s Tuesday.

For the Wildcats it was John Leonetti at 41 and Mike McHugh, Dale Cooney and Bob Fill all at 45. For the Grenadiers Mike Branigan turned in a 40, Mike Kwon a 46 and Mike Lavanway and Tony Saltarski 49s.

The MSL race also heated up at the frosh-soph level with six of the top teams all confronting each other in two meets and no undefeated team emerging. Hoffman Estates dropped their first two contests with a 188 that was bettered by both Arlington at 182 and Buffalo Grove at 187.

Prospect was trimmed from the unbeaten ranks when they stalemated with Meadows at 181 and freshman Mustang Bret Smith's fifth man score of 51 bettered a 53 by the Knights. Fremd, also previously unbeaten, absorbed two setbacks with a 184.

Palatine's fledglings meanwhile were winning two with a 198 total to 214 for the Grens and 217 for the 'Cats.

Hawks show fine balance in 34-0 romp over Aurora

As usual, Hoffman Estates' junior varsity team won big.

However, there was a difference this time.

"They gave us a good game," said Bill Gourley, Hoffman's head coach. "Even though we won, it was a lot better situation than the week before."

The Hawks handled Aurora West 34-0 Monday at the winners' field, but it didn't come as easy as the 61-0 romp over Waukegan the previous game.

After one quarter of play, it was 6-0. Then Kevin Stalley went to work. The versatile Hoffman end scored three touchdowns in the second quarter to put the game out of reach of the Blackhaws.

Stalley took a pass from Wayne Jackson for a 23-yard touchdown. He also ran back two punts for scores of 45 yards and 34 yards.

Hoffman scored a touchdown in each of the last two quarters on runs of two and one yard by Dave Lipko.

Kevin Stalley

Wayne Jackson

"I was particularly happy with the second half," said Gourley. Since his team had had trouble with Aurora's defense in the first half, Gourley and his coach staff discussed it at intermission.

"We made adjustments and made two long drives, one took about six minutes. The second drive had two straight penalties (against the Hawks of 15 yards each), but we didn't lose our poise and came back to score.

"Wayne Jackson was particularly effective throwing the ball," continued the Hoffman head man of his quarterback, who completed seven of 11 for 103 yards. "It's been a thing we've been working on. Two more should have been caught."

Hoffman's defense kept the Hawks in the game in the first half. Gourley said he was especially pleased with the defense's goal line stand which saw Aurora run six plays from within the Hoffman five without scoring. "They've got a pride which I like."

The defense allowed just 39 total yards. Meanwhile, the Hawks were generating 260 yards of their own.

Hoffman, now 3-0, will play Monday at home at 4:30 against either Conant or Elgin Larkin.

Hoffman woman wins contest

Pasadena trip would be 'the trip of a lifetime'

A lack of faith in a pair of Big Ten schools, Iowa and Illinois, was all that kept Anne Doone, 138 Illinois, Hoffman Estates, from sweeping to a perfect score in the third round of the Herald's Pick The Winners Contest.

Ms. Doone wasn't alone in her choices, though, as only a handful of the more than 200 entries foresaw the two schools knocking off their competition from the west coast.

Ms. Doone, who works in the accounting department at Union Oil, said, "Going to Pasadena would be the trip of a lifetime. My husband is an Ohio State grad and I can't think of anything that would make him happier."

The trip to Pasadena will have to wait until Dec. 14 when the 14 winners gather for a luncheon and drawing to determine the grand prize winner. Like the two winners preceding her, Ms. Doone will receive an AM-FM transistor radio.

The results of the week's high school games were as follows: Rolling Meadows topped Arlington, Forest View trampled Palatine, Hersey socked Prospect, Elk Grove outlasted Fremd, Conant shut out Wheeling, New Trier East whipped Maine West, St. Viator remained undefeated with a win over Marist, Buffalo Grove surprised Schaumburg and Maine East handled Glenbrook South.

Harper blasted Illinois Valley in junior college action.

The big surprises of the college picks were Iowa's chopping UCLA and Illinois clobbering Stanford. Also, Michigan State got by Syracuse, Western Michigan tackled Northern Illinois and Arizona blitzed Indiana.

The pros saw Green Bay taking Baltimore, New England topped the Giants, Cleveland mangled Houston and Oakland slipped past Kansas City.

Mount Prospect Open set for weekend

The Seventh Annual Mount Prospect Open Golf Tournament returns this weekend to the Mount Prospect Country Club.

Competition will be held Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 28-29, and will follow the successful 1973 format which called for 18 holes on each day over the weekend.

Seventy-six players have submitted their entries and four-man teams were selected by draw Monday evening. The competition is a team best-ball event with contestants playing 80 per cent of established U.S.G.A. handicaps.

Most of the players are Mount Prospect residents who play out of The Village Green Golf Club, but there also are entries from Arlington, Palatine and Des Plaines.

Former Mount Prospect residents Alex McCormack and Bob Appleton will travel from Connecticut and Minnesota to compete. Stuart Johnson, a Detroit resident, will make his first tourney appearance.

Social activities are planned for each day following completion of play and all prizes will be awarded at the end of the event late Sunday afternoon. Each of the golfers will also attend a "rules and regulations" meeting on Friday evening at 7:30.

The "tournament tent" on Lancaster Street will be the site of the rules meeting and social events.

A list of teams and Saturday starting times follows. Sunday tee times will be posted after completion of play on Saturday.

A fixture in everyone's tackle box

Jigs keep getting striking results

by VIC WATIA

One of the most versatile — if not the most versatile — artificial fish catching lure on the market today is the jig.

That might be a mouthful for any fisherman to swallow, but review the facts.

Travel north into walleye country and you'll find the jig. Trout fishermen, especially those fond of fishing through the ice, turn to jigs.

Any southern bass fishermen worthy of stalking Mr. Bucketmouth use a jig. Salt water anglers use jigs. And what could be better for panfish or northern pike under the right conditions — the jig.

If further proof is needed, turn to tackle manufacturers. P.S. Fishing Tackle Inc. of Owensboro, Ky., which probably produces one of the smallest jigs on the market for bass fishing, offers jigs with grub bodies in 45 colors to choose from.

When Ray Penrod, the company's market manager, bragged to me their tiny jigs were capable of catching big bass I didn't believe him.

However, when a four-pound bucketmouth inhaled the bait I tried — which was barely larger than an aspirin — I had to eat my words.

P.S. is by no means the only maker of jigs. They are made by more companies than P.S. has lure colors, for good reason.

Just as P.S. is one of the many lure makers concentrating on the bass fishermen, others specify their lures are best for walleye, trout, northern pike, panfish or salt water fish. Often, the lures work for all species.

Jigs come in a variety of styles, from bodies of hair and feathers to bodies of plastic. Some have weed guards or spinners. Others extra strong hooks to deal with big fish. But most are designed with lead heads.

There's little doubt in my mind that if a fisherman concentrated on learning how to work a jig properly, and used it consistently, he would catch fish.

The jig, available in a variety of weights, basically was designed as a bottom fishing bait. The lead head allows the lure to sink rapidly to the bottom. The fisherman then retrieves it across the bottom in short hops.

However, the jig also can be fished at other depths effectively.

Obviously, fish are not always found on the bottom of the lake.

Oxygen levels, temperatures, structure and feeding habits all play a part in where fish will be found. The dedicated jig fisherman, then, doesn't just spend his time working deep holes along the bottom for fish.

For instance, during a summer fishing trip to Bull Shoals, Mo., a 1/8 ounce jig with a smoky grub twist-tail body was the most effective for me on small mouth bass, retrieved at a depth of about eight feet.

One technique I use for judging the retrieving depth of my jig, is to drop the jig into the water and count how long it takes to reach bottom.

For instance, if I was fishing in 10 feet of water, and I discovered an 1/8 ounce jig reached bottom by the count of 10, I would figure the bait was sinking at about one foot a second.

If I wanted to work the jig back to the boat at eight feet, I would simply count to eight after the bait hit the water, then start my retrieve.

Jigs also can be effective when worked in an erratic manner. Jigs which have small spinners, often can be effective when literally "rippled" through the water at high speeds.

The way the fisherman ties the knot to the eye of the jig, also will affect its action. A knot with a loose loop will allow a more erratic action in the bait.

When the knot is pulled tight, and pushed to the rear of the eye, the jig will work with its tail higher off the bottom and the jig head nosing the bottom.

Thorough experimentation is required by the fisherman to understand how to make the lure respond under changing conditions. Once that knowledge is acquired, the jig cannot be overworked. (United Press International)

LEAD-HEADED jigs like the Betts Hair Buster are probably the most versatile artificial baits in the business.

Weekend outdoor bonanza set for Lake Le-Aqua-Na

A "Wanderer's Weekend" of hiking, biking, camping, fishing, canoeing, boating and nature tours will be enjoyed simultaneously at Lake Le-Aqua-Na State Park, near the extreme northwest tip of Illinois on Sept. 28-29.

The two-day recreation program, designed to emphasize environmentally-sound ways of finding fun out-of-doors, will offer something for everyone.

Scheduled are: —Fishing clinic; fish stocking demonstration with explanations of the procedure and its objectives by Conservation Department fisheries biologists; fishing derby offering prizes for the largest redear sunfish, bluegill, largemouth bass and catfish caught.

—Boating safety clinic, conducted by Conservation Police Officers; rides in the Department's 34-foot voyageur canoes.

—Bicycle clinic, conducted by the Bicycle Club of Rock Island; bike tours between Lake Le-Aqua-Na and Apple River Canyon.

—Camping and backpacking clinics; Civil War primitive camping demonstration; backpacking treks between the two state parks.

—Daily demonstrations of rappelling at Apple River Canyon and Scuba diving at Lake Le-Aqua-Na; guided tours and nature photography hikes at both parks; birdwatching hikes, led by Stephenson County Audubon Society members, each day at Lake Le-Aqua-Na only; self-guided auto tour to Galena; self-guided hike from Lake Le-Aqua-Na to Apple River Canyon.

On Saturday evening a campfire program will be offered at Apple River Canyon and movies will be shown at Lake Le-Aqua-Na.

Activities get underway at 9 a.m. both days, concluding at 9 p.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Sunday. There is no cost for participation in any portions of the program, but participants must furnish their own equipment. Refreshments will be available at park concession stands.

"Wanderer's Weekend" is one of a dozen special events scheduled in 1974 by the Department of Conservation. The events are aimed at instilling in state park and memorial visitors an awareness and appreciation of Illinois' natural, cultural and historical resources through recreational programming.

Coho still hitting in Waukegan

Fishing has improved in northern Illinois, according to the Illinois Department of Conservation News Bulletin. Salmon fishing in Lake Michigan has been sporadic, but there have been some outstanding catches, including a 22-pound, 1-ounce steelhead which, when confirmed, will be a new state record.

Best fishing for coho is north of Waukegan. They're from 5-30 feet deep in 45-100 feet of water. Fishing is poor on Wolf Lake on Chicago's extreme south side.

Also sluggish is the angling in the Kankakee River at Bourbonnais since the water level is low. A few scattered reports of catfish being taken in the holes and along the bank toward evening is the only encouragement.

The Fox River near McHenry has yielded some nice catches of 24 pound channel cats, but carp are rated fair and crappie fishing is poor.

Square Anglers visit Canada

The Square Anglers of the Izaak Walton League from Des Plaines recently returned from a week-long fishing trip to the Winnipeg River at Alton, Canada, some 40 miles north of Kenora.

Cold weather and scattered fishing schools made the trip challenging for the 33 members, but hardly unsuccessful.

Art Guenther, of 825 N. Chestnut in Arlington Heights, enjoyed one of the biggest thrills in his 72 years when he set his barb into a six and one-half pound walleye to capture the Walleye of the Week Award.

Another Arlington resident, Marvin Krause, battled a lively six-pound northern for his biggest catch of the week. The whopper of the excursion was landed by Ken Becker of Mundelein who netted a hefty 16-pound northern.

Catching their share were Bob Mamoser, Bob Drews, Jim Teeman and Jack Stack from Des Plaines and Art Dahl of Elk Grove Village. The trip was the second outing to Canada by the Square Anglers organization.

Changes in AKC regulations

Effective Jan. 1, 1975, the American Kennel Club has approved a comprehensive revision of the obedience regulations. These changes are shown for the first time in the September 1974 issue of Pure-Bred Dogs, the official publication of the A.K.C.

There were a number of proposed changes considered, however, not all were included. Two of those that are in the new regulations for example are: the handler must stand at least eight feet from the jumps, and in the directional retrieve exercise the handler and dog will face in the opposite direction as the gloves are dropped in position.

Copies of the regulations in booklet form will soon be available and individuals may obtain one by writing direct to the American Kennel Club at 51 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10010. Symposium on dogs.

The United Collie Club of the Midwest will present its 14th annual symposium on Saturday, Oct. 12, at O'Hare Inn, Mannheim and Higgins roads, Des Plaines, starting at 9 a.m.

Although Collie oriented, the overall program includes a group of speakers who will cover not only the Collie, but much of what they will discuss can apply to all breeds.

On the panel will be Tim Garrison, assistant professor of genetics for dog and horse breeders, Indiana University Medical School; James Haefer, College of Communications, University of Illinois; Patrick T. Brown, D.V.M., private practitioner limited to diseases of the skin, Clin-clnati, Ohio, and Herbert Semper, A.K.C. obedience judge from Hoffman Estates.

Registration fee for the day session is $3. More information can be obtained by calling Ms. Clarice Hoos at 312-537-1081. Everything costs more.

These days increased costs are to be expected and registration of pure-bred dogs is no exception. Effective Oct. 1, 1974, the American Kennel Club has increased fees as follows:

Individual registration up from $3 to $4; litters from $5 to $7 and transfers and duplicates from $2 to $4. The reasons for the boosts are increased operating costs and wage rates.

So, if you want to save, get your registrations, etc., in before Oct. 1. Now about that dog that is due to have puppies, sorry but guess you will have to let nature take its course.

Good program — The all-day seminar held by Shoreline German Shepherd Dog Club last Saturday at Barrington High School was a "winner."

Featuring Rachel Page Elliott, who discussed movement and structure of dogs, plus D. Michael W. Fox on animal behavior, the program was informative beyond words. Both speakers know their subjects and presented them with conviction and some humor thrown in for good measure.

Barks & Bays —

The racing Greyhound, Rocker Mac, sired 3,537 puppies. How would you like to pay the new registration fees for that?

Salute to outdoorsmen a national observance

by JIM COOK
Outdoor Editor

The 21-gun salute that will ring from each of the 50 states Saturday, is a well-deserved salute aimed at the nation's sportsmen.

For the third consecutive year, the country will recognize the invaluable contributions that hunters and fishermen have made to conservation during National Hunting and Fishing Day.

The governors of all 50 states have signed a proclamation declaring the observance with our own Gov. Daniel Walker stating, "So devoted are America's hunters and fishers to the conservation of our land and water that they asked, years ago, that the sports be licensed and the money collected used to support state conservation agencies. In the last 50 years, they have provided $2.5 billion for conservation programs."

"They asked that the hunting and fishing seasons be regulated and for big limits to protect the basic breeding populations of game and fish. As a result, there are now more deer, elk, antelope and wild turkey in the United States than there were 50 years ago."

"The programs of these sportsmen-conservationists have benefited numerous species of nongame fish and wildlife through habitat development."

"Their farsightedness also led them to suggest that their fishing and hunting equipment be taxed and the money used for land acquisition, research and habitat management for fish and wildlife for the enjoyment of all. Through their many publications and programs they have led the nation in the battle for a better environment."

National Fishing and Hunting Day, in its initial observance in 1972, drew the involvement of four million people but the interest has grown to the point that last year's 3,000 programs attracted 14 million people. This year's agenda is expected to top 20 million participants.

Hunting and fishing license sales in Illinois provided the state's fish and game department with more than $3.5 million for conservation in 1973.

The 1,322,784 licensed hunters and fishermen in Illinois in 1973 entitled the state to $1,496,452 in Federal Wildlife Restoration Funds. Sportsmen pay excise taxes on their fishing tackle, sporting arms and ammunition for this very purpose.

But what does the observance mean to the non-sportsman?

The day will provide an opportunity for them to get acquainted with various organizations and clubs, learn about conservation, develop skills and generally, enjoy the outdoor activities that are capturing the attention of millions of Americans.

Various outdoor organizations will open their doors to the public with displays and practical demonstrations.

The Oak Park Sportsman's Club, which boasts a membership from the entire Chicagoland area (including several from the Herald area), offers free admission to an Open House from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m. Saturday.

Situated at 19W179 Fullerton, just off the western boundary of Addison, the clubhouse serves as the hub of five acres of land that includes ample parking space.

The family-oriented program will include exhibits and displays on conservation, archery, gun safety, fishing, fly tying, shell reloading, sporting arms and general information about the outdoors.

The unanimous support from the nation's governors reflects the tremendous nationwide popularity achieved by National Hunting and Fishing Day.

Lang makes lunger bass a 'Chain' reaction

by JIM COOK
Outdoor Editor

It's hard to imagine professional sport without its superstars... the Namaths, Aarons, Jabbars and Nicklauses.

Obviously much less exception than their spectator sport counterparts, there are fishing and hunting tournaments that offer big money and separate the casters from the castoffs.

Bob Lang has long known the pressure of tournament fishing and the unique competitive atmosphere created when you and your opponent wet lines three feet apart from the same boat.

The owner of Bob Lang's Fishing Center on Lake Marie in the Chain of Lakes, the 42-year-old bass expert unquestionably qualifies as a genuine superstar.

The shelves of his enclosed porch are bowed by the weight of trophies marking his incredible success — much of which has come from his backyard on the Chain.

And he wouldn't trade his fishing Paradise, just 40 miles northwest of The Herald area, for all the weeds in Pistakee Bay.

"A lot of people have given up fishing in the Chain," Lang admitted. "They come out on a Saturday or Sunday and get bothered by all the pleasure boaters and draw the conclusion that fishing is impossible."

He did concede that the quality of

Outdoors

fishing in the Chain's southern lakes (Bluff, Petite, Fox and Grass) has suffered at the expense of speedboats who churn up the life-sustaining weedbeds.

But on a more encouraging note, he still insists there is steady production on Marie, Catherine and Channel Lakes.

"We have regular customers who come out during the week and always take home their 60 bluegills or striped bass," Lang said.

Panfish angling can provide solid action, but it just doesn't compete with casting for largemouth bass.

Lang assured me Bigmouths are plentiful in the Chain, but he didn't completely convince me until we began working the channels north of Marie.

Watching this bass master in action was satisfying enough, but the results were even more impressive.

"Presentation of a lure is perhaps the most important part of bass fishing," Lang said as he carefully threaded his hook through a seven-inch plastic purple worm.

"Bass can be fussy feeders and unless you intimidate them into hitting, you could be retrieving right past them without ever turning one."

With that, Lang pitched the slinky morsel into a dam of fallen branches and tree trunks and began delicately twitching the tip of his rod to produce tantalizing action from his lure.

"A lot of fishermen are too concerned about getting hung up on branches or rocks," Lang said after three uneventful casts into the web of wood. "But that's where the bass are."

Of course, you can get a little braver when you have an electric motor maneuvering your bass boat into tight spots. But only years of experience allows you to survive casts into five-inch openings between logs, an underhanded toss beneath a low-hanging branch or to trickie the bait off a partially-exposed rock.

Lang can do more things with a worm than a hungry robin with a hearing aid. His persistence quickly paid off. A fourth try to nearly the same spot produced an explosion of boiling water.

"There's one," he jerked as he began carefully threading the uncooperative jumper through the timber. "I don't use a net, if that's what you're looking for," he sensed as I frantically searched the bottom of the boat while retrieving my Raider spinnerbait.

Without emotion, Lang deliberately and professionally exhausted the lunger and accepted the bass' surrender with a clean grip on the largemouth's lip at the edge of the boat.

The healthy-looking specimen visually disproved the theory that the Chain of Lakes is polluted and unfishable.

"The weedbed growth this year has been the best in a long time," Lang said, "and it's produced some nice fish. As the boaters continue to die off this time of year, you'll see the fishing improve week after week."

Lang is predicting a banner weekend of angling when he hosts the Illinois State Singles Bass Championship Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 5-6.

The tournament is open to anybody for a 25 cent entry fee. Anglers will be paired at a compulsory meeting Friday, Oct. 4 at 8 p.m. at his resort located two miles west of Rte. 59 on Rte. 178 in Channel Lake.

"We'll try to pair all the non-boaters with people who have boats," Lang described. "The tournament is only for largemouth or smallmouth bass (the limit is six per day) and a minimum of 12 inches."

The fishing starts at 8 a.m. sharp Saturday and extends until 5 p.m. with a mandatory one-hour break for lunch. The contest resumes Sunday from 8-11:30 a.m. and from 12:30 until 4 p.m.

First place in the tournament receives a trophy and 50 per cent of the purse. Second gets a trophy and 30 per cent and third place, a trophy and 20 per cent.

The largest bass caught during the two-day competition will be worth a Motorguide Super Bass Tracker Electric entire Chain of Lakes accessible by boat.

For more information, call Bob Lang at 395-9837. And don't worry, he won't be Trolling Motor. The boundaries are the competing.

LARGEMOUTH BASS are alive and well and living in the Chain of Lakes, according to expert Bob Lang who gets ready to release a four-pounder taken on a plastic worm in Lake Marie. (Photos by Jim Cook)

PROFESSIONAL SPORT doesn't exclude fishing. Bob Lang, who operates Bob Lang's Fishing Center on Lake Marie, has many reminders of battles he's won against largemouth bass... most of them from his backyard on the Chain of Lakes which has been improving throughout the fall.

Launch program for deer damage

A new program to curb deer damage to agricultural crops is being instituted by the Illinois Department of Conservation in an effort to better manage the white-tailed deer population in the state.

When deer damage is reported, an on-site survey will be made by a member of the Forest Game Section of the Division of Wildlife Resources to determine extent of the damage.

When damage is found to be excessive to crops, orchards or other plantings a permit will be issued by the Department allowing for removal of deer by firearms.

"The landowner or tenant will be responsible for removal of deer," said Tony Dean, director of the Department of Conservation. "This will, however, be under supervision of Department employees."

The director pointed out that deer carcasses will be turned over to the Department immediately after the deer have been killed. The complainant may keep one deer as partial reparation for damage. Others will be given to public agencies or charitable organizations, or disposed of by burial or other practical and sanitary means.

"The deer damage problem has been intensified in some areas; however, this is not necessarily over-population of the herd," Director Dean stated. "This is due mainly to localized build-up, from refuges and farmers not allowing hunting."

"Illinois farmers have already suffered flood and drought damages, and deer damage is not going to be welcome as a contributor to what may already be the highest-priced agricultural crops in history."

Ziebart, Striking register sweeps

by GENE KIRKHAM

Ziebart Rustproofing of Des Plaines went into first place alone by winning seven points in their Paddock Women's Classic match with Sullivan Pontiac.

Bowling at Elk Grove Bowl, the Paddock league again saw some fine scores as Peggy Harris topped the leggers for Ziebart with 248, 206, and 183 for a 637 series.

Ziebart rolled 2707 with games of 929, 872, and 906 with Carol Anderson adding

Nordics fold for 74-75 season

Oliver J. Stankovsky, manager of the Randhurst Twin Ice Arena, also president of Oliver J. Stankovsky, president of the Chicago Nordics amateur junior hockey club.

So it might seem reasonable that Stankovsky could persuade J. Emil Anderson, Inc., owners of Twin Ice Arena, to give him a good deal on ice time for the Nordics.

But the unreasonable has ruled and because no deal could be finalized, the Nordics have been disbanded for at least the upcoming season of Midwest Junior Hockey League play.

Stankovsky said the decision was necessary based on last season's attendance records. The team was entering its second year of existence.

The MJHL will continue with five teams and 10 former Nordics are being shifted to other franchises. Meanwhile, the Nordics will continue looking for a new home and the financial support Stankovsky says he must have for a possible 1975-76 season.

The Nordics Junior "B" team will maintain its schedule. If replacements can be found for the 10 drafted "A" players, it's possible a schedule can be formed to play primarily local teams.

Demon kickers stop Niles, 2-0

Luis Zubillaga and Ray Carlson scored goals as Maine East's varsity soccer team shut out Niles West, 2-0, last Saturday. It was Zubillaga's second goal of the season and he got an assist from Mike Tietz. Ray Carlson kicked the other goal, also his second, and was assisted by Charles Sellergren and Tietz.

In other action last week, the Blue Demons were 1-0 losers to Lake Forest. Gary Beard was in goal for both those games and has yielded just one goal in his three appearances this season. East has a 2-3 record after opening with two losses.

Des Plaines Ace captures six in men's competition

by GENE KIRKHAM

While bowling at River Rand Bowl, the Paddock Classic League reverted back to normal with no team winning seven points and several match games decided in the 10th frame as always.

Des Plaines Ace Hardware won six points from Kolo Real Estate to take a four point lead in the first half standings. Kolo and Des Plaines Ace rolled to an 885 tie in the first game, giving each team one point with Ace Hardware warming up to 967 and 1006 to close out the last two games and the series point with 2839.

Des Plaines Ace Hardware was led by Bill Cornelius with 188, 210, and 213 for a 609 series while sub Dave Bentsen rolled 189, 214, and 203 for a 606 series.

Teddy's Liquors won five points over Nameless Five to move into second place as consistent shooting with games of 924, 965, and 983 gave Teddy's a 2872 series which was high for the night.

Nameless Five rolled 1023 to take the second game and earn their two points. For Teddy's Liquors Ron Garlisch rolled the big score with a 615 on games of 187, 214, and 214. Bob Duffey of Nameless Five led the league with his 634 series as he rolled 182, 257 and 195.

Arnie Yusim Chevrolet was the five point winner in their match with the tough Formco Metal Products Team. Winning the first and third game gave the Arnie Yusim bowlers enough margin to take the series point by 11 pins. Ray Baccus of Arnie Yusim led the scoring in this match with 588.

Fair Lanes Rolling Meadows won four points as Sullivan Pontiac was a three point winner in another close match.

Fair Lanes won the first and third games, the third by only three pins. Sullivan Pontiac took the second game with a big 1022 which carried them through to win the series point by 35 pins. Bob Glaser of Sullivan Pontiac led the scoring this match with games of 213, 221, and 179 for a 615 series.

Last week a high finish in a recent ABC Tournament was reported and to continue along those lines Formco Metal Products of the Paddock Classic League had the doubles team of Fred Hansen and Mike Hefner finish fourth place in the 1974 ABC Tournament at Indianapolis with a 1369 series.

Hansen contributed 631 and Hefner fired a whopping 730 as they also looked like winners until the final ball rang. But when you think of 10,000 doubles teams competing on a scratch basis fourth place is a good finish.

Hansen, who carries mail to earn his tournament entry fees, went to the winner's circle for $10,000 in the Hank Muench Classic in 1969 and most recently in the Waukegan Open finished 18th bowling against the country's top pros.

The Paddock Classic bowlers can be seen next week at Des Plaines Lanes at 8:30 p.m.

JEFF SELLECK, former football star at Arlington High, is in his third year as regular center for the University of Minnesota Golden Gophers. Solleck, a 1971 graduate of AHHS, was elected captain by his teammates for the opening game of the season against Ohio State. Pictured with Solleck is assistant coach Dick Mosley who says, "Jeff is one of the top centers in the Big Ten this season. He will be awfully hard to replace next fall." Jeff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Solleck, 640 S. Salem, Arlington Heights.

Arlington's linksmen nip Niles East by one stroke

Bill Weber, Brian Palmer and Kevin Ringel all shrugged off the elements and covered Arlington Country Club's par 36 layout in three, over to help their Arlington golf team nose out Niles East in a non-conference dual meet Monday.

The Cardinals claimed a 157-158 triumph, their sixth win in nine matches overall this season.

Behind the 39s by Weber, Palmer and Ringel were 40s chipped in by Ed Colliton and Tom Olcese. The Trojans still came away with medalist honors, however, Mike Kramer carding a 37 for the Niles unit.

The frosh-soph duel was nearly as close, the Redbirds sneaking off with a 174-176 nod behind the 40 effort by freshman Jeff Gutowski.

In another non-loop battle Saturday Palatine fell to hosting New Trier East 154-160 at Winnetka Country Club. For the visiting Pirates at the par 35 course, Scott Grant and Dick Zarnbole led the way with 38s and Bob Capoun, Mike Slivers and Paul Thompson all finished at 42.

Arlington Heights Boys Football

The Redskins remain undefeated in the Senior League of Arlington Boys Football by their win over the 49ers. Browns and Steelers are tied for first in the Varsity League with 2-0 records. The Cowboys and Falcons tied for first in the Junior League and their meeting Saturday should be the game of the week.

Redskins "B" 6, 49ers "B" 0

The Redskins continued to be unscored upon. Bill Vetterick had an outstanding game on both offense and defense. He led his team in tackles, recovered a fumble, had a seven yard pass reception, carried six times for 43 yards and scored the TD.

Redskins "A" 8, 49ers "A" 0

Highlighted by some fine running by John Carey, Phil Williams and Jeff Smith, Carey plunged two yards for the only TD. Bill Hayes made the PAT. Dan Carnwell put the kick off 60 yards in the 49er end zone and the 49ers were unable to sustain a drive. Defensive credit for the Redskins goes to Dave Purkis, Lew Schwartz and Mark Pils. The 49ers Mike Duro made a 30 yard run and their defensive standouts were John Winslow and Paul Sartore.

Browns 6, Lions 0

A 25 yard pass from Jim Spiel to John Hoffmann was the only score. Mark Hulteck had the longest run of 23 yards for the Rams. John Krewer and Greg Brinkmann were outstanding on defense. Brinkmann made many tackles to stop the Lions' running attack. Krewer recovered two fumbles to give the Rams key field position. Krewer also intercepted a pass. The Rams entire team played a good game. It was a costly game for the Rams as their running back Spiel broke his foot.

The Lions' offense was led by Dan Makeever and Jim Cratic who had a total of 70 yards. Their defense was tough and Bryan Jerry stood out with seven tackles.

Browns "B" 8, Eagles "B" 0

Browns "A" 26, Eagles "A" 0

The Browns blanked the Eagles behind the passing of Jeff Barone (9 of 14 for 124 yards) and the running of Jim Lesh (119 yards) and Kevin McCarthy. Line play led by Tony Kovius which held the Eagles to a net gain of 10 yards helped the Browns improve their record to 3-0. Blocking, the backbone of any team, was great by Ralph Zelen, Jerry Coughlin, Kevin Gurley, Tom Zelen and Don Thorp. End Steve Panuzzi and Jim Jancus each caught four passes.

Steelers Holy Terror 6, Vikings 0

A 15 yard kickoff return by Mike Spellman and runs by Jeff Hildebrandt and Pat Durand set the scene for the only score in this game. Hildebrandt and Dave Meyer were tough on defense also.

Steelers 18, Vikings 0

Tom Zale capped a 70 yard drive with a flashy 40 yard run for the first score of this game. A 29 yard pass from Zale to Steve McInerney and a 20 yard run by Scott Meyer was topped by a TD pass from Brian Walton to Dave Pattenuzzo for number two score. The final TD came on a 43 yard run by McInerney in the 4th quarter. Defense was sparked by Neal Spellman, Dave Lesh and Scott Bastable. Strong defensive performers for the Vikings were Jay Behn, Chris Kutzer, Joe Selgmann and Jack Simpson.

Raiders "B" 0, Saints "B" 0

Saint Bill Solzer dashed 37 yards aside for the only score in this game. Solzer also carried for the PAT.

Raiders "A" 12, Saints "A" 0

Jeff Sloek tallied two TD's to lead his team to victory. Helping him with outstanding offensive play were Dean Nelson, Ed Williams and Frank Mallin. The defense built a wall to hold the Saints from scoring. Saints Tony Aiello and Gerry Andzieski managed to gain 68 yards between them and Boudreux and Gillian recovered fumbles but couldn't sustain a drive.

Dolphins "B" 0, Giants "B" 0

A defensive struggle all the way with the Dolphins sparked by the play of John Patis, Bill Newcome, Glen Tribble and John Maertans. The Giants were led by John Kafka, Jerry Kafka, and John Lesh.

Giants "A" 20, Dolphins "A" 0

The Dolphins took an early lead with Greg Dick sweeping 40 yards for the TD. The Giants came right back with a 23 yard pass completion from Peter Thompson to Bob McCabe to set the scene for Jeff Crouch to dash off tackle and score. Jay Fish and Terry Florida spearheaded the next drive with Florida tallying the TD and Fish the PAT. Rick Johnson's blocking, grabbed a pass from Crouch to Fish to successfully add the final score. Defense was led by Harry Belleson, Bruce Nelson and Jim Vukovich. Dolphin defense was led by Tom Shanley, Thad Zurowski, Bob Pfaff and Mark Chauncey.

Cowboys "B" 0, Packers "B" 0

The Spurs started with a nice 30 yard kickoff return by Ben Selfert, but a fumble on the 9 squelched the drive. The evenly played game ended 0-0. Outstanding Spur players were Bob Butow, Jason Gedroic, Ben Selfert and Kurt Terrell.

Cowboys "A" 30, Packers "A" 0

Mike Salat started the scoring with the first of his two TD's coming on a 13 yard end around following great blocking. Rich Kuebler made the conversion. Larry Telichow blazed 30 yards for the next score and plunged for the PAT. Darryl Wilson scored on a 20 yard TD and Mike Salat then added his second TD. The defense sacked a Packer back for a safety and the final touch to the 30-0 score. The offensive blocking was outstanding all game. The defense was sparked by Doug Hensley, Tom Dwyer, Brian Kempton, Dave Gherardini and Kevin O'Hara. Packer standouts with consistent playing were Kirkpatrick, Weber, Givenski and Glaskow.

Falcons "B" 0, Bears "B" 0

Billy Oakley scored the only touchdown on a 65 yard reverse. Chris Mahon was the Falcons offensive standout and contributed heavily to the defense. Jeff Audet was also a defensive standout. The Bears Scott Kern, Rob Blumsmith, and Dave Rittas played a good game.

Falcons 31, Bears 0

Cardinals "B" 8, Colts "B" 0

Cardinal offense dominated the first half but defensive work by Colts' Mark Sheppard, Ken Butts and Jeff Zelen and Robbie Lane held them scoreless. The second half showed the Cards scoring with a 15 yard punt by John Marchese. A 35 yard pass reception by Jeff Svoboda set up the score and Tyrone Florida ran for the PAT. Card defensemen held the Colts with the outstanding play of Myles Naudgus and John Marchese.

Colts 31, Cardinals 0

Brian Jauch, Rick Alenull and Tim Jauch scored the TD's. Lots of credit goes to the efforts of Doug Wisley, Tom Moore, Frank Rethly, Clark Poland and John Swift for exceptional blocking. Cardinal Dan Lindstrom recovered a fumble to halt one drive. Defensive goes to Colts Mike Enrico and Mike Jophile.

Columnist sees Indians making baseball history

NEW YORK—The Cleveland Indians are about to make baseball history.

They were the first American League club to sign a black player, Larry Doby, and they're about to become the first major league club to name a black manager, Frank Robinson.

At least that's the impression I get talking with them, and when I tell Phil Seghi, the Indians' general manager, about my impression, all he keeps saying about it is "no comment."

Seghi says he has no intention of doing anything about a manager for next year until "the end of the season."

That's eight days away, but I have this strong hunch that if Ken Aspromonte, the Indians' manager of the moment, decides to walk into Seghi's office and ask him where he stands for next season, he'll be told he doesn't stand so well at all and that a managerial change is about to be made. I've got another hunch Aspromonte won't fall over in shock.

Nobody even bothered consulting him before Frank Robinson was obtained from the California Angels on waivers 10 days ago.

To continue, though, Ted Bonda, executive vice president of the Indians, is regarded by his baseball colleagues as one of most liberal individuals in the game. He has worked extensively with minority groups in the state of Ohio, obviously enjoys doing so and when I asked him about how he, personally, felt regarding a black manager his reply was both swift and straightforward.

"I would more than welcome one," he said.

But he did add: "If and when we do make a change, Phil Seghi will be the man to decide who the new manager will be."

Okay, Nothing at all wrong with the executive vice president supporting his general manager. There should be more people in baseball like Ted Bonda.

At the time the Indians got Robinson from the Angels, Phil Seghi told me he did not speak with him about the possibility of his managing the ball club. Robinson confirmed that. When the 39-year-old two-time MVP winner was here for a series with the Yankees last weekend and was asked why he had agreed to go with the Indians, and not with either the Orioles or Yankees who also had claimed him earlier, he said Cleveland was the only one of the three to offer him a contract for next year.

Robinson's present contract calls for $173,000 a year.

He is no longer a $173,000 ballplayer, and even he knows that.

What the Indians can do, and what I suspect they will do shortly, is release him as a player, so they can get off that $173,000 salary of his, and name him manager at a more modest figure, say something like $50,000. I believe Robinson will take it, particularly for the distinction of becoming baseball's first black manager.

Milton Richman

On Monday, Cleveland was awash with reports Seghi was giving consideration to Frank Lucchesi and Dave Bristol as the Indians' new manager. Gene Mauch's name was thrown in also although my understanding is he was ticketed as Walt Alston's successor with the Dodgers a long time ago.

I went back to Phil Seghi, the man who'll name Cleveland's new manager, and the first thing he said was that he wasn't going to do anything until the end of the season.

What about Lucchesi and Bristol? I asked him.

"I wouldn't rule out anybody I have confidence in," he said, admitting he liked both men.

What about Robinson?

"I think he's among a number of people I've got confidence in," Seghi hedged.

How did he feel about hiring a black manager?

"In evaluating managers, there is one thing I would not do," said the Indians' G.M. "I would not be concerned with the color of his skin. My only concern would be having a man capable of leading the Indians to the top. I don't think the ability to manage is the monopoly of any creed, color or religion."

Well said!

And in so saying, I get the unmistakable feeling that pretty soon now Phil Seghi is going to make an historic announcement — not only on behalf of the Cleveland Indians and baseball, but on behalf of society as well.

Flip-flop TV

by Ed Landwehr

This is what we call it at Landwehr's Home Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, when the TV picture rolls over and over and is hard to stop by turning the controls.

Another electrical appliance starting up on the same circuit might turn the TV picture a time or two, and this is somewhat natural. However, if your set does it with regularity, you need TV service. The sooner you call a TV man, the easier the maintenance job. If you let the trouble go on and on, the service job becomes bigger.

A good TV number is 255-0700 known for guaranteed satisfaction. Your set is serviced right in the home nine out of ten times to save time and money. Ask your neighbors about us and you'll phone the good TV number, too.

Exec brings top management to Christian service work

by LEA TONKIN

It takes a certain restlessness for a man to move his family a 20th time to a new job location. "As long as there is challenge and interest, I'll be there," says executive William H. Slomp. "My wife says that when I'm 80 I'll still be looking for another interest and another challenge."

For the challenge of the Christian youth work and one-quarter the pay he earned as vice president and general manager of Addressograph Multigraph's AM Services in Schaumburg, Slomp is moving on once again. This month he takes on new responsibilities as executive vice president of operations for the Youth for Christ organization in Wheaton.

Three or four years ago, he recalls, "I was going to take early retirement to do some consulting and part-time Christian work." Slomp's background as a marketing executive drew offers of a top spot in the new AM Services Division. So Slomp took it on as a new challenge. "Now we've been going a few years," he said of AM Services. "We've developed a management group of 160 people and several executives."

And as Slomp cheerfully explains, "When things get going well and too smoothly I need a new challenge." He considered full-time Christian service work a natural extension of involvement in youth activities for many years. "Most Christian organizations are looking for business people to bring in," he said. "They're looking to management and experience in their work."

THE TRANSITION from the business world to service work will not mean a change in attitude, Slomp contends. "I'm very person-oriented," he said. "I've found it's the only way to get things done. I think it's true in business and in work. Number one: people are everything; number two, people work well together. That's part of management."

Slomp's decision to join YFC is based on its people-orientation and its nondiscriminational youth programs in high schools. In addition to high school counseling and recreation groups, YFC operates group homes for delinquent minors and drug abuse centers. Slomp will be active in field work for the organization, in fund raising and other activities. "I look at this as a field selling job," said Slomp.

How long will Slomp be content in Christian service work? Although he views his new job as an opportunity to contribute to others, Slomp concedes that challenge is what makes him tick. "It's a certain restlessness in myself," he said. "My career direction will be the same though the place could change."

PUSH exposition slated Sept. 25-29

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, national president of Chicago-based Operation PUSH, announced plans for the group's annual business and cultural exposition to be held Sept. 25-29. Nearly 400 exhibits on the theme, "Save the Worker" will be featured at the show when it opens at the International Amphitheatre, Chicago.

NI-Gas forms energy company in New England

Northern Illinois Gas Co. has announced the formation of the New England Energy Co. The new company filed an application the same day with the Maine Dept. of Environmental Protection to build a 250,000-barrel-a-day oil refinery in Sanford, Me.

C. J. Gauthier, NI-Gas chairman and president, said NEECO is a Maine corporation owned by principals in the joint refinery project: affiliates of Gibbs Oil Co., Revere, Mass.; Burmah Oil Inc., the U.S. subsidiary of the Burmah Oil Co., Ltd., U.K.; NI-Gas Supply Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of NI-Gas, and Rucados Oil Co., which is owned by Boston businessman Lovett C. Peters, president of the refinery corporation.

NEECO's filing also requested permission to construct a dry cargo facility on the Portland waterfront and a series of pipelines to transport crude oil to the refinery and carry petroleum products to market area. In total, the refinery project is expected to cost more than $600 million.

Gauthier said NI-Gas, which serves 1.25 million customers in the northern third of Illinois, hopes to utilize certain petroleum products from the refinery as feedstocks for the company's Aux Sable Supplemental Natural Gas facility near Morris, Ill. Public hearings on today's filing are expected to begin Nov. 1, and continue for several months.

everything in banking

It's all at your fingertips. The fourteen important banking services you normally need to handle all of your financial affairs. It's there when you join OMNI, Roselle State Bank's All-In-One banking service package.

OMNI is not free, but at just $2.98 per month, it makes so many other services free that you normally would pay for, it will save you money in the long run. In fact, the free checking and free postage privileges alone could more than offset its cost.

Convenience—that's OMNI's strong suit. The fact that many vital services can be handled for you, automatically by the bank, without your having to visit the bank—that's another big plus OMNI offers you. To qualify for OMNI, fill out the coupon below.

Once your application is approved, here's what you get with OMNI:

1. Free checking, no minimum balance. Means you never pay a service charge for unlimited check writing. Free checking makes the rest of OMNI work.
2. Check guarantee card allows you to cash any check up to $100 where merchants recognize the RSB guarantee.
3. $2.98 savings account. Yes, we'll take your first $2.98 monthly payment and use it in a new savings account for you. If you presently have a savings account, we'll add $2.98 to the balance.
4. Automatic Transfer. Here is a banking convenience that's years ahead. With your OMNI plan, we'll automatically transfer funds in preauthorized amounts from your checking account to your savings account. You may even arrange to make loan payments automatically, from your checking account. All as near as your telephone!
5. Checking Plus. Another great idea in easy banking. Checking Plus actually allows you to write a check for more money than you have in your account. The overdraft is treated as a loan. You pay only 1½% a month (18% annual percentage rate) and you may pay the loan fully at any time to avoid further interest charges. As you make payments your original line of credit is re-established. Naturally, all credit lines are subject to normal credit investigations prior to authorization. Next time you're caught short, write yourself a loan, with your own check.
6. 10% discount on installment loans. That's right. A discount! Let's say you borrow enough money to make your interest payment $250 after three years' time. At the end of that time, with a good record of payment, you can expect to be reimbursed $25.00. And, unless you specify otherwise, we'll put those funds in your savings account. Not a bad idea? It sure isn't, but it's yours only with OMNI.
7. Free Gift checks. Never a service charge with OMNI.
8. Free travelers checks. Purchase any amount without paying the normal fee. Save $10 on every $1000.
9. Free certified checks. Service charge free, of course.
10. Free money orders. Free of the usual service fee.
11. Free notary public service.
12. Free postage. On all bank-by-mail transactions—both ways!
13. Combined statement for each and every service, sent to you each and every month.
14. Group travel packages. From time to time, we'll be offering OMNI Plan members special arrangements for vacations and business trips, handled by professional travel consultants. We will also offer special purchases of various merchandise at reduced prices, for OMNI Plan members only.

Gentlemen:
I'm sold on complete banking services. Please send me an application for your money-saving OMNI plan.

FBI cracks $100,000 industrial espionage scheme

New York man arrested in attempt to sell stolen corporate documents to Elk Grove Village firm

by STEVE BROWN

An industrial espionage scheme to sell stolen corporate documents valued at more than $100,000 to a Northwest suburban firm has been broken up by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

FBI agents said the attempted plan was ended when a New York man was arrested Monday night at O'Hare International Tower Hotel.

The scheme was thwarted when officials of Advance Systems Inc., 1601 Tonne Blvd., Elk Grove Village, tipped FBI agents that Louis Thomas Ricciardi was trying to sell secret product development plans stolen from a Schiller Park company.

Ricciardi, 31, was charged with interstate transportation of stolen property. He was still being held by federal authorities Tuesday night. His bond has been set at $15,000.

CORPORATE OFFICIALS from both Advance Systems and Deltak, 9950 W. Lawrence Ave., Schiller Park, were hesitant to comment on the case which began to develop early Monday when Ricciardi stepped off an airplane from New York.

A former salesman with Deltak, Ricciardi called Advance Systems, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of video-tape recording devices. He offered to sell the company lists of prospective clients and highly confidential reports on the development of new products.

Deltak also is involved in the production of video-tape equipment.

"He was apparently into it only for the money," one government investigator said.

A spokesman for Advance Systems said his company contacted Deltak immediately after Ricciardi made his first call to its offices.

THE FBI WAS CALLED into the case and began tracing Ricciardi's movements during the day.

Groundbreaking slated for late November

State gives OK to plans for area satellite hospital

by JOE FRANZ

Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital's plans for a satellite facility to serve the Wheeling-Elk Grove area have received final approval, state officials said Tuesday.

The Illinois Dept. of Public Health approved the engineering and architectural plans for the $11.3 million branch. Earlier in the year, preliminary plans for the project were approved by the agency.

Michael Goldasich, an architect for the state, said the plans were "approved with comments." Along with the approval, he said, the state made a number of suggestions for improving the facility.

Groundbreaking is expected by late November.

The comments made by the state are usually just recommendations, Goldasich said, and whether they are followed is up to the discretion of the builder. He said all the recommendations concerned "minor points."

APPROVAL OF THE branch comes just days before a new state law goes into effect requiring hospital backers to resubmit their plans and demonstrate a need for any new health-care facilities.

Norman Davis, a consultant to the hospital, recently told The Herald, he feared if plans were not approved by the time the new law takes effect, his clients might have difficulty receiving state approval.

Under the so-called certificate of need law, which takes effect Oct. 1, any agency or person interested in building a hospital would have to show that the facility is needed at the location where it is proposed.

Until now, need was not taken into consideration by the state in approving hospital facilities. According to Davis, Franklin Boulevard might have had problems satisfying the need requirement set down in the new law.

STATE OFFICIALS also have said it would be difficult to show a need for a hospital in the Wheeling-Elk Grove area because several nearby hospitals are not filled.

Davis said Tuesday groundbreaking for the 228-bed hospital could come in late November, providing hospital backers are able to get financing to pay for its construction. He said they should know in the near future whether financing is available.

The satellite branch is to be on the east side of Schoenbeck Road, just south of Wheeling's corporate limits. Property for the project consists of two tracts totaling 20 acres and costing an estimated $500,000.

Patrick DeMoon, executive director of Franklin Boulevard Hospital in Chicago, said the hospital would eventually be annexed to Wheeling. The facility will be called Wheeling-Elk Grove Community Hospital.

The facility will be designed to handle Buffalo Grove and Wheeling, parts of Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Northbrook and southern Lake County.

SULLIVAN CONCURRED with the bargain agreement because he said he wanted the two teen-agers to resume a relatively normal life despite the blemish on their record. "It's important to my way of thinking that Mr. Kopecky finish school and Mr. Serowka continue working," he said.

About the fine, Sullivan said, "I do think it should be more than a token amount, but something reasonable for them to pay." He said Serowka would be required to pay about $50 a month from his salary and reserved the amount of fine Kopecky should pay because he is still going to school.

Serowka's attorney, James Andros, said, "the court has done justice," when asked whether the decision was too strict or too lenient. He was asked about the reaction of the two families of the teen-agers. "As parents they are concerned," he said. He added, "The boys are not criminals."

'Firebombers' get 5 yrs. probation

by BARRY SIGALE

Two Wheeling teen-agers Tuesday were sentenced to five years probation and three years in a work-release program after pleading guilty to charges they firebombed Wheeling High School June 8.

Erwin J. Kopecky, 18, of 912 Wilshire Dr., and James Serowka, 18, of 287 E. Norman Ln., also were ordered to pay an undetermined sum of money to High School Dist. 214 for damages to the school's library. Estimates of damage range from $350,000 to $500,000. Circuit Court Judge Harold W. Sullivan presided over the case.

Under the terms of the plea-bargaining agreement between assistant state attorneys and defense lawyers, Kopecky and Serowka will continue with their normal daily routines for the next two years, but will have to surrender themselves nightly at the House of Corrections in Chicago.

THE YOUTHS ARE free on $10,000 bond to take care of personal business before their sentence takes effect. They are scheduled to begin serving their sentences Oct. 3 when they will be taken from their next Skokie court appearance for their first night in jail.

Sullivan said he will work out the final details of the sentence which will allow Kopecky to continue to attend Wheeling High School, where he is a senior, and Serowka, a 1973 graduate of Wheeling High School, to work full-time.

The courtroom was quiet, and the defendants and their parents solemn, as the evidence against the two youths was presented. The youths were charged with throwing bricks and Molotov cocktails through the library windows, touching off the fire. Witnesses at a party across the street from the school identified Kopecky and Serowka as the persons responsible.

After the evidence was given, Sullivan turned to the two teen-agers and asked them individually, "Is that (the evidence) substantially correct?" Both teen-agers replied, "Yes."

Sullivan made sure the teen-agers understood the ramifications of pleading guilty to arson, a felony which carries a maximum one to 20 years sentence and $10,000 fine. "You did one rather irrational act here," Sullivan said. "If you do something similar in the future I would then revoke the probation."

Three-year-old Kristi Marie Cox gets help from firemen.

45 minutes of hell for tot

A 3-year-old girl went into shock Tuesday while firemen worked for 45 minutes to free her foot from an open sewer pipe in the Arlington Heights Trailer Park adjacent to the race track. She later recovered.

Kristi Marie Cox, of Trailer 36, was walking on the grass behind her home at noon when her foot slipped into the four inch opening of a cast iron sewer pipe that was exposed at ground level.

The Arlington Heights Fire Dept. rescue squad first attempted to slide the girl's foot out of the pipe with car soap. The firemen were attempting to dig out the area around the pipe when they struck a water main, adjacent to the sewer pipe in the ground, and broke it open.

The cold water shooting out of the main put the girl into shock, said Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden. Firemen used an air chisel to cut two feet of the sewer pipe out of the ground, and then cut the pipe off the girl's foot after the water running through the water main was shut off.

The girl was taken by a fire department ambulance to Northwest Community Hospital where she was checked and released.

Funeral services today for Clarence B. Pontius

Funeral services will be today for Lake County Vernon Township Supervisor Clarence B. Pontius, who died Saturday of cancer.

A Mass will be said today at 10 a.m. at St. Joseph the Worker Catholic church, 181 W. Dundee Rd., in Wheeling. Burial will follow in Ascension Cemetery in Libertyville.

Pontius, 62, was a long-time Vernon Township official and served for a period on the Lake County Board. He was a Vernon Township auditor in 1965 when he was elected supervisor, a post he held until the time of his death.

Before his association with the township, Pontius was a Riverwoods village board member and was instrumental in obtaining township funds for the Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau project serving Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

Pontius also helped in the formation of the Lincolnshire - Half Day Chamber of Commerce, in addition heading the committee that engineered plans for the Vernon Township Library that operates out of Stevenson High School in Prairie View.

By profession, Pontius worked in graphic arts and was a former employee of the Chicago Daily News advertising department.

At a meeting Monday night, Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong eulogized Pontius, saying, "He was one of the few, unique politicians who devoted himself 100 per cent to the citizens he represented with no thought of pushing his own name or reputation."

Pontius, a Deerfield resident, is survived by his wife, Mary, and a daughter, Patricia Ann.

Cooper students can choose era for history study

by JUDY JOBBITT

American history has taken a new twist for students at Cooper Junior High School.

They don't have to start with the founding of America and hope to get through the mass of material to the 20th Century. Instead students get to choose what areas of American history they want to concentrate on for study during the year.

Course options include classes on the Civil War, the wars from the Spanish-American War through Vietnam, the history of Illinois and social protest. The only requirement for the eighth grade history students is a nine-week course on the Constitution and American Revolution.

The history electives program is the brain-child of Hugh Brady, a social studies teacher at Cooper, and the result of work by the teachers in the department.

"It's impossible to get through 400 years of U. S. history," said Lou Kegel, social studies teacher. "We never got to modern time — never got to the interesting stuff."

STUDENTS HAVE American history in grades 5, 8 and 11. Brady said because students cover the full span of American history in at least two other grades, teachers at Cooper decided to offer them an opportunity to specialize in their areas of interest.

Getting into interesting details about American history is the core of the program, said Brady. Each student selects three areas of concentration besides the Constitution.

"Teachers sat down and chose the areas for courses," he said. "This lets teachers teach areas of strength. When a teacher is teaching something he's not strong in, he gets tied to the textbook."

THE TRADITIONAL approach often locked teachers into using the textbook, he said. The new approach encourages and requires teachers and students to use other materials and a variety of resources.

Reuben Conrad, coordinator of social sciences for High School Dist. 214, said the education trend in history is to teach by subject areas rather than following the sequence of historical events.

"The problem with the sequence is students get the same thing over and over again," Conrad said. "It's just a repetition and the topic is so extensive that no one is going to cover it all in depth."

He said teachers are using topic areas such as the wars or social protest to have students learn the facts. Studies show that after about four years students forget 95 per cent of the facts taught them through the traditional sequential method, he added. With the new method of teaching, students might remember more of the facts because they can tie them in with a topic of interest and relate the sequence of events better.

TEN DIFFERENT courses are being offered at Cooper this year. The students received information about the program the first day of school and selected which courses they wanted to take during the year. Most students received their top choices, said Brady, although one traditional class was scheduled because some students couldn't fit the new program into their schedule.

The courses follow a format similar to a college curriculum where students have in-depth study in their areas of interest. And most of the youngsters seemed to enjoy it after the first two weeks.

"There's nice variety in the program," said Karen Stein. "Last year I don't think I learned anything."

"Yeah-it holds your interest," agreed Cathy Davis.

"This way you're studying what you want to and what you learn is more useful," said Karen.

Arson-damaged library to reopen by mid-October

by JUDY JOBBITT

Rows of new books soon will line shelves of the rebuilt Wheeling High School Library.

The library, almost destroyed last June by arsonists, has quickly taken shape and is expected to be reopened by mid-October.

During the summer months and continuing into the school year, volunteers from the community worked with school librarians to refurbish what they could and order and catalog thousands of books that had to be replaced.

STACKS OF BOOKS have been coming in daily since August; about 6,000 have been processed and are ready for circulation. More than 22,000 books were destroyed by the fire and many cannot be replaced because they are no longer in print, said Margery Petty, librarian.

Replacements for books that cannot be duplicated are being sought at this time. But the shelves are being stocked and will be ready as soon as the library is completed.

The refurbished library will have an improved lighting system and new color scheme of off-white walls, blue tweed carpeting and gold fixtures.

The remodeled facilities will have the same type of wooden furniture as the old library. "We tried to stay with wood on stacks and tables," said Mrs. Petty. "It makes a pleasant, warm room."

Although the style of furniture in the old library no longer is made, the district put in a special order for the same style from the furniture manufacturer.

A LARGE PORTION of the work behind the scenes to get the books ready was done by community volunteers. "A lot of people cared and pitched in," said Mrs. Petty. "It's grimy work. The ladies gave a lot of their time without expecting any repayment. It made up for a lot of the shock we had."

Volunteers worked to help clean about 100,000 smoke-damaged cards in the card catalog.

They also tried to save the periodicals that were damaged when the exhaust system pulled the smoke into the room where they were stored and left them blackened with soot.

Wallpaper cleaner salvaged many of the periodicals, but the school still is looking for complete editions of magazines from the community.

The audiovisual equipment also was damaged by the fire, but volunteers cleaned it during the summer. "It's clean and working but smoke increases the oxidation rate and things that could rust, may rust," said Wallace Carlstedt, audio-visual director. He said the extent of the damage to the media equipment won't be known for sometime.

WHEELING HAS BEEN operating with a make-shift library this fall. The English resource center was converted into a library room and is housing many of the books that have been received and cataloged.

The Wheeling Public Library also has cooperated by allowing students to use the facility during the day and by loaning sets of books that are needed for specific class assignments, said Mrs. Petty.

The other high schools in Dist. 214 have also helped fill in the void left by the library fire by sharing their facilities and books with students at Wheeling.

But soon the ravaged room will be a nightmare of the past as students use the new facility and are the first to open the books that line the shelves.

ROWS OF BOOKS fill tables and shelves in the for the Wheeling High School library. Of the center being used to prepare thousands of books 22,000 books that were destroyed in the library fire last June, about 8,000 have been received and are ready for the opening of the library.

Group needs women volunteers

LWV to 'watchdog' area meetings

Area women are needed to serve as governmental watchdogs in the observer program operated in six villages by the League of Women Voters of the Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect Area.

The observer's job is to report to the local league chapter what happens at the various board meetings and to make sure that the open meeting law is not violated. The observer program is part of a national league effort to cover governmental activities on all levels.

Although the observer program is not new, the league has found it difficult to provide continuous coverage in all six of its towns. In Mount Prospect, for example, a league observer has just been assigned to the village board, which has been without an observer for the past three or four years.

Janet Yauch, 515 N. Forest Ave., Mount Prospect, said she took the village board assignment so she could get "more in tune with Mount Prospect." Last year she observed the library board meetings in her town, but moved to the village board so that someone with less time could fill the less demanding library board observer post.

THE PROBLEM with filling the observer posts, according to Mrs. Yauch, is that it is difficult to "get women out of the house at night." She said most members of the league either work or have small children making it difficult for them to get away in the evening.

Currently, the league has observers for village board meetings in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village and Buffalo Grove. In addition, observers are attending library board meetings in Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village.

Beverly Tyrcha, head of the local observer program, said she still has not found observers for any of the governmental meetings in Wheeling or Prospect Heights. "Of course, we have to ask people to cover things in their own town," she said. Persons interested in the observer program are asked to call 394-5210.

Ideally, Mrs. Yauch said the league should have observers at all park district, school district and township meetings, as well as the board meetings of Harper College.

THE OBSERVERS are given guidelines set out by the National League of Women Voters to help them in their watchdog capacity. If any irregularities are found at the meetings, the observers must report back to the league's board to see what action should be taken.

"The league's motto is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government," Mrs. Yauch said. "Newspapers are fine, but nothing beats being there."

In some cases, the observer often attends meetings that are not even covered by the newspapers. Mrs. Yauch said that during her year of observing the Mount Prospect Library Board she was usually the only non-board member at the meetings.

'Several leads' in two sexual assault cases

Police Tuesday were investigating "several good leads" in their efforts to find a man who sexually assaulted one teen-age girl in Buffalo Grove and another in Deerfield Friday night.

"We're pretty positive it was the same guy," said Sgt. Kenneth Blanchette of the Buffalo Grove police. Deerfield police agreed. "I don't think there is any doubt," one policeman said.

The Buffalo Grove incident occurred at about 10:30 p.m. on Chatham Circle near Beechwood Road. The young girl was grabbed and forced behind a house, Blanchette said. "He made no attempt to rape her. He just left her," Blanchette added.

The Deerfield incident took place just before 8 p.m. in Jewett Park, located west of Waukegan Road near Deerfield Road. Police again said they could find no evidence of rape. The victim was 14 years old.

The suspect is described as white, aged 19 to 21, 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet tall, 200 pounds, with a beard and shoulder-length "frizzy" hair. In both incidents he was wearing a plaid shirt and dark pants.

FBI cracks $100,000 industrial espionage scheme

New York man arrested in attempt to sell stolen corporate documents to Elk Grove Village firm

by STEVE BROWN

An industrial espionage scheme to sell stolen corporate documents valued at more than $100,000 to a Northwest suburban firm has been broken up by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

FBI agents said the attempted plan was ended when a New York man was arrested Monday night at O'Hare International Tower Hotel.

The scheme was thwarted when officials of Advance Systems Inc., 1601 Tonne Blvd., Elk Grove Village, tipped FBI agents that Louis Thomas Ricciardi was trying to sell secret product development plans stolen from a Schiller Park company.

Ricciardi, 31, was charged with interstate transportation of stolen property. He was still being held by federal authorities Tuesday night. His bond has been set at $15,000.

CORPORATE OFFICIALS from both Advance Systems and Deltak, 9950 W. Lawrence Ave., Schiller Park, were hesitant to comment on the case which began to develop early Monday when Ricciardi stepped off an airplane from New York.

A former salesman with Deltak, Ricciardi called Advance Systems, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of video-tape recording devices. He offered to sell the company lists of prospective clients and highly confidential reports on the development of new products.

Deltak also is involved in the production of video-tape equipment.

"He was apparently into it only for the money," one government investigator said.

A spokesman for Advance Systems said his company contacted Deltak immediately after Ricciardi made his first call to its offices.

THE FBI WAS CALLED into the case and began tracing Ricciardi's movements during the day.

Some aldermen want structure razed

Historical society seeks use of old city hall building

The Des Plaines Historical Society has put in a formal bid to take over the city hall building as its future headquarters.

The society, headquartered at 777 Lee St. has asked that it be allowed to use the city hall building once the city offices are shifted to the new $1.8 million municipal building now under construction.

The proposal will be reviewed by the city council at its Oct. 7 meeting, but it could face difficulties. A number of aldermen have suggested that the old building be torn down when the municipal offices and police building are completed.

THEY HAVE SUGGESTED that the open space could be landscaped into an attractive park area.

Society officials indicated they have been informed that the 70 year-old Kinder family home, now used as the organization's offices and museum, is located on land that will be used as part of the downtown redevelopment program.

John Engelson, president of the First Federal Savings and Loan of Des Plaines, said Tuesday that while the institution has not given the historical society a definite date when it will have to be out, it has been told that the present location should not be considered a permanent home.

Engelson said the savings and loan has plans to build a drive-up banking facility on the property. He said plans for that structure are contingent on the other facets of the proposed downtown redevelopment program.

HE COULD NOT predict how long they might be able to continue using the property.

Historical society officials had considered a proposal to move the home to another site out of the path of redevelopment, but no action was taken primarily because the estimated cost of the move would be between $10,000 and $15,000.

In earlier discussions, several aldermen suggested that the present city hall building be razed once the new facilities are completed. Some have argued the structure, which was built in 1936, should be preserved as a historical building.

In the formal proposal that has been submitted to the city council by the historical society, portions of the Kinder home would be preserved and used with other society displays. Much of the ornate wood work in the building would be incorporated into the old city hall.

While the city might not be willing to turn over the old city hall building to the society, Mayor Herbert H. Behrel has suggested the city explore the possibility of obtaining the post office building at Graceland and Ellinwood streets as a future home for the organization.

City officials anticipate the post office will become surplus government property once a new postal service facility is completed at Oakton Street and Executive Way in 1976.

Maine Twp. high schools 1974-75 budget up 35%

The Maine Township High School Dist. 207 Board of Education has approved a 1974-75 budget totaling $32,975,950, a 35 per cent increase over last year's budget.

The board gave final approval to the budget at its regular meeting Monday night. Business Mgr. Harold Markworth said that while the budget is higher than last year's, the school district is still "on the austerity program."

Educational spending in the budget totals $18,810,800, a 11.8 per cent increase from $16,835,750 last year. Markworth said most of the increase was for salary raises for teachers and other staff. The educational fund is used for professional salaries, program improvements, services, equipment and supplies.

A total of $3,147,593 is proposed for the operations, building and maintenance fund, a 21.9 per cent increase from last year. The building fund covers costs of maintaining, improving or repairing school buildings and property. Also included are salaries of custodial and maintenance personnel.

The new budget allot $3,177,055 for bonds and interests, $170,000 for transportation, $350,000 for the municipal retirement fund and $968,000 for fire prevention and safety.

Last year's expenditure were $3,104,900 for bonds and interests, $138,700 for transportation, $440,000 for municipal retirement and $515,000 for fire prevention and safety.

The 1974-75 budget also includes $695,500 for the Maine-Oakton-Niles Adult Continuing Education Program (MONA-CEP) and $710,533 for the Maine Township Special Education program.

Supt. Richard Short said the budget "meets the increased economics problems for the coming year. We feel good about it as it exists."

Car hits ambulance

A Rosemont Fire Dept. ambulance transporting a patient to Resurrection Hospital, Chicago, was struck by an auto at Touhy Avenue and Maple Street Monday.

The ambulance was eastbound on Touhy going against a red light with its lights and sirens on when it was struck by an auto going northbound on Maple. Neither the driver of the ambulance, Francis P. Speciale, 42, of 6132 N. Hawthorne, Rosemont, nor the driver of the auto, Robert A. Andre, 56, of 1864 Maple St., Des Plaines, was ticketed.

Woman's purse taken at shopping center

A pair of thieves grabbed a Des Plaines woman's purse Monday night at the Mount Prospect Plaza, police said Tuesday. The purse contained $48 worth of food stamps and $24 in cash.

According to police, Florence J. Hansen, 68, of 558 Graceland Ave., had just left the Goldblatt's store, 1080 Mount Prospect Plaza, when she was approached by a woman from the rear and a man from the front. The man grabbed the purse, police said, and then both ran off.

The man was described as white, aged 20, 5 feet 3 inches tall, thin build, with dark, collar-length hair. He was wearing a tan three-quarter-length coat and light-colored pants. The woman was described as white, aged 20, 5 feet 6 inches tall, medium build, with dark, shoulder-length hair and wearing a dark coat.

45 minutes of hell for tot

A 3-year-old girl went into shock Tuesday while firemen worked for 45 minutes to free her foot from an open sewer pipe in the Arlington Heights Trailer Park adjacent to the race track. She later recovered.

Kristi Marie Cox, of Trailer 36, was walking on the grass behind her home at noon when her foot slipped into the four inch opening of a cast iron sewer pipe that was exposed at ground level.

The Arlington Heights Fire Dept. rescue squad first attempted to slide the girl's foot out of the pipe with car soap. The firemen were attempting to dig out the area around the pipe when they struck a water main, adjacent to the sewer pipe in the ground, and broke it open.

The cold water shooting out of the main put the girl into shock, said Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden. Firemen used an air chisel to cut two feet of the sewer pipe out of the ground, and then cut the pipe off the girl's foot after the water running through the water main was shut off.

The girl was taken by a fire department ambulance to Northwest Community Hospital where she was checked and released.

$14,000 gifts save USO, but future in doubt

by LUISA GINETTI

The USO Lounge at O'Hare Airport has experienced some hard financial times within the past few months, but through the help of a desperation fund-raising effort the soldier's shelter has managed to survive.

Faced last June with the possibility of having to close because of lack of funds, the local USO put out a plea for donations. Officials said $32,000 would be needed to keep the operation going.

Although this amount was not collected, the USO did receive about $14,000 in contributions from individuals and groups that has enabled the servicemen's club to carry on, said Dorothy Conley, O'Hare USO director.

"Thanks to a lot of good press and the help of many organizations, we managed to raise half the amount we needed," Mrs. Conley said. "Groups that normally would have sent in donations at the end of the year rushed in their contributions ahead of time."

AMONG THE LARGER benefactors were the American Legion Auxiliary of Illinois, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Mount Prospect Junior Women's Club and many local community chests.

With the help of these funds the O'Hare USO lounge will stay open at least through the end of this year, Mrs. Conley said. "The funds have assured that we can continue to operate at least through the Christmas and New Year's season. I don't know what kind of fund-raising campaign is being planned for the end of the year or if we'll be able to operate beyond New Year's," Mrs. Conley said.

The survival of the airport-based USO has been accompanied by some negative side effects as Mrs. Conley points out that certain cutbacks have had to be made.

The O'Hare lounge had to reduce its hours by closing down on Saturday nights, which Mrs. Conley said is traditionally the slowest night of the week at the lounge. The USO now is open six days a week from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Rising prices also have forced budget cuts for items such as coffee and doughnuts, a servicemen's staple at the USO.

Another major area affected by the declining funds is the Chicago local's contribution to the national USO. Mrs. Conley said Chicago used to raise enough money to make a substantial contribution to the national to support the operation of overseas clubs. That contribution has now dropped to very nominal fee if anything at all, Mrs. Conley said.

DESPITE ITS FINANCIAL problems, Mrs. Conley seems optimistic about the future of the Chicago local based at O'Hare. "Donations are not coming in at the same tempo they were but this is a slow period. We have gotten a lot of support from local groups and it's nice to know we have organizations that continue to support us all year."

She said there still is a need for the USO lounge. "We average about 5,000 servicemen a month," Mrs. Conley said, although she acknowledged that this is a drop from the "Vietnam years."

The organization will continue to rely on charitable contributions for its existence, Mrs. Conley said, because the USO is supported entirely by donations and receives no money from the federal government or the military.

The director said she is grateful for the help given the Chicago local in its most recent hour of need. "The people came through when we needed a show of confidence."

Mikva hits Young's bid to resurrect draft

by STEVE BROWN

Congressional challenger Abner J. Mikva has taken issue with a suggestion by his opponent, U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-Ill., to reinstitute the draft to save money.

Young suggested that a new draft could be considered as one alternative to the all-volunteer Army. The congressman said that while he is generally in favor of military spending he thought there should be a thorough review of the all-volunteer Army concept.

"Possibly we ought to consider going away from the all-volunteer Army and reinstituting the draft which would give young men to serve their country including the armed forces," Young said during a recent accountability session in Evanston.

YOUNG'S STAFF said the congressman's proposal includes the option of some type of national service, like the Peace Corps and VISTA in addition to the military.

Young noted that the military now is spending 57 cents of every tax dollar it receives for salaries, clothes and housing for servicemen.

Mikva, however, was critical of Young's suggestion. "If Mr. Young wants to reduce military spending, he should stop voting to give the military a blank check to waste on obsolete, wasteful, inflationary weapons systems," Mikva said.

Samuel H. Young

In a prepared statement, Mikva noted that during the two years Young has been in Congress he has voted against measures that would have trimmed $5.6 billion from military appropriations.

Mikva said that one amendment the congressman voted against would have cut $85 million for a missile site the Pentagon admitted it planned to close down six months after it became operative.

MIKVA ALSO took a stand against reinstituting the draft. "It is unthinkable, now that we are at peace, to unnecessarily force American youths to disrupt their lives by being conscripted into the Army," he said.

The two candidates have been at odds with each other throughout the campaign over their views on military spending. Mikva voted against many military appropriations bills during his two terms in Congress. He has been critical of waste in the military and also said his votes represented his opposition to the Vietnam war.

Young has repeatedly stated that he favors a strong defense program and has supported many military appropriation measures.

Students say Oakton College newspaper censored

A meeting of the Oakton Community College Board of Trustees nearly dissolved into a shouting match Tuesday night as a group of students charged that the student newspaper has been subtly censored. In addition, a member of the Oakton board protested statements attributed to the college president by the student paper.

Robert Fein, former co-editor of the Daily Planet, the Oakton student newspaper, charged that he had been rejected as editor of the paper by the Student Publications Board because he had written articles critical of the college administration.

Fein told the board, "Direct censorship stands out like a sore thumb. But being aimed at the Planet is a more subversive, more threatening kind of indirect censorship."

FEIN CHARGED that the publications board "felt I was too closely linked with a former editor" who had also been critical of the administration. He said that while working on the paper this summer, he also had written articles critical of the college.

The Student Publications Board, which is made up of faculty, administrators and students, names editors of the student publications. Fein said the publications board should have a majority of student members because the Daily Planet is financed totally by student fees.

During his statement, Fein engaged in an angry exchange with Oakton Trustee LeRoy Wauck, who referred to much of Fein's statement as "a pious litany."

Following Fein's statement, Oakton

Trustee Thomas Flynn angrily addressed the board "as a citizen, not as a board member," to protest a statement by Oakton Pres. William Koehnline in an interview with the Planet.

Koehnline was quoted as saying that in 1972, the college was unable to buy the Maryville Cemetery in Niles as a campus site because of opposition from the Catholic clergy and "Polish and Bohemian communities."

COLLEGE TRUSTEES in 1972 had first voted to condemn the cemetery for the college and later withdrew the decision after a public protest.

Flynn, although repeatedly gavelled to order by board chairman Ray Hartstein, insisted on making a statement that "there was no mobilization against Oakton by the clergy of the Catholic faith."

Later in the meeting, Flynn apologized to the board for the statement because board members had protested that he was out of order.

GARY CLAWS, left, and Jim Heavey, Des Plaines firemen, check out a stretcher in the department's new paramedic ambulance. The truck, which arrived last week, is furnished with $8,000 worth of special equipment to aid paramedics in on-the-spot treatment of accident victims. Officials say five firemen now completing paramedic training may be certified and ready to operate the ambulance within several weeks.

Man hit by train reported improving

Earl Long, the 52-year-old Chicago man who lost his legs after being hit by a train Friday in Des Plaines, is improving at Holy Family Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said Long, who had both legs surgically amputated above the knee, was transferred out of intensive care and into a room Tuesday.

Police said Long apparently was struck by a Chicago and North Western Ry. freight train headed eastbound on the north track at the Cumberland station during the evening rush hour.

Village tells Centex: share furnace repairs

Elk Grove Village officials are demanding that Centex Homes Corp. pay part of an estimated $85 installation cost and provide free replacement of defective furnace parts and venting systems in local houses with suspected furnace defects.

In a story Tuesday, The Herald incorrectly reported that Centex had offered to pay $85 toward the cost of furnace heat-exchanger replacements. The company in fact had arranged to have the replacements done for $85 but intended in its offer to the village that the residents pay the $85 themselves, village officials said Tuesday night.

But Village Pres. Charles Zetek rejected the offer and is now insisting that the builder pay not only a portion of the cost of installation of the replacement parts but for correction of building code violations as well.

Zetek predicted Centex Homes will accept the village's counter-proposal for additional financial help for homeowners, who he said should not be burdened with full charges for the furnace repairs.

HE ADDED HE was not against Centex determining for each homeowner what share of the replacement cost it would provide depending on the age of the furnace and how much of its warranty remains in effect.

Zetek said the village is asking Centex Homes to include reimbursement for all makes of defective furnaces not just those of Johnson Furnace Corp., whose furnaces made up the majority of those found defective in village studies.

Zetek's remarks came at Tuesday night's village board meeting as several village residents asked if the village is considering filing suit against Centex Homes and if it is willing to accept the company's offer of $6 do-it-yourself furnace repair kits as a solution to the problem.

Zetek said the $6 kit was rejected. Centex's offer of arrangement for repairs has also been rejected and the builder was notified that a better solution must be forthcoming, he said.

ZETEK SAID Centex and the company it hired originally to install the furnaces, Servaire-Metropolitan, Inc., offered in a letter dated Sept. 23 to install furnace replacement parts at an $85 cost to residents. Parts would be extra.

When one resident complained Tuesday that Servaire-Metropolitan billed him more than $160 for the replacement work, Zetek said he would make the letter available to homeowners for use in dealing with both companies.

House unit OKs funds for Salt Creek watershed

Application for $2.5 million in federal funds for the Salt Creek Watershed combined flood-control and recreation project was approved Tuesday by a U.S. House of Representatives subcommittee.

The measure, which already has passed the Senate, now will be brought before the House Public Works Committee and, if approved, will then go before the full house. House passage will then bring the application to the Office of Management and Budget for authorization.

The estimated $33 million dam and improvement project is proposed for the Busse Woods retention basin area of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in Elk Grove Township.

Six structures are to be built in the watershed including a retention basin in Busse Woods, a retention basin near Harper College in Palatine, and three "pit-type" excavations with pump discharges in Palatine.

THE TOTAL PROJECT will include a 589-acre basin in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve that was part of phase one of the work and is near completion. Several dams on Salt Creek including the main dam below its junction of the north and west branches which will create a 470-acre recreational lake in Busse Woods and a ski hill and picnic areas also are planned.

The completed project will have a flood-water storage capacity of 311 million gallons, large enough to store rain water from a 100-year storm, which is a storm so severe it is expected to occur only once in 100 years.

State funds also are being used in the project with more than $4 million already spent on construction work for dams and excavation for basins.

Recreational facilities of the watershed project are not expected to be ready for public use until late summer or early fall of 1976. Total construction time for the project is estimated at nine years.

2 get degrees from Wheaton

Bachelor degrees were awarded to two Elk Grove Village students at recent commencement exercises at Wheaton College.

Sherrane Butler, 524 Exmoor, received a bachelor of arts degree with a major in sociology. While at Wheaton, Miss Butler toured with the Women's Glee Club during her junior year. She is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Schuyler Butler.

Maon Kajiwaru received a bachelor of arts degree with a major in education. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kajiwaru, 1482 Volkamer Tr., and was graduated from Proviso West High School.

45 minutes of hell for tot

A 3-year-old girl went into shock Tuesday while firemen worked for 45 minutes to free her foot from an open sewer pipe in the Arlington Heights Trailer Park adjacent to the race track. She later recovered.

Kristi Marie Cox, of Trailer 36, was walking on the grass behind her home at noon when her foot slipped into the four inch opening of a cast iron sewer pipe that was exposed at ground level.

The Arlington Heights Fire Dept. rescue squad first attempted to slide the girl's foot out of the pipe with car soap. The firemen were attempting to dig out the area around the pipe when they struck a water main, adjacent to the sewer pipe in the ground, and broke it open.

The cold water shooting out of the main put the girl into shock, said Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden. Firemen used an air chisel to cut two feet of the sewer pipe out of the ground, and then cut the pipe off the girl's foot after the water running through the water main was shut off.

The girl was taken by a fire department ambulance to Northwest Community Hospital where she was checked and released.

Babysitting clinic planned

The Elk Grove Village Jayettes are sponsoring a babysitting clinic for boys and girls aged 11 to 16 which will run for the next five Tuesdays from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. through Oct. 29.

The clinic is designed to teach youngsters babysitting techniques including how to deal with emergency situations. Guest speaker will include teachers, firemen and policemen.

Openings exist for 50 students and registration forms are available at Elk Grove Village schools. A $2 registration fee will be charged and a short exam will be given at the end of the course.

The clinic will be at Grant Wood School, 225 E. Elk Grove Blvd.

SOCIAL WORKERS Barbara Harris (left) and Susan Stoecker have new jobs with the Elk Grove Village Police Dept. They are the first staff members hired for the recently created social-service section that is attached to the investigations/youth division of the department.

Police department counselors

Two social workers hope to cut juvenile crime here

by JILL BETTNER

Behind almost every arrest recorded daily on the Elk Grove Village police blotter there's a story — a story of the personal problems, frustrations or circumstances that led to the breaking of a law.

Without professional help, some of the people on that blotter are likely to be listed again and again. But with counseling, provided by two young social workers recently hired by the department, Elk Grove Village police hope to reduce local crime by eliminating some of the causes.

Barbara Harris, 29, and Susan Stoecker, 24, both with master's degrees and experience in social work, joined the department during the past two months as the first two members of a social-service section attached to the investigations/youth division.

THE TWO WOMEN provide individual counseling, help with marital problems and family therapy for persons who are referred to them mainly by village police.

About 80 per cent of their referrals come from the youth division and most involve juveniles arrested for drug abuse or drug-related crimes, Miss Harris said.

Between them, the two counselors see about 40 persons a week on a scheduled appointment basis. Cases other than those involving drugs range from child abuse and neglect to runaways, alcoholism, shoplifting, family and neighborhood disputes, they said.

Besides putting in long days at their desks in the police station, the social workers also are on call 24 hours a day to intervene when necessary in crisis sit-

Group needs women volunteers

LWV to 'watchdog' area meetings

Area women are needed to serve as governmental watchdogs in the observer program operated in six villages by the League of Women Voters of the Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect Area.

High school signup deadline is Oct. 1

Registration for high school diploma programs offered by High School Dist. 211 will continue through Oct. 1.

Persons age 16 or older who do not have a high school diploma may attend high school classes at night or enroll in a supervised home-study program. Counseling services are available for students and veterans are eligible for the program under the G.I. bill.

Classes are offered at Fremd High School, 1000 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine and include English, American history, social studies, auto mechanics and vocational seminar.

Students may register or request additional information on the diploma programs at the Dist. 211 office of continuing education, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine, 359-3300.

The observer's job is to report to the local league chapter what happens at the various board meetings and to make sure that the open meeting law is not violated. The observer program is part of a national league effort to cover governmental activities on all levels.

Although the observer program is not new, the league has found it difficult to provide continuous coverage in all six of its towns. In Mount Prospect, for example, a league observer has just been assigned to the village board, which has been without an observer for the past three or four years.

Janet Yauch, 515 N. Forest Ave., Mount Prospect, said she took the village board assignment so she could get "more in tune with Mount Prospect." Last year she observed the library board meetings in her town, but moved to the village board so that someone with less time could fill the less demanding library board observer post.

THE PROBLEM with filling the observer posts, according to Mrs. Yauch, is that it is difficult to "get women out of the house at night." She said most members of the league either work or have small children making it difficult for them to get away in the evening.

Currently, the league has observers for village board meetings in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village and Buffalo Grove. In addition, observers are attending library board meetings in Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village.

Beverly Tyrcha, head of the local observer program, said she still has not found observers for any of the governmental meetings in Wheeling or Prospect Heights. "Of course, we have to ask people to cover things in their own town," she said. Persons interested in the observer program are asked to call 394-5210.

Ideally, Mrs. Yauch said the league should have observers at all park district, school district and township meetings, as well as the board meetings of Harper College.

THE OBSERVERS are given guidelines set out by the National League of Women Voters to help them in their watchdog capacity. If any irregularities are found at the meetings, the observers must report back to the league's board to see what action should be taken.

"The league's motto is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government," Mrs. Yauch said. "News-papers are fine, but nothing beats being there."

In some cases, the observer often attends meetings that are not even covered by the newspapers. Mrs. Yauch said that during her year of observing the Mount Prospect Library Board she was usually the only non-board member at the meetings.

Boat, trailer stolen from car dealer's lot

A $4,000 power boat and trailer were reported stolen from the Hoskins Chevrolet car lot, 175 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Elk Grove Village.

Police said the 16-foot boat, with a 120-horsepower outboard motor and trailer, were taken sometime between late Friday and Monday. The theft was reported to police Tuesday.

Man arrested in bribe case

A Brookfield man was arrested Tuesday for attempted bribery of an Elk Grove Village policeman.

Robert J. Slet, 39, 4034 Prairie St., allegedly offered to pay Patrolman Russell Sonneveld $4 in exchange for his not writing two traffic tickets.

Slet had been stopped for an improper turn and non-functioning turn signals while driving near Oakton Street and Ill. Rte. 83.

He was released on $1,000 bond and is to appear in the Elk Grove Village branch of Circuit Court Oct. 9.

Administration cites 80 needs

Special panel to study needs of area high schools

A special committee has been set up by the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education to assess the needs for additional facilities at district schools.

The committee will be made up of 40 residents, five from each of the eight high schools, who will be chosen by the district administration and voted on by the board at its meeting Oct. 14.

The committee's first task will be to review a list of building needs submitted to the board Monday night by the administration.

BOARD PRES. Jack Costello called the list, "one that was well thought out," and the committee's task, "a formidable one."

No time limit was set for the special study. The list did not indicate how the improvements would be financed if the board decides to go ahead with them.

Supt. Edward Gilbert said the point of the panel's study will not be to make school facilities equal but rather "to bring facilities of schools up to the point that permits comparable quality of education." He added if all the improvements on the list can be built, the district will be providing comparable education at all schools.

Eighty major improvements and additions for the district were listed. The board asked for the list after a parents' group requested construction of swimming pools at some Dist.

214 schools to match facilities at other schools in the district.

STORAGE SPACE was sought by all eight schools, while five — Arlington, Buffalo Grove, John Hersey, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling high schools — all pointed out a need for additional land. Four schools — Wheeling, Hersey, Forest View and Elk Grove — requested additional facilities for power mechanics.

Swimming pools and either girls' gymnasiums or fieldhouses also were commonly cited "desirable facilities" in some schools. Schools lacking pools are Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows, Hersey and Prospect.

Additional requests include:

- Arlington High School: Enlargement and renovation of art department, relocation of foreign language classrooms in academic area; expansion of library, modernization of the boys' gym stage, addition of science lab-classrooms, improvements of home economics area, provision of space for faculty dining area, enlargement of greenhouse, provision of photo lab for film study and art instruction, improved football field lights and addition of one or two lecture rooms.

- Buffalo Grove: Installation of football field lights, visitors' bleachers and concession stand, addition of home economics laboratory and provision for storage area for vehicles and equipment.

- Elk Grove: Expansion of art instruction area, installation of greenhouse facilities, provision for classroom with stage for drama instruction and room for special education services.

- Forest View: Enlargement of cafeteria dining area, improvement of facilities for instrumental and choral music and rearrangement of business education area.

- Hersey: Coverage for tennis courts for additional indoor physical education space, upgrading of parking lot lights and installation of permanent restroom facilities in outdoor recreation area.

- Prospect: Enlargement of library, expansion of art and home economics areas, enlargement of cafeteria and expansion of counseling area to provide space for career education center.

- Wheeling: Expansion of instrumental and choral music facilities, addition of work and storage space in theater, rearrangement and renovation of various academic areas to accommodate current teaching methods.

In addition to the individual schools needs, district-wide needs to be studied include: construction of a district stadium, centralized storage warehouse and central construction technology facility, and development of facilities at Sunrise Lake Camp for recreational and outdoor type activities for special education.

Village police team takes second in Prospect 'shoot'

A four-man team of Mount Prospect police patrolmen won the first-place sharpshooter team award last weekend during the first Mount Prospect Invitational Shoot.

The winning team was Stephen Ramholz, Robert Creamer, Andy Toth and Warren Fischer. Other winners from the Mount Prospect police were Patrolman James Lange, who was second in the expert individual class, and Patrolman Ernest Dettmar, who was fifth in the sharpshooter individual class.

More than 50 police departments and 295 individual policemen participated in the shoot Saturday and Sunday at the Mount Prospect police pistol range, 1601 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect. A total of 44 trophies were awarded.

The overall team winners were a Cook County Sheriff's police group, with the Chicago FOP 7 Gold Team placing second, Brinks placing third and Deerfield police placing fourth. Other local winners were the Elk Grove Village Police Team 1, which took second place expert team, and Wheeling Patrolman William Sharpe, who took second place marksman individual.

Toth, a spokesman for the Mount Prospect Pistol League which sponsored the shoot, said additional shoots are planned for the future. The committee that worked on the shoot arrangements included Toth, Ramholz, John Gallett, Eugene Hooten and Lange.

Industrial burglaries under police probe

Elk Grove Village police are investigating two industrial burglaries they suspect might be connected.

Hersey Products, 1025 Criss Circle, was broken into sometime over the weekend and seven office machines were taken. The burglars entered the building by breaking an exhaust fan.

In the other incident, at the Shaffer Spring Co., 345 Criss Circle, $853 worth of office equipment was reported taken. Police said there were no visible signs of forced entry into the building.

THE IDEA OF adding social workers to the Elk Grove Police Dept. grew out of an experiment at the Wheaton and Niles police departments in 1970, Miss Harris said.

In a pilot program in the two communities, the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission (ILEC) and the local governments provided funds for the police departments to hire two students from the Jane Addams Graduate School of Social Work at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle campus.

Saying she considered the Elk Grove Police Dept. "progressive," in adopting the social-service program, Miss Harris said she feels local police are sensitive to the needs of the community.

"I think this is one reason why they wanted us to work especially with young people who come in contact with the police," she said. "By having social workers do counseling with these kids, the hope is to divert them from the juvenile justice system."

Miss Harris, who received her master's degree in social work from the University of Chicago, previously worked at the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind and the Schwab Rehabilitation Center, also in Chicago.

Miss Stoecker comes to the Elk Grove Police Dept. from the youth services department of County Sheriff Richard Elrod's office. She obtained her master's degree in social work from Loyola University.

Speakers to push school vote

A speakers' bureau consisting of High School Dist. 211 administrators and board members will be talking to civic and school organizations in the next few weeks about the district's upcoming bond referendum.

The $22 million referendum, which will go to voters for approval Oct. 19, is to finance a new high school in Palatine and additions to Schaumburg, Fremd, Conant and Hoffman Estates high schools.

Dist. 211 officials are emphasizing that the bond referendum will not increase the district's tax rate.

Community organizations may obtain a speaker from the bureau through Dist. 211 Associate Supt. Bruce Altergott at the district administration center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine, 359-3300.

FBI cracks $100,000 industrial espionage scheme

New York man arrested in attempt to sell stolen corporate documents to Elk Grove Village firm

by STEVE BROWN

An industrial espionage scheme to sell stolen corporate documents valued at more than $100,000 to a Northwest suburban firm has been broken up by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

FBI agents said the attempted plan was ended when a New York man was arrested Monday night at O'Hare International Tower Hotel.

The scheme was thwarted when officials of Advance Systems Inc., 1601 Tonne Blvd., Elk Grove Village, tipped FBI agents that Louis Thomas Ricciardi was trying to sell secret product development plans stolen from a Schiller Park company.

Ricciardi, 31, was charged with interstate transportation of stolen property. He was still being held by federal authorities Tuesday night. His bond has been set at $15,000.

CORPORATE OFFICIALS from both Advance Systems and Deltak, 9950 W. Lawrence Ave., Schiller Park, were hesitant to comment on the case which began to develop early Monday when Ricciardi stepped off an airplane from New York.

A former salesman with Deltak, Ricciardi called Advance Systems, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of video-tape recording devices. He offered to sell the company lists of prospective clients and highly confidential reports on the development of new products.

Deltak also is involved in the production of video-tape equipment.

"He was apparently into it only for the money," one government investigator said.

A spokesman for Advance Systems said his company contacted Deltak immediately after Ricciardi made his first call to its offices.

THE FBI WAS CALLED into the case and began tracing Ricciardi's movements during the day.

Advance Systems officials worked with FBI agents to arrange a meeting with

At first meeting on problem

Programs suggested to combat vandalism

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones Tuesday night suggested several programs to combat the vandalism problem in Palatine, which police say is costing taxpayers thousands of dollars each year.

Jones spoke at a special meeting at Palatine Hills Junior High School attended by 25 persons representing homeowners associations, parks and school districts. "We need a program locally," Jones said, "That is constructive, but punitive."

His ideas include:
• Making the village curfew earlier. The current curfew is 11 p.m. on weekdays and midnight on weekends.
• Setting up a village juvenile justice office in the police department and appointing a local probation officer.

• A teen center set up in conjunction with officials from Palatine and Fremd high schools.

• Urging residents to turn on their porch lights as a deterrent to late-night vandalism.

• Hiring a social worker to work with the police department handling juvenile offenders and their families.

• Open schools at night — "Schools open and accessible won't be vandalized," Jones said.

Several residents told of vandalism in neighborhoods around Community Park. A representative of the Willow Wood subdivision said vandalism in that area "has gotten to the point where it has to stop."

School district officials said $8,000 already has been spent to replace broken windows damaged by vandals. During the 1973-74 school year almost $20,000 was spent to replace windows, many of them shot out by pellet guns.

Deputy Police Chief Frank Ortiz said a possible solution to vandalism in Palatine neighborhoods might be increasing police patrols. He said in a particular subdivision using as many as four, five and six police cars has shown results. In response to questions from residents, Ortiz said juvenile lawbreakers may be apprehended by residents and held until the police arrive. "You can hold persons breaking the law on public or private property," he said.

Tuesday night's meeting was the first in a series to study vandalism in the village. The date of the next meeting has not been set.

Downtown facility to serve 1,000 persons

Senior citizen center plans to open here in mid-October

A senior-citizen center will open near downtown Palatine in mid-October to serve more than 1,000 elderly persons in Palatine Township and the village.

The center will be located in a ranch-style home at 248 S. Brockway, Palatine. The village and the township will sign an 18-month lease that will include a six-month renewal option. The two agencies will share the cost of the $300 monthly rent, insurance and utilities.

Village Pres. Wendell Jones has proposed the village pay $300 of the monthly rent and the township pay $200. The township will staff and operate the center.

SENIOR CITIZENS NOW meet in the basement of the township hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd. The new facility would be strictly for senior citizens and probably will be open daily from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The township's mini-bus service for senior citizens to and from the center will continue Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons when the new center opens. The Palatine Advisory Board is investigating a possible community bus service that could transport senior citizens to and from the new center each day.

"This is the first time the village and the township are joining together in a project that will serve so many people in our entire community. I think it's a great idea and I'm very excited about it," Jones said.

Both agencies have earmarked $10,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds to finance the senior-citizen center this year. The village board approved the lease agreement and use of funds at its Monday night meeting.

Jones said the house will meet the needs of senior citizens because they will not have to walk up or down stairs to get to the center. Senior citizens have to walk down steep stairs to get to the township center at the present time.

FURNITURE DONATIONS will be taken to furnish the center once the occupants have moved from the home. The Palatine Public Library will lease framed pictures to the center to decorate

Many groups oppose track housing plan

by JOE SWICKARD

Village, school and park district officials have voiced displeasure with the proposal to build 5,000 housing units — including 33-story buildings — at Arlington Park Race Track.

Plans presented by representatives of the Madison Square Garden Corp. and its developing agents, the Richards Group of Illinois, call for more than 5,000 units of apartments and townhouses on the 190 acres now used as a golf course for the Arlington Park Towers Hotel. The development, to be completed over 15 to 20 years, has a projected population of 15,000.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones, of Palatine said he considers the plan unrealistic, adding that officials of Palatine will monitor it closely. He called the proposed 33-story apartment towers "absolutely absurd."

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS trustees, sitting as part of a special review committee of the project, voiced disapproval of the project as described Monday night. The four trustees singled out the high population and the lack of major commercial or retail operations as problems they would like to see adjusted in the plans.

The four trustees, O. V. Anderson, Alice Harms, Russell Colvin and Frank Palmatier, were joined Tuesday by trustee David Griffin who said the proposal showed "far too much density."

Another trustee, James Ryan, also questioned the density, which is more than twice that is allowed under village codes.

"The density is a lot more than we're used to. Usually we like to see as low a density as possible," he said, adding that the village board must "go carefully" in consideration of the plan and a possible extension of the 1969 preannexation agreement under which it was submitted because of "the long-range impact" of such a massive development.

Some other trustees, and Village Pres. Ralph Clabour, are withholding judgment on the project until next Monday when it will be brought before a special session of the village board. The other trustees are J. Burton Thompson and Richard Duray.

THE MEETING MONDAY will explore the possibility of extending the annexation agreement another five years. Under the 1969 pact, Madison Square Garden may be exempt from any density limitations, particularly on the height of the buildings.

The extension, according to a memo prepared by the developer's attorney, Richard F. Babcock, would allow for "flexibility" in planning any development of the site. Babcock argued that an extension would allow the developer to modify plans as market conditions changed, perhaps to include more commercial or industrial uses of the land, as suggested by village officials.

Babcock also said an extension of the agreement could permit renegotiation on those portions which may have become "burdensome or inappropriate." He further said the developers are prepared to enter into such discussion "immediately" or "reasonable requests for modification of such provisions."

The possibility of disannexation of the track property also was raised if the proposal is rejected because of its density. Babcock said the developers would view such a rejection as a breach of contract and grounds for leaving the village.

He said if a settlement could not be reached between the developers and the village on this question, it might have to be taken to the courts for disposition.

ACCORDING TO preliminary figures presented by the developers, the development would have almost 3,000 children under the age of 18. To help compensate for this influx of school children, the developers proposed donation of a five-acre school site.

Joseph Kiszka, deputy superintendent of Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, which would be the recipient of the donation, expressed doubts concerning the site's placement along the Salt Creek flood plain, as well as its size.

"We really can't accept a site where we put more money into the site to make it buildable than if we bought a site of our choice," Kiszka said.

He said at least one building would have to be erected to handle the estimated 1,187 elementary school children from the development. However, Kiszka said the five-acre proposal is inadequate for a school and grounds.

The minimum school site is eight acres, he said, and a 10-acre site is preferable. A school on this acreage would house a maximum of 900 students, he said.

James DeVos, director of the Salt Creek Park District, said he would have preferred to see a commercial development instead of the 5,000 residential units.

"If they go with a people development, I hope the builders will meet the standards of recreation facilities. I'm talking about pools and tennis courts for public use, not just some cheap thing that won't last," DeVos said.

He said if the development were commercial, the park district would not have to worry about providing for the extra people and would gain extra tax income from the property improvement.

Meadows annex makes Palatine border contiguous

In a surprise move Tuesday night, the Rolling Meadows City Council approved "involuntary annexation" of about 59 acres on its northwest borders, closing its boundaries with the Village of Palatine.

The site, at Northwest Highway and Rohlfing Road, includes the Gaare Oil Co., the ready-mix concrete plant of Vulcan Materials Co., Midwest Division and Palatine Welding & Engineering Co., all along Northwest Highway.

Also included is the Levitz Furniture Corp. store, soon to be open for business. While that already had been annexed, Mayor Roland J. Meyer said it was included again in Tuesday night's annexation to simplify legal descriptions of the property.

The annexation was given final approval without previous public discussion, after the council waived its customary first reading of ordinances.

PUBLIC NOTICE HAD been given in a legal advertisement published Aug. 16, and letters of notification were sent to the Palatine Rural Fire Protection District, said City Atty. Donald M. Rose. The property had been within the district, but as of Tuesday night it became the city's legal responsibility to provide fire protection to the area, he said.

"Involuntary annexation" means "we don't have to ask their permission," said Rose, in apparent reference to the property owners. Both Rose and Meyer noted there had been no reaction to the pending annexation from either the Village of Palatine or the property owners in the month's time since the legal publication. When asked if those groups were aware the annexation was pending, Meyers said "they'll know tomorrow."

The annexation could provide significant gain in sales tax revenue for the city, said Meyer, although he was unable to estimate the amount. Meyer suggested the gain from Vulcan Materials could amount to from 60 cents to $1 on every truckload of concrete leaving the ready-mix yard, except those intended for use in government construction projects, including highways. He said he has no idea what the annual sales tax figure from Vulcan will be.

THE CITY CURRENTLY collects one penny out of every five collected in sales tax by commercial establishments within city limits. Efforts to change the state's sales tax distribution system to share such revenue with neighboring towns have so far been unsuccessful.

Utility to curb pump noise

The Ferndale Heights Utility Co. has agreed to stop the excessive noise from a pumping station in the northern part of Palatine Township by Nov. 30.

Attorneys and representatives from the utility company, which serves unincorporated Palatine Township, proposed measures to limit noise in response to a complaint filed jointly by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott.

The EPA and Scott charged that the utility company, based in Mount Prospect, is not taking steps to correct excessive noise from its pump station on Long Grove Road between Gardenia Lane and Holly Way. The complaint alleged that noise has been generated by the large, gas-engine well since June, 1971.

Ferndale Heights officials met with representatives of Scott's office Tuesday in a hearing at the Slade Street Fire Station, Palatine.

THE UTILITY COMPANY agreed to construct hoods with deflector plates on the inside over all windows and doors at the station, to insulate the walls of the station with one-inch thick embossed foam and to insulate the station muffler. The modifications, which must be completed by Nov. 30, will cost the utility company an estimated $2,500.

Steve Weiss, an attorney representing the EPA, said, "The utility company's proposal seems to be reasonable and should take care of the noise that is coming from this engine. The only issue now is whether or not the company has violated any noise regulations, and if so, what the fine should be."

The EPA will present the written stipulation to the Illinois Pollution Control Board today for consideration. The stipulation will include the utility company's written proposal, testimony of complaints from area residents and all material that had been compiled by EPA investigators.

The board is expected to decide on the acceptance of the utility company's proposal, and on whether the company will be fined for violating state noise violations within two or three months, Weiss said. The utility company will begin the noise modifications on the station immediately.

the walls, said Louise Robertson, who will supervise the center.

Mrs. Robertson said the center will continue offering its program of crafts, bingo, bridge and arts. She plans to expand the music, job placement and discount programs that are being offered to senior citizens in the township.

The house's garage will be used as an office for the center, and the rooms inside the home will be designated for various purposes, like crafts, games and television.

"The senior citizens will be able to use the kitchen for potluck dinners, and the adjacent garden and lawn area for picnics and outdoor activities," Mrs. Robertson said.

A PARK IS ACROSS the street which will offer senior citizens additional space for outdoor activities.

"Because of this open space located across from the center, parking should not disturb the rest of the neighborhood," Jones said.

Jones said the center is expected to serve more than 1,000 senior citizens in Palatine Township.

"So many of these senior citizens are the same people who made Palatine what it is today. It is time we made this town comfortable for them, and offered them a place to spend their time for recreation and creative activity," he said.

FBI cracks $100,000 industrial espionage scheme

New York man arrested in attempt to sell stolen corporate documents to Elk Grove Village firm

by STEVE BROWN

An industrial espionage scheme to sell stolen corporate documents valued at more than $100,000 to a Northwest suburban firm has been broken up by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

FBI agents said the attempted plan was ended when a New York man was arrested Monday night at O'Hare International Tower Hotel.

The scheme was thwarted when officials of Advance Systems Inc., 1801 Tonne Blvd., Elk Grove Village, tipped FBI agents that Louis Thomas Ricciardi was trying to sell secret product development plans stolen from a Schiller Park company.

Ricciardi, 31, was charged with interstate transportation of stolen property. He was still being held by federal authorities Tuesday night. His bond has been set at $15,000.

CORPORATE OFFICIALS from both Advance Systems and Deltak, 9950 W. Lawrence Ave., Schiller Park, were hesitant to comment on the case which began to develop early Monday when Ricciardi stepped off an airplane from New York.

A former salesman with Deltak, Ricciardi called Advance Systems, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of video-tape recording devices. He offered to sell the company lists of prospective clients and highly confidential reports on the development of new products.

Deltak also is involved in the production of video-tape equipment.

"He was apparently into it only for the money," one government investigator said.

A spokesman for Advance Systems said his company contacted Deltak immediately after Ricciardi made his first call to its offices.

THE FBI WAS CALLED into the case and began tracing Ricciardi's movements during the day.

Advance Systems officials worked with FBI agents to arrange a meeting with

Businesses will provide sales tax revenue

'Involuntary annex' takes in 58 acres

In a surprise move Tuesday night, the Rolling Meadows City Council approved "involuntary annexation" of about 58 acres on its northwest borders, closing its boundaries with the Village of Palatine.

The site, at Northwest Highway and Rohlwing Road, includes the Gaare Oil Co., the ready-mix concrete plant of Vulcan Materials Co., Midwest Division and Palatine Welding & Engineering Co., all along Northwest Highway.

Also included is the Levitz Furniture Corp. store, soon to be open for business. While that already had been annexed, Mayor Roland J. Meyer said it was included again in Tuesday night's annexation to simplify legal descriptions of the property.

The annexation was given final approval without previous public discussion, after the council waived its customary first reading of ordinances.

PUBLIC NOTICE HAD been given in a legal advertisement published Aug. 16, and letters of notification were sent to the Palatine Rural Fire Protection District, said City Atty. Donald M. Rose. The property had been within the district, but as of Tuesday night it became the city's legal responsibility to provide fire protection to the area, he said.

"Involuntary annexation" means "we don't have to ask their permission," said Rose, in apparent reference to the property owners. Both Rose and Meyer noted there had been no reaction to the pending annexation from either the Village of Palatine or the property owners in the month's time since the legal publication. When asked if those groups were aware the annexation was pending, Meyers said "they'll know tomorrow."

The annexation could provide significant gain in sales tax revenue for the city, said Meyer, although he was unable to estimate the amount. Meyer suggested the gain from Vulcan Materials could amount to from 60 cents to $1 on every truckload of concrete leaving the ready-mix yard, except those intended for use in government construction projects, including highways. He said he has no idea what the annual sales tax figure from Vulcan will be.

THE CITY CURRENTLY collects one penny out of every five collected in sales tax by commercial establishments within city limits. Efforts to change the state's sales tax distribution system to share such revenue with neighboring towns have so far been unsuccessful.

Sales taxes have enabled Rolling Meadows to provide all government services except the city library and fire department without real estate taxes. City officials have said a reduction in that revenue, resulting from a change in state distribution methods, would force them to levy a more expansive property tax.

THE TOTAL PROJECT will include a 580-acre basin in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve that was part of phase one of the work and is near completion. Several dams on Salt Creek including the main dam below its junction of the north and west branches which will create a 470-acre recreational lake in Busse Woods and a ski hill and picnic areas also are planned.

The completed project will have a flood-water storage capacity of 311 million gallons, large enough to store rain water from a 100-year storm, which is a storm so severe it is expected to occur only once in 100 years.

State funds also are being used in the project with more than $4 million already spent on construction work for dams and excavation for basins.

Recreational facilities of the watershed project are not expected to be ready for public use until late summer or early fall of 1976. Total construction time for the project is estimated at nine years.

House unit OKs funds for Salt Creek watershed

Application for $2.5 million in federal funds for the Salt Creek Watershed combined flood-control and recreation project was approved Tuesday by a U.S. House of Representatives subcommittee.

The measure, which already has passed the Senate, now will be brought before the House Public Works Committee and, if approved, will then go before the full house. House passage will then bring the application to the Office of Management and Budget for authorization.

The estimated $33 million dam and improvement project is proposed for the Busse Woods retention basin area of the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in Elk Grove Township.

Six structures are to be built in the watershed including a retention basin in Busse Woods, a retention basin near Harper College in Palatine, and three "pit-type" excavations with pump discharges in Palatine.

45 minutes of hell for tot

A 3-year-old girl went into shock Tuesday while firemen worked for 45 minutes to free her foot from an open sewer pipe in the Arlington Heights Trailer Park adjacent to the race track. She later recovered.

Kristi Marie Cox, of Trailer 36, was walking on the grass behind her home at noon when her foot slipped into the four inch opening of a cast iron sewer pipe that was exposed at ground level.

The Arlington Heights Fire Dept. rescue squad first attempted to slide the girl's foot out of the pipe with car soap. The firemen were attempting to dig out the area around the pipe when they struck a water main, adjacent to the sewer pipe in the ground, and broke it open.

The cold water shooting out of the main put the girl into shock, said Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden. Firemen used an air chisel to cut two feet of the sewer pipe out of the ground, and then cut the pipe off the girl's foot after the water running through the water main was shut off.

The girl was taken by a fire department ambulance to Northwest Community Hospital where she was checked and released.

Halloween treat coupons go on sale here Tuesday

Coupons for Halloween treats will go on sale Tuesday at about 30 stores in Rolling Meadows.

The coupons, in penny and nickel denominations, were introduced last year in an effort to insure the safety of children trick-or-treating throughout the city. Residents bought about $2,000 worth last year, giving the coupons to Halloween trick-or-treaters who then could redeem them for candy or other merchandise.

This year the coupons will be on sale the entire month preceding Halloween, and can be redeemed for a full two weeks after the holiday, Nov. 1 to 14. The coupons are redeemable only for merchandise, not for cash.

"THE PRIMARY purpose is to insure a safe Halloween by avoiding any possible distribution of candy that's been tampered with," said Greg Walczynski, chairman of the coupon program sponsored by Rolling Meadows Jaycees. Walczynski said the Jaycees are predicting coupon sales will double this year.

Retailers selling the coupons will turn sale proceeds over to the Jaycees, who will buy back the coupons from merchants after the holiday.

Retailers who will sell and redeem the coupons are Plush Puppy, Northwest Suburban Office Supply, Brown's Fried Chicken, Bugiel's Pastry Shop, Dominick's, Dunkin' Donuts, National Food Store, Radio Shack, Rolling Meadows Drugs, Rolling Meadows Fairlanses, Rolling Meadows Pizza, Jeans & Jeans, Ltd., Jewel Food Store and Meadows Pharmacy.

Retailers who will sell the coupons, but not redeem them, are Fabric World, St. Collette's Church, Aloha Beauty Salon, the City of Rolling Meadows, the city fire department, Rolling Meadows Park District, Citation Cycles, Plum Grove Bank, Bank of Rolling Meadows, Crawford's Department Store, Dutchess Beauty Salon and Ron-Mel Card Studio.

THE ROLLING MEADOWS Jaycees will sponsor a window-painting contest and a pumpkin-carving-and-decorating contest Oct. 28.

The window painting, with cooperation from merchants in city shopping centers, will be limited to children in fifth grade through high school. Registration will be through schools, and pupils interested in competing should contact their school or Gail Matheson, 352-6749.

There also will be a pumpkin carving contest. Pumpkins are to be carved and decorated at home, not at the shopping centers, and are to be taken home after the judging. The contest will be split into two age groups, first through sixth grade and seventh grade through high school students.

Park district yet to decide pool, tennis courts location

by MAHILYN McDONALD
(A news analyst)

Where should Salt Creek Park District build its proposed pool and tennis complex?

To date, the two most talked-about sites for the six-figure venture are Lake Irene and Lake Rossiter, twin lakes in Palatine just north of the Ill. Rte. 53 and Northwest Highway interchange.

Lake Irene, sometimes called "Doughnut Lake," because of a small island in its middle, is on the east. It is hemmed in by a housing development to the north, condominium apartment to the west, and Ill. Rte 53 to the east. The lake is deep and spring-fed, with a natural beach to the north. The lake area's natural landscape already boasts well-grown maple trees and ground cover. The entire area is easily accessible from the western frontage road off Rte. 53.

LAKE IRENE is privately owned by Herman Brandt. The park district would have to spend a good deal of money to purchase the site, although figures have not yet been mentioned. Besides, there are prior claims to the land.

The park district says that its residents want a pool and tennis complex. They would like to present the voters with a referendum in December asking for an estimated $900,000 to finance the pool, tennis complex, further park development and land acquisition. They would like to see construction begin this spring.

Both Lake Irene and Lake Rossiter figure in the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Plan, which would provide flood control for this region. The project, now awaiting federal approval, is a joint project of several governmental agencies including the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the North Cook Soil and Water Conservation District. Planned construction on the two lakes should take two years.

MSD is in the early stage of buying Lake Irene and surrounding property for flood-retention work as part of the watershed project, E. T. Karolewski of the MSD's real estate department, said. Salt Creek Park District could possibly purchase Lake Irene jointly with MSD to secure claim on the land for its proposed pool and tennis complex.

ALTHOUGH KAROLEWSKI said the purchase negotiations are "just in the talking stages," a joint purchase arrangement would mean that Salt Creek Park District would have to have ready cash for its part of the deal. While MSD moves toward closing a deal on Lake Irene, Salt Creek is still listening to various architectural proposals on the type of pool it wants to build. Salt Creek is still several months away from the referendum that will hopefully provide it with the money for the pool and tennis complex.

If the district did not wish to jointly purchase the Lake Irene site with MSD, Karolewski said that "we could deal directly with them" in arranging for the park district's eventual use of the land. Salt Creek could either buy the property from MSD once flood retention work on the lake is completed (two years after construction begins, by recent estimates) or enter into an agreement with MSD on the use of the land.

"We would like our retention reservoirs to be used for public purposes when not being used for water retention," Karolewski said. If a park district agrees to maintain the MSD land for recreation, he said the MSD is happy to let them use it. MSD is only bound to maintain its water, sewer and flood-retention facilities.

IN THE MEANTIME, Lake Rossiter to the west doesn't have all the recreational charm that Lake Irene has, but it has another very attractive feature. It is owned by the Village of Palatine and could be donated to the Salt Creek Park District. It has been the most-discussed site for the pool and tennis complex for just this reason.

MSD officials have told the park district that it might be able to arrange to construct the pool and tennis complex while flood-retention work is being done at Lake Rossiter. Thomas McCann of the flood-control department at MSD said that park officials should check the soil conservation district's designs of planned flood-retention work to see if pool construction can be accommodated. "If they work through us, we can get something," McCann said.

Salt Creek's attorney, Michael Stronberg, has talked with MSD about the status of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Project. He refused to comment on his conversation until he presented a report to the park board officers in a meeting Monday. He has not yet asked the Village of Palatine for the donation of Lake Rossiter to the park district, although he said that he would do so once the board acted on his information from MSD.

LAKE ROSSITER, the westerly of Palatine's twin lakes just north of the Ill. Rte. 53 and Northwest Highway interchange, has been the most discussed site for Salt Creek Park District's proposed pool and tennis complex. It is now owned by the Village of Palatine and could be donated to the park district.

Groups rap housing plan for track

by JOE SWICKARD

Village, school and park district officials have voiced displeasure with the proposal to build 5,000 housing units — including 33-story buildings — at Arlington Park Race Track.

Plans presented by representatives of the Madison Square Garden Corp. and its developing agents, the Richards Group of Illinois, call for more than 5,000 units of apartments and townhouses on the 190 acres now used as a golf course for the Arlington Park Towers Hotel. The development, to be completed over 15 to 20 years, has a projected population of 15,000.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones, of Palatine said he considers the plan unrealistic, adding that officials of Palatine will monitor it closely. He called the proposed 33-story apartment towers "absolutely absurd."

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS trustees, sitting as part of a special review committee of the project, voiced disapproval of the project as described Monday night. The four trustees singled out the high population and the lack of major commercial or retail operations as problems they would like to see adjusted in the plans.

The four trustees, O. V. Anderson, Alice Harms, Russell Colvin and Frank Palmatier, were joined Tuesday by trustee David Griffin who said the proposal showed "far too much density."

Another trustee, James Ryan, also questioned the density, which is more than twice that is allowed under village codes.

"The density is a lot more than we're used to. Usually we like to see as low a density as possible," he said, adding that the village board must "go carefully" in consideration of the plan and a possible extension of the 1969 preannexation agreement under which it was submitted because of "the long-range impact" of such a massive development.

Some other trustees, and Village Pres. Ralph Clarbour, are withholding judgment on the project until next Monday when it will be brought before a special session of the village board. The other trustees are J. Burton Thompson and Richard Durava.

THE MEETING MONDAY will explore the possibility of extending the annexation agreement another five years. Under the 1969 pact, Madison Square Garden may be exempt from any density limitations, particularly on the height of the buildings.

The extension, according to a memo prepared by the developer's attorney, Richard F. Babcock, would allow for "flexibility" in planning any development of the site. Babcock argued that an extension would allow the developer to modify plans as market conditions changed, perhaps to include more commercial or industrial uses of the land, as suggested by village officials.

Babcock also said an extension of the agreement could permit negotiation on those portions which may have become "burdensome or inappropriate . . ." He further said the developers are prepared to enter into such discussion "immediately" or "reasonable requests for modification of such provisions."

The possibility of disannexation of the track property also was raised if the proposal is rejected because of its density. Babcock said the developers would view such a rejection as a breach of contract and grounds for leaving the village.

He said if a settlement could not be reached between the developers and the village on this question, it might have to be taken to the courts for disposition.

ACCORDING TO preliminary figures presented by the developers, the development would have almost 3,000 children under the age of 18. To help compensate for this influx of school children, the developers proposed donation of a five-acre school site.

Joseph Kiszka, deputy superintendent of Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, which would be the recipient of the donation, expressed doubts concerning the site's placement along the Salt Creek flood plain, as well as its size.

"We really can't accept a site where we put more money into the site to make it buildable than if we bought a site of our choice," Kiszka said.

He said at least one building would have to be erected to handle the estimated 1,187 elementary school children from the development. However, Kiszka said the five-acre proposal is inadequate for a school and grounds.

The minimum school site is eight acres, he said, and a 10-acre site is preferable. A school on this acreage would house a maximum of 900 students, he said.

James DeVos, director of the Salt Creek Park District, said he would have preferred to see a commercial development instead of the 5,000 residential units.

"If they go with a people development, I hope the builders will meet the standards of recreation facilities. I'm talking about pools and tennis courts for public use, not just some cheap thing that won't last," DeVos said.

He said if the development were commercial, the park district would not have to worry about providing for the extra people and would gain extra tax income from the property improvement.

FBI cracks $100,000 industrial espionage scheme

New York man arrested in attempt to sell stolen corporate documents to Elk Grove Village firm

by STEVE BROWN

An industrial espionage scheme to sell stolen corporate documents valued at more than $100,000 to a Northwest suburban firm has been broken up by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

FBI agents said the attempted plan was ended when a New York man was arrested Monday night at O'Hare International Tower Hotel.

The scheme was thwarted when officials of Advance Systems Inc., 1801 Tonne Blvd., Elk Grove Village, tipped FBI agents that Louis Thomas Ricciardi was trying to sell secret product development plans stolen from a Schiller Park company.

Ricciardi, 31, was charged with interstate transportation of stolen property. He was still being held by federal authorities Tuesday night. His bond has been set at $15,000.

CORPORATE OFFICIALS from both Advance Systems and Deltak, 9950 W. Lawrence Ave., Schiller Park, were hesitant to comment on the case which began to develop early Monday when Ricciardi stepped off an airplane from New York.

A former salesman with Deltak, Ricciardi called Advance Systems, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of video-tape recording devices. He offered to sell the company lists of prospective clients and highly confidential reports on the development of new products.

Deltak also is involved in the production of video-tape equipment.

"He was apparently into it only for the money," one government investigator said.

A spokesman for Advance Systems said his company contacted Deltak immediately after Ricciardi made his first call to its offices.

THE FBI WAS CALLED into the case and began tracing Ricciardi's movements during the day.

Advance Systems officials worked with FBI agents to arrange a meeting with

Moderate-income housing need?

Village seeks rental, income data as housing plan step

Gathering information about incomes earned in Schaumburg and rents at local apartment complexes is the first job of a committee to study the need for low and moderate-income housing in the village.

The recently formed committee of four Schaumburg plan commissioners also will visit various subsidized housing projects in the Chicago area to learn of any mistakes made during their development.

The committee heard background information Tuesday night on federal and state guidelines for subsidized housing from Henry Zuba, of the Regional Housing Coalition, and Marvin Meyers, developer of the Schaumburg Green apartment complex.

The 367-unit complex provides a number of apartments for middle-income families who qualify under federal income guidelines.

ZUBA TOLD THE committee it might be important to introduce the subsidized units in phases because "people come out of the woodwork" when the units are made available. Also, he said, survey information might not accurately reflect community needs because some residents might be reluctant to give information about overcrowded or substandard housing to interviewers.

He said new federal subsidy guidelines will be in effect Jan. 1 and said that their effect will be to scatter subsidized housing throughout communities rather than concentrate it in one area.

He added that the new guidelines will influence consideration of federal revenue sharing funds for community development.

Meyers, who has developed other subsidized housing projects, said immediate consideration might be given to elderly persons on meager pensions and young married couples who are priced out of the Northwest suburban housing market.

HE ADDED THAT inflation seems to have created more moderate-income families. He said for the three-bedroom subsidized apartments in Schaumburg Green, he had four times more applicants than could be placed in apartments.

Meyers said almost all were from the immediate area.

Strict management procedures in providing a pleasant atmosphere are keys to producing good subsidized housing complexes, he said.

Meyers said the most troublesome tenant in such developments is generally a working divorcee who cannot look after her children. He said in several of the projects he has built in Chicago, whites and blacks have lived together without problems.

At 'metro-center'

Road revamping a must for '76'

A Herald staff report

Second of a series

Editor's note: The need to cope with traffic problems is stressed by developers of Woodfield 76, a $250 million "metro center" proposed for annexation to Schaumburg.

But conflicts exist as to how the traffic needs should be calculated. The story, dealing with the traffic problem, is the second of four articles explaining Woodfield 76 in advance of annexation hearings on the proposal to start Tuesday before Schaumburg's board of trustees.

The project is being planned on 237 acres along Golf Road, north of Woodfield Mall. It is part of what the development team sees emerging as an "urban core" of the village.

In 20 years, the completed "metro center" would consist of 3,500 residential units plus commercial and recreational space on 104 acres, and a 648-room Hyatt convention hotel. The remaining 133 acres would be developed in a second 20-year phase.

The parcel, owned by Union Oil Co. of California, has both local and regional accessibility. It is bounded on the north and east by the Northwest Tollway and Interstate 90. South and west boundaries are Higgins and Meacham roads.

A TRANSPORTATION system to serve the "urban core" and the Northwest suburban region was suggested in a study completed in January by Barton-Aschman Inc., Chicago transportation consultants.

The primary thrust of the study was the impact a "metro center" might have on the entire transportation system now serving the area.

It calls for an extensive series of roadway and public transit improvements to be completed in the next 20 to 30 years.

Their suggestions include:

- Widening of Golf Road to six lanes through the Meacham Road intersection. This need was established in a 1970 village study by independent consultants who suggested completion between 1975 and 1980.

- Widening of Meacham Road to four lanes between Higgins and Algonquin roads, a project programmed for completion by 1978.

- Extending the I-90 easterly frontage road north of Golf Road.

- Providing an underpass beneath I-90 to pass through Woodfield 76 connecting with the east-west frontage roads.

- Providing a separate, right-turn lane opposite the I-90 westerly frontage road.

- Installing new traffic-control devices along Golf and Meacham roads to control

Three-year-old Kristi Marie Cox gets help from firemen.

45 minutes of hell for tot

A 3-year-old girl went into shock Tuesday while firemen worked for 45 minutes to free her foot from an open sewer pipe in the Arlington Heights Trailer Park adjacent to the race track. She later recovered.

Kristi Marie Cox, of Trailer 36, was walking on the grass behind her home at noon when her foot slipped into the four inch opening of a cast iron sewer pipe that was exposed at ground level.

The Arlington Heights Fire Dept. rescue squad first attempted to slide the girl's foot out of the pipe with car soap. The firemen were attempting to dig out the area around the pipe when they struck a water main, adjacent to the sewer pipe in the ground, and broke it open.

The cold water shooting out of the main put the girl into shock, said Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden. Firemen used an air chisel to cut two feet of the sewer pipe out of the ground, and then cut the pipe off the girl's foot after the water running through the water main was shut off.

The girl was taken by a fire department ambulance to Northwest Community Hospital where she was checked and released.

Heritage Center on tap today

The zoning hearing for Heritage Center, a 2,400-unit residential development planned on 120 acres west of Schaumburg's Civic Center, will continue today before the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals.

The complex is proposed by American Home Building-Guild Illinois on land owned by William Lambert, who donated the 40-acre Schaumburg Road civic-cultural center in 1969.

Lambert gave the land after the village agreed to allow 3,150 units be built in nine 12-story buildings. The original plans fell through because of difficulties in obtaining financing.

Preliminary plans on the new proposal were presented to zoners in May, but the developers later requested a postponement. Additional preparation time was needed since they were questioning feasibility of the project, the developers said.

Lancer Park subdivision homeowners, whose properties adjoin the southern boundary of the Lambert property, at that time protested building height and density of the project.

Homeowners spokesmen urged zoning board denial of the zoning request contending traffic patterns, schools and sewer and water systems would be overburdened by the development.

Developers have refused to consider either a cash or land donation to Schaumburg Township Dist. 64 explaining that Lambert made a generous contribution when the Schaumburg Road site was donated.

New speed limit OKd for Ash Road

A change in the speed limit from 20 to 25 m.p.h. on Ash Road was approved by the Hoffman Estates Village Board Monday. The new limit will apply except for that portion of the road between Azalea Court and Bluebonnet Lane, which will be posted 20 m.p.h. on school days when children are present.

Check-signing policy change?

An ordinance revision in the village's check-signing policy may be considered by the board next month. The policy change, recommended by the village board finance committee, would eliminate the village clerk's signature from checks and include only the signatures of the village treasurer and village manager or village president.

Trustee William Cowin said the policy would eliminate steps in the issuance of payments. Village Pres. Virginia Hayter voiced objection to the proposal, however, saying she thought the signature of an elected official should be mandatory on the checks.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert was directed to prepare the ordinance revision for consideration by the board at its next meeting Oct. 7.

Golf Rd. bike path studied

An all-weather bicycle path could be included along Golf Road from Barrington Road to Higgins Road in Hoffman Estates.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter had requested the bike path be considered by state officials responsible for Golf Road. Langhorn Bond, state transportation director, in a letter to the village said the request would be considered.

Amy Badal commended

A letter of commendation was presented by the village board Monday to Amy Badal, chairman of the village's blood donor drive. Mrs. Badal was cited for her efforts in the program and her work for the village.

$24,715 sales tax collected

Sales tax collected for the month of June in Hoffman Estates totaled $24,715, Trustee William Cowin reported Monday. Total cash receipts for the village for the week ending Sept. 21 amounted to $83,888, he said.

Anniversary efforts praised

The work of the public information committee, public works department and Civil Defense received praise Monday from village officials for their efforts Sunday during the 15th anniversary open house.

The open house drew several hundred persons and was televised in part on WMAQ-TV's "Chicago Camera."

Retirement area plans may change

Representatives of Christian Home Service Inc. told Schaumburg officials Tuesday they may amend development plans for a retirement community if a 5-acre municipal land trade is approved.

The Des Moines, Iowa, developers received a special-use permit last month for Friendship Village, a 550-unit retirement community on Schaumburg Road west of Roselle Road. Approval was based on CHS's agreement to maintain as open space five acres of Schaumburg Road property containing a grove of century-old oak trees. In return the village has proposed swapping the wooded area for five "buildable" acres of an adjoining 20-acre parcel formerly considered for use by Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center North.

Hospital officials are now considering buying a 40-acre site at Schaumburg and Barrington roads. The smaller site was donated by J. Emil Anderson & Sons in 1971 when the land was zoned for a multi-family complex. That zoning lapsed when the developers failed to begin their project within 18 months after zoning approval.

IF USE OF the new site is approved, ownership of the original 20 acres will revert to the village.

Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher Tuesday said a contract for purchase of the site near Barrington Road is scheduled to be "executed" this week. Hospital officials have been negotiating for the past month for the land owned by Gertrude McNaught Odiam.

Atcher suggested CHS officials return to the Oct. 8 village board meeting for further discussion "when we are closer to the time we can talk" about a land trade.

Village officials have been meeting with U.S. Postal Service authorities over the past few weeks concerning their possible use of part of the former hospital land for a new Schaumburg post office. However, a postal spokesman said this week that the site has not yet been formally approved.

Audit to tell fire district dollar woes

An audit which will determine the financial deficit of the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District is expected to be completed within two to four weeks.

Records from the fire district, which village officials had sought for sometime, were released to the village late last week. Village Mgr. George Longmeyer Tuesday said completion of the audit is likely to take two to four weeks providing all necessary information has been included.

Preliminary study of the records has not yet determined what the district's deficit might be, Longmeyer said. "They are just trying to get it in order now," he said.

A DEFICIT OF at least $250,000 and as much as $500,000 in the district's budget by the end of fiscal 1975 has been predicted by some village officials. The anticipated deficit was cited as the reason for a five per cent municipal tax which the village board approved Sept. 16 to go into effect Jan. 1, 1975.

The village will assume control of the fire district next month to create a municipal fire department.

The tax is hoped to raise $300,000 to $400,000 its first year from a 5 cent per $1 charge on all electric, telephone and gas bills. Some $20 to $50 per year is likely to be spent by most homeowners on the tax.

The rate will be charged against all taxable amounts on bills, village officials have said. However, the rate cannot be leveled against out-of-state long distance calls on telephone bills, Howard Hammer, Illinois Bell Telephone spokesman, said Tuesday.

SEVERAL RESIDENTS had protested the tax on phone bills saying it would not be fair to those who must use their phones for business purposes.

One woman told the board her phone bills this year had amounted to $1,983.63 because of long distance business calls which her husband had to make.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert said, however, the tax could be ruled discriminatory if it applied only to gas and electric bills and not phone bills.

The audit must be completed before the fire district annexation in order for the village to determine "what kind of liabilities we are taking over," Longmeyer said. He added he did not think the accounting procedure would delay the annexation scheduled to be completed by mid-October.

Township collector appointee to move

Robert Anderson of Schaumburg, who was to be sworn in Tuesday as Schaumburg Township collector, learned the same day he will have to leave the community because of a job transfer.

Anderson, 208 N. Braintree Dr., had been appointed to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Edward Hennessey. Hennessey resigned the post several months ago after controversy erupted over his occupying two elected offices at the same time — collector and Hoffman Estates village trustee. He retained the trustee position.

Anderson, president of the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township, will be transferred to the South, he said. He is the central plant manager for the hardboard division of Masonite of Chicago.

Transit upgrading for '76

movement of the increased number of cars anticipated.

• Extending a road from Meacham Road to Roselle Road south of the Northwest Tollway and planning for a possible second road in the same general area.

• Providing a grade-separated intersection at Golf and Meacham roads.

IN A DETAILED report on the plan read into zoning board hearing minutes, Village Engineer Joseph E. Zgonina emphasized that traffic projections are considerably lower than other projects estimated by Barton-Aschman on other projects within the village in the past.

The engineers report noted that vacant land west of the existing Union Oil building is a critical factor for consideration in any proposed transportation system or roadway improvements.

Zgonina called for comprehensive and sophisticated mass transportation planning for the area, but added, both the village and developers are "at the mercy" of state and county highway departments concerning external roadway improvements for the general region.

Contrary to consultants sketches, Zgonina said Wise Road will not be widened through Elk Grove Village to connect with an interchange at I-90. He noted that the proposed alignment is not feasible because the WGN radio tower and a Metropolitan Sanitary District treatment plant lie in the suggested path.

Consultants urge immediate implementation of a public transit system, even if it is only a pilot program for a Dial-A-Bus service.

BARTON-ASCHMAN research indicates approximately 80 per cent of "metro center" residents will work within a 10-to 15-mile radius of home. The remaining 20 per cent is expected to travel to Chicago and the near west suburban area along major roads. Consultants predict half of these residents can be expected to use existing rail commuter facilities in Palatine and Roselle.

A "people mover" probably a monorail, is suggested for internal travel. This system also would be designed to link with Woodfield Shopping Center and other developments within the village.

Zgonina recommends the cost of this system be assumed "by all concerned parties" since it will affect Schaumburg as well as surrounding villages, the Regional Transit Authority and other governmental units.

THE ENGINEER DID not comment on a proposed interchange at Roselle Road at the Northwest Tollway.

Planners recommend that developers of Woodfield 76 and adjacent land make provisions for needed roadway and public transit rights-of-way.

They claim that positive effects of the Regional Transit Authority and the ongoing energy crisis make the implementation of such an interrelated system feasible.

Proposes bond issue be expanded to $4 million

Teichert urges village buy lots east of Central School

by LYNN ASINOF

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert Tuesday night urged the village board to expand its bond issue for construction of a new public library on the Central School property to include the purchase of land east of the school.

Teichert suggested that the village buy the block east of Central School in order to control development of the land.

The block east of the school, bounded by Central Road on the north, Busse Avenue on the south, Maple Street on the east and Emerson Street on the west, includes 15 houses and a parking lot for the Mount Prospect State Bank.

Teichert said funds for the purchase could be obtained by expanding the bond issue for the new library from the estimated $3.2 million to $4 million.

THE COST OF the library is now estimated at $3.2 million, which includes $875,000 for purchase of the 2.6-acre abandoned school site at Main Street and Central Road.

Teichert said rising construction costs should hike the bond issue to at least $3.5 million, and said the expansion to $4 million would add only one cent per $100 assessed valuation, according to a tentative bond retirement schedule.

Teichert said the village could begin obtaining some of the lots on the block east of Central School to prevent a developer from obtaining control of the area. "We can control the development of that block. We can acquire the property and then sell it off," Teichert said.

Because the bonds are being issued under the village's home rule powers, the bonds will not be earmarked for any specific purpose.

Discussion of the size of the bond issue is scheduled for Oct. 1 because the village must begin work on the bond sale if it is to be in the 1975 tax levy. The board will therefore be voting on the size of the bond issue before receiving preliminary reports from two consulting firms hired to develop a plan for redevelopment of the downtown area.

SEVERAL RESIDENTS attending Tuesday's committee of the whole meeting said final plans for the new library's location should be delayed until reports from the consultant are available.

Robert Bennett, chairman of the ad hoc downtown study group, said the site might conflict with the over-all plan for downtown redevelopment. Teichert, however, said the study will be considered as a parallel to the plan now being followed by the board.

"Until a hole is actually dug, it is obvious that the building doesn't have to go in any particular place," he said.

A representative of Paul B. Speer and Associates, a Chicago bonding house, presented a plan that would create a tax burden of 16 cents per $100 assessed valuation per year for 14 years.

One resident, Edward A. Duplessus, 307 Wa-Pella Ave., appealed to the board to call a referendum to see if the library facility is really wanted by the community. Board members, however, rejected the idea, saying they had already publicly committed themselves to the project.

Noting that the board is elected to make such decisions, Teichert said: "Our referendum is in fact the election day."

LWV to watchdog 6 communities

Area women are needed to serve as governmental watchdogs in the observer program operated in six villages by the League of Women Voters of the Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect Area.

The observer's job is to report to the local league chapter what happens at the various board meetings and to make sure that the open meeting law is not violated. The observer program is part of a national league effort to cover governmental activities on all levels.

Although the observer program is not new, the league has found it difficult to provide continuous coverage in all six of its towns. In Mount Prospect, for example, a league observer has just been assigned to the village board, which has been without an observer for the past three or four years.

Janet Yauch, 515 N. Forest Ave., Mount Prospect, said she took the village board assignment so she could get "more in tune with Mount Prospect." Last year she observed the library board meetings in her town, but moved to the village board so that someone with less time could fill the less demanding library board observer post.

THE PROBLEM with filling the observer posts, according to Mrs. Yauch, is that it is difficult to "get women out of the house at night." She said most members of the league either work or have small children making it difficult for them to get away in the evening.

Currently, the league has observers for village board meetings in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village and Buffalo Grove. In addition, observers are attending library board meetings in Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village.

Beverly Tyrcha, head of the local observer program, said she still has not found observers for any of the governmental meetings in Wheeling or Prospect Heights. "Of course, we have to ask people to cover things in their own town," she said. Persons interested in

$10,000 bond set in bank robbery

A U. S. magistrate Tuesday set bond at $10,000 for accused bank robber Robert F. Mason, 50, of 1288 Wheeling Rd., Mount Prospect.

Mason, who did not make bond, is being held by the U. S. Marshal's Office. He is charged with armed robbery in the Monday stickup of the Richmond (Ill.) State Bank.

Mason allegedly went up to a cashier at the bank and, pointing a gun, demanded money. He was given $8,215, which has since been recovered, McHenry County Sheriff's Police said. Sheriff's police captured Mason shortly after the robbery at a roadblock on Ill. Rte. 31 near McHenry.

No date for a preliminary hearing has been set for Mason. Mason has been charged by the FBI.

Two doll contests in progress

Two banks in neighboring towns have heart-warming doll dressing contests going on. The First National Bank of Des Plaines and the Northwest Trust & Savings Bank of Arlington Heights are providing dolls and prizes for the contests and will distribute all entries to needy children.

Participants can pick up an undressed doll at one of the banks now, design and sew an outfit, and then return the dressed doll to be judged.

At the First National Bank in Des Plaines, the dressed dolls will be on display and winners will be selected by public vote. All dolls will be distributed to needy children in the Des Plaines area. Five $25 prizes will be awarded.

At the Northwest Trust & Savings Bank in Arlington Heights, dolls will be on display during an 'open house' and winners will be selected by judges. Prizes are ribbons and dolls will go to charitable institutions, such as Shriner's hospitals, etc.

Boat, trailer stolen from car dealer's lot

A $4,000 power boat and trailer were reported stolen from the Hoskins Chevrolet car lot, 175 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Elk Grove Village.

Police said the 16-foot boat, with a 120-horsepower outboard motor and trailer, were taken sometime between late Friday and Monday. The theft was reported to police Tuesday.

THE NEW BUILDING going up at Northwest Highway and Waterman St., by Meadows Park, is a new office structure for a threesome — George B. Anderson & Associates, engineering and consultant firm; Roy A. Tosch, general contractor; and W. E. Shriver, commercial insurance broker.

George Anderson enthusiastically reported, "We expect the roof to be on the building in three weeks. We hope to be moved in by Dec. 31."

The building is 50 by 54 feet, three stories high. About half of the space will be available for rent.

To the east of that building, the National Fraternal Society for the Deaf has its new headquarters under construction. A spokesman at the organization's present offices in Oak Park indicated that there have been some problems and their building probably won't be completed until May 1 next year.

200 cans of oil stolen from gas station

Some 200 cans of oil were stolen from a one gas station and a pneumatic air wrench from another station, Mount Prospect police said Tuesday.

The oil, valued at $115, was taken from the J. & J. Arco station, 1450 N. River Rd., sometime between 6 p.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday, police said. The oil had been stored in an outside cabinet, which the thief forced open.

The air wrench, valued at $200, was stolen from the Arco station at 1 W. Central Rd., police said. The theft occurred sometime between Friday and Monday.

PEANUTS WILL BE the hottest item in town Friday when the Mount Prospect Kiwanis Club hit the streets with 10,000 bags of peanuts. Mayor Robert D. Teichert, left, got first crack at

Children play fire prevention week role

School fire drills and children's poster and window-painting contests again will help emphasize the safety message of Fire Prevention Week this year in Mount Prospect.

The theme for the week, Oct. 6 to 12, will be "Things That Burn."

In addition to the fire drills and contests, school children in grades two and above will receive a "home fire inspection blank," which enables children to check their homes for fire hazards. Also, children in kindergarten and first grades will be given paper fire engines to assemble. Some 16,000 inspection blanks and 1,000 fire engines are ready for distribution.

One of the many categories of things that burn is clothing, according to Fire Chief Lawrence A. Palritz. He added

Schools to weigh sidewalk proposal

Sidewalks along two Prospect Heights streets will be discussed at tonight's continuation of a Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education meeting. The proposal would have a sidewalk along the west side of Schoenbeck Road from Hintz Road to Camp McDonald Road and along the north side of Camp McDonald Road from Elm Street to Elmhurst Road.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the administration center, Schoenbeck and Frontage roads.

According to one proponent of the sidewalk plan, the sidewalks, which would probably be paved rather than cement, would be located in the street easement. "A service pathway is proposed," said Maureen Sandstrom, 101 W. Ridge Ave., Prospect Heights. She said the pathway would be of aid to both school children and senior citizens particularly.

Mrs. Sandstrom said the school board apparently has the legal authority to build sidewalks within a half-mile distance from a school. Several schools are located within the proposed stretch of sidewalk area. She spoke before the Prospect Heights Board of Park Commissioners, while soliciting its backing for the proposal.

Park board President Max Lyle said, "They (sidewalks) absolutely are needed for safety over there (in the proposed area)."

FBI cracks $100,000 industrial espionage scheme

New York man arrested in attempt to sell stolen corporate documents to Elk Grove Village firm

by STEVE BROWN

An industrial espionage scheme to sell stolen corporate documents valued at more than $100,000 to a Northwest suburban firm has been broken up by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

FBI agents said the attempted plan was ended when a New York man was arrested Monday night at O'Hare International Tower Hotel.

The scheme was thwarted when officials of Advance Systems Inc., 1801 Tonne Blvd., Elk Grove Village, tipped FBI agents that Louis Thomas Ricciardi was trying to sell secret product development plans stolen from a Schiller Park company.

Ricciardi, 31, was charged with interstate transportation of stolen property. He was still being held by federal authorities Tuesday night. His bond has been set at $15,000.

CORPORATE OFFICIALS from both Advance Systems and Deltak, 8950 W. Lawrence Ave., Schiller Park, were hesitant to comment on the case which began to develop early Monday when Ricciardi stepped off an airplane from New York.

A former salesman with Deltak, Ricciardi called Advance Systems, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of video-tape recording devices. He offered to sell the company lists of prospective clients and highly confidential reports on the development of new products.

Deltak also is involved in the production of video-tape equipment.

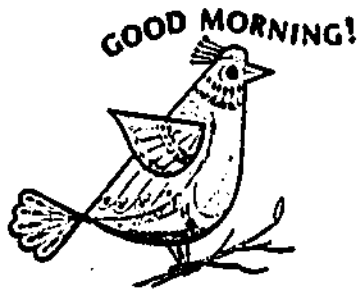

"He was apparently into it only for the money," one government investigator said.

A spokesman for Advance Systems said his company contacted Deltak immediately after Ricciardi made his first call to its offices.

THE FBI WAS CALLED into the case and began tracing Ricciardi's movements during the day.

Population density cited as chief concern

Many groups oppose track housing plan

by JOE SWICKARD

Village, school and park district officials have voiced displeasure with the proposal to build 5,000 housing units — including 33-story buildings — at Arlington Park Race Track.

Plans presented by representatives of the Madison Square Garden Corp. and its developing agents, the Richards Group of Illinois, call for more than 5,000 units of apartments and townhouses on the 190 acres now used as a golf course for the Arlington Park Towers Hotel. The development, to be completed over 15 to 20 years, has a projected population of 15,000.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS trustees, sitting as part of a special review committee of the project, voiced disapproval of the project as described Monday night. The four trustees singled out the high population and the lack of major commercial or retail operations as problems they would like to see adjusted in the plans.

The four trustees, O. V. Anderson, Alice Harms, Russell Colvin and Frank Palmatter, were joined Tuesday by trustee David Griffin who said the proposal showed "far too much density."

Another trustee, James Ryan, also questioned the density, which is more than twice that is allowed under village codes.

"The density is a lot more than we're used to. Usually we like to see as low a density as possible," he said, adding that the village board must "go carefully" in consideration of the plan and a possible extension of the 1969 preannexation agreement under which it was submitted because of "the long-range impact" of such a massive development.

Some other trustees, and Village Pres. Ralph Clabour, are withholding judgment on the project until next Monday when it will be brought before a special session of the village board. The other trustees are J. Burton Thompson and Richard Durava.

THE MEETING MONDAY will explore the possibility of extending the annexation agreement another five years. Under the 1969 pact, Madison Square Garden may be exempt from any density limitations, particularly on the height of the buildings.

The extension, according to a memo prepared by the developer's attorney, Richard F. Babcock, would allow for "flexibility" in planning any development of the site. Babcock argued that an extension would allow the developer to modify plans as market conditions changed, perhaps to include more commercial or industrial uses of the land, as suggested by village officials.

Babcock also said an extension of the agreement could permit renegotiation on those portions which may have become "burdensome or inappropriate." He further said the developers are prepared to enter into such discussion "immediately" or "reasonable requests for modification of such provisions."

The possibility of disannexation of the track property also was raised if the proposal is rejected because of its density. (Continued on Page 5)

45 minutes of hell for tot

A 3-year-old girl went into shock Tuesday while firemen worked for 45 minutes to free her foot from an open sewer pipe in the Arlington Heights Trailer Park adjacent to the race track. She later recovered.

Kristi Marie Cox, of Trailer 36, was walking on the grass behind her home at noon when her foot slipped into the four inch opening of a cast iron sewer pipe that was exposed at ground level.

The Arlington Heights Fire Dept. rescue squad first attempted to slide the girl's foot out of the pipe with car soap. The firemen were attempting to dig out the area around the pipe when they struck a water main, adjacent to the sewer pipe in the ground, and broke it open.

The cold water shooting out of the main put the girl into shock, said Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden. Firemen used an air chisel to cut two feet of the sewer pipe out of the ground, and then cut the pipe off the girl's foot after the water running through the water main was shut off.

The girl was taken by a fire department ambulance to Northwest Community Hospital where she was checked and released.

Six candidates apply for park board vacancy

The Arlington Heights Park District Board will begin interviews to find a successor to Bruce Everly who announced plans last month to resign from the board as soon as a replacement could be found.

As of Tuesday night, six persons had applied for Everly's position. The replacement, according to ground rules established by the board, will be expected to run in the April election for the remaining four years of Everly's six-year term.

Those who have submitted their names and resumes for consideration are William Schumann, a salesman and advocate of boys' ice hockey; Jack Whisler, partner in Brian Properties Inc., a real estate development corporation; Joseph Shekleton, patent attorney for Borg-Warner; Victor Johnson, audit manager for Arthur Young & Co., certified public accountants and a past president of Surrey Ridge West Homeowners Assn.; and Herbert Klawitter, property tax manager for Union Oil Co.

A sixth application has been received by the park district, but the applicant's name was not available Tuesday night.

Katherine Muller, park vice president, said the small number of applicants was disappointing. She indicated she had hoped more persons would have come forward.

"IT'S JUST NOT a good year for people to want to hold public office . . . it seems like it's the bottom of the totem pole," Mrs. Muller advanced as one possible reason for the few candidates.

Other reasons contributing to the scarcity of applicants for the board are the district's continuing financial problems and the lack of "glory" associated with the park board, she said.

In an effort to stimulate more applications, Park Director Thomas Thornton said letters of solicitation had been sent to PTAs and homeowners groups in the village.

Although the letters have not produced any new contenders for the post as of Tuesday, Katy Graham, park commissioner, said she expected more by the end of the week.

One interview session to be held by the park board sitting as a committee of the whole, has been set for tonight. If any new persons come forward, additional interview dates will be set for early next week, Thornton said.

WHILE NO OFFICIAL cutoff date for applications has been set, Mrs. Muller and Thornton said if no new contenders come forward by the end of the week, the field will remain at six.

Everly, elected in April, 1973, last month announced his plans to leave the board. Formerly with McFadden & Everly, Ltd. he is negotiating the purchase of a company in Glenwood Springs, Colo.

Everly was appointed this year as the park district's representative on the Arlington Heights Plan Commission. Comr. Lewis O'Donnell is acting as the commission's liaison to the park district until Everly's successor is named.

Chicago man charged with rape

A 26-year-old Chicago man was arrested by Arlington Heights police Tuesday and charged with the July 31 abduction and rape of an Arlington Heights woman.

Arrested was Willie F. Burton, 4819 West End Ave. He is being held in county jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Burton was arrested at his home by Arlington Heights detectives with the assistance of Chicago police. He was identified by his victim in a line-up at the Arlington Heights police station, police said.

According to reports of the rape, the 19-year-old victim, whose name was not released by police, was accosted in the parking lot of the Dana Point Apartments where she lived. The rapist reportedly forced her at knife point into his car and drove her into Mount Prospect where the attack occurred.

After raping her, the man once again threatened her with the knife, according to reports. She told police her attacker drove her around for about 10 minutes before releasing her in a field in Mount Prospect.

The arrest Tuesday capped an eight-week investigation by police.

Burton is scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court Oct. 11 to answer the charges of rape and aggravated kidnapping.

Group needs women volunteers

LWV to 'watchdog' area meetings

Area women are needed to serve as governmental watchdogs in the observer program operated in six villages by the League of Women Voters of the Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect Area.

The observer's job is to report to the local league chapter what happens at the various board meetings and to make sure that the open meeting law is not violated. The observer program is part of a national league effort to cover governmental activities on all levels.

Although the observer program is not new, the league has found it difficult to provide continuous coverage in all six of its towns. In Mount Prospect, for example, a league observer has just been assigned to the village board, which has been without an observer for the past three or four years.

Janet Yauch, 515 N. Forest Ave., Mount Prospect, said she took the village board assignment so she could get "more in tune with Mount Prospect." Last year she observed the library board meetings in her town, but moved to the village board so that someone with less time could fill the less demanding library board observer post.

THE PROBLEM with filling the observer posts, according to Mrs. Yauch, is that it is difficult to "get women out of the house at night." She said most members of the league either work or have small children making it difficult for them to get away in the evening.

Currently, the league has observers for village board meetings in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village and Buffalo Grove. In addition, observers are attending library board meetings in Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village.

Beverly Tyreha, head of the local observer program, said she still has not found observers for any of the governmental meetings in Wheeling or Prospect Heights. "Of course, we have to ask people to cover things in their own town," she said. Persons interested in the observer program are asked to call 394-5210.

Ideally, Mrs. Yauch said the league should have observers at all park district, school district and township meetings, as well as the board meetings of Harper College.

THE OBSERVERS are given guidelines set out by the National League of Women Voters to help them in their watchdog capacity. If any irregularities are found at the meetings, the observers must report back to the league's board to see what action should be taken.

"The league's motto is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government," Mrs. Yauch said. "Newspapers are fine, but nothing beats being there."

In some cases, the observer often attends meetings that are not even covered by the newspapers. Mrs. Yauch said that during her year of observing the Mount Prospect Library Board she was usually the only non-board member at the meetings.

Groups oppose track housing

Babcock said the developers would view such a rejection as a breach of contract and grounds for leaving the village.

He said if a settlement could not be reached between the developers and the village on this question, it might have to be taken to the courts for disposition.

ACCORDING TO preliminary figures presented by the developers, the development would have about 3,000 children under the age of 18. To help compensate for this influx of school children, the developers proposed donation of a five-acre school site.

Joseph Kiszka, deputy superintendent of Paintine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, which would be the recipient of the donation, expressed doubts concerning the site's placement along the Salt Creek flood plain, as well as its size.

"We really can't accept a site where we put more money into the site to make it buildable than if we bought a site of our choice," Kiszka said.

He said at least one building would have to be erected to handle the estimated 1,187 elementary school children from the development. However, Kiszka said the five-acre proposal is inadequate for a school and grounds.

The minimum school site is eight acres, he said, and a 10-acre site is preferable. A school on this acreage would house a maximum of 900 students, he said.

James DeVos, director of the Salt Creek Park District, said he would have preferred to see a commercial development instead of the 5,000 residential units.

"If they go with a people development, I hope the builders will meet the standards of recreation facilities. I'm talking about pools and tennis courts for public use, not just some cheap thing that won't last," DeVos said.

He said if the development were commercial, the park district would not have to worry about providing for the extra people and would gain extra tax income from the property improvement.

Library offers film and slide projectors

Patrons of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library may borrow a 16mm sound projector, an 8mm silent projector, or a 35mm slide projector for use at home.

Cardholders 18 years and older may check out any of the projectors for a maximum period of 48 hours for a $3 rental charge.

This new program stems from the growing popularity of the library's sound and silent films in color and black and white. Additional films and slides are available to patrons through the Suburban Audio Visual Service, Burr Ridge. The collection contains more than 3,000 16mm films and several full-length feature films.
